Committee Head Asserts Defeat Was Due to Proposal Being Obscured by Balloting for Mayor Nominations.

St. Louis voters would approve the $1,500,000 bond issue for a plaza park by an overwhelming majority—possibly 90 per cent—if the proposal were submitted in a special election, Leo Havey, chairman of the citizens' committee for the bond issue, asserted today.

The proposal, which requires approval by two-thirds of those voting on it, lost by a small margin in Friday's primary balloting, receiving only 62.78 per cent approval. Havey said he was convinced the defeat was due in large part to the hot Democratic mayoralty nomination contest which made the bond proposal a side issue and obscured its importance.

"In a special election, the bond issue would receive the undivided attention it deserves," he stated. "And with a vigorous campaign explaining its significance to the people, it undoubtedly would be passed."

Resubmission Urged.

Raymond R. Tucker, the Democratic nominee for Mayor, and former Mayor Aloys P. Kaufmann, executive vice president of the Urban Redevelopment Corp., have urged resubmission of the bond issue proposal in a special election.

Havey, who is chairman of the municipal Land Clearance for Redevelopment Authority, has asked bond issue sponsors to meet with him at 2 p.m. tomorrow to study means of carrying forward the city's slum clearance and urban redevelopment program, of which the projected plaza park is an important part.

Those invited to the conference include Mayor Joseph M. Darst, City Counselor James Crowe, Comptroller Milton Carpenter and Kaufmann.

More than 13,000 St. Louisans who went to the polls Friday and cast ballots in the mayoral and aldermanic contests did not vote on the bond issue. Havey expressed the opinion that the special ballot on the bond issue proved confusing to many persons; in order to vote YES it was necessary to scratch NO, in contrast to the procedure with the other ballot, which called for an X opposite the name of the candidates for whom the individual wished to vote.

Uniform Ballot Urged.

Carl Trauernicht, bond counsel for the city, said legislation to end such confusion and bring about a uniform ballot on all propositions is needed.

"When voters have to make a positive mark to vote for some propositions and a negative mark to vote for others, it is confusing," he declared. "The present state law governing the form of bond issue ballots goes back to the days when political ballots required that the voter strike out all the names of candidates except one. We finally got away from that on the political ballots, but still follow the outmoded practice on bond issue ballots."

Pending in the State Legislature is a bill, drafted at the instance of public school superintendents, to modernize the form of school bond ballots, Trauernicht reported, adding that the change should be extended to make all ballots in Missouri uniform.

The citizens' committee for the bond issue had 200,000 sample ballots printed. But the samples, marked to show how to vote for the proposal, were not received in time to be mailed to registered voters. Instead, they were turned over to Democratic and Republican party officials for distribution through precinct workers to voters as they went to the polls.

Many of the sample ballots were never given out, Havey said. At some precincts, he reported, no party workers were on hand to give out any kind of political matter.

The $1,500,000 bond issue would finance development of a park to link Aloe and Memorial Plazas. This recreational area would serve tenants of seven big apartment buildings to be erected by the Urban Redevelopment Corp. in the blighted area immediately to the north, and would be the city's one-third contribution to the project.

The Federal Government would defray two-thirds of the cost of acquiring property and clearing it for the middle-income housing development.

$10,000 DIAMOND RING LOST ON FLORIDA BEACH RECOVERED

CLEARWATER, Fla., March 16 (UP)—It sounded like an impossible assignment when Mrs. Myranda C. Lyons walked into police headquarters and asked for help in finding a $10,000 diamond ring she lost "somewhere on the beach."

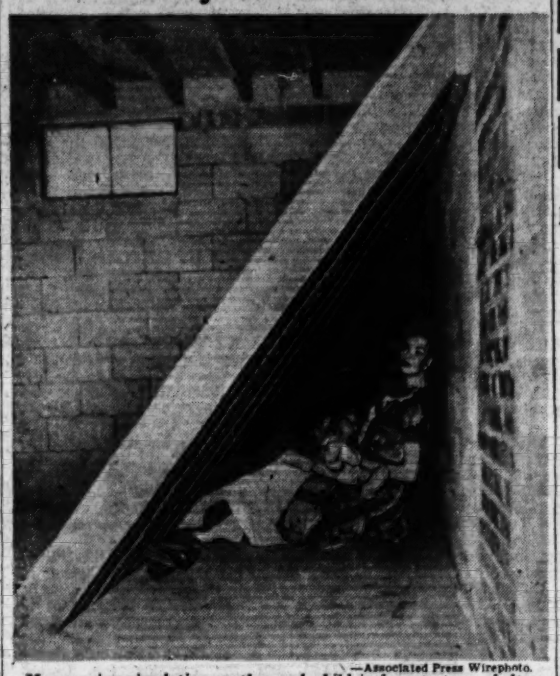

Detectives Frank Daniels and Paul Cason roped off 200 square feet of beach in the area of the loss and started shoveling sand through a screen.

After two hours, the ring was found.

Two Houses, Equipped Like Ordinary Homes, Marked for Destruction in Tomorrow's Explosion.

By ELTON C. FAY.

ATOM BOMB SITE, Nev., March 16 (AP) — If you have ever walked into a house where a dead friend lay, you know the eerie sensation of walking into a house that is going to be atom-blasted tomorrow.

Outside, it is bright sunshine. On a winding lane are what look like two farmhouses, white, two-storied, square, that might be sitting a mile apart on any mid-western country road.

But the moment you step inside, the feeling of bright sunshine vanishes. It is a house of death.

Grouped around a dining room table are four adults, the fixed smiles of the mannequins that they are on their faces. Coffee cups on the table tell a mute story of after-dinner tete-a-tete.

In the living room is another family group. Older people sitting chatting, among them maybe the neighbors from down the road. A young girl plays with her baby sister. Upstairs, another daughter is in bed, her shoes carefully placed on a night-stand.

In the concrete basement two bomb shelters have been built. Beneath one, a lean-to, crouches a mother, shielding her baby. In the other, like the first made of heavy timbers, sit three adults and two children, just waiting. The people upstairs don't know what's going to happen to them. Those in the basement know that they are going to be bombed.

Upstairs it is a neat and tidy home, a pleasant place to live, basking in the warm glow of the Nevada sun.

MIDNIGHT TONIGHT IS DEADLINE FOR FILING TAX RETURNS

Midnight tonight is the deadline for filing 1952 federal income tax returns and paying any taxes due on last year's income. Forms must be delivered or postmarked by that time.

About 70 persons were lined up at noon today at the basement tax office in the Federal Building, and 100 were waiting to be admitted at 7:30 a.m., opening time.

This year, for the first time, a staff of 25 tax workers will be on duty till midnight to help late filers at the Federal Building at Twelfth boulevard and Market street, and at the Clayton office at 19 North Bemiston avenue.

The midnight deadline tonight also applies to the state intangible property tax. That deadline was automatically extended because March 15 was a Sunday. State tax offices at 2730 North Grand boulevard and 2400 Big Bend boulevard, Clatyon, will be open till 4 p.m. today.

A cheerful note in the midst of the annual tax misery came today from Gus F. Koehler, Internal Revenue director here. Federal income tax refunds on last year's payments, he said, are running well over 20 per cent more than a year ago, with 342,308 of them processed through last week.

MAYOR FIRES TEAR GAS INTO FACE OF SPEEDER SUSPECT

CLEVELAND, March 16 (AP)—A suburban mayor, who likes to ride with his policemen, was along yesterday when the officers stopped a driver on a speeding charge.

Robert E. Willeford, Mayor of Bedford Heights, heard the driver, Saul Goldstone, roll down his window and tell the officers he would not answer a traffic ticket and would not go to the station.

Willeford got into the argument.

Finally, the mayor pulled out a pocket sized tear gas gun and fired into Goldstone's face from about two feet away.

Dr. Samuel Kamellin says it will be several days before he knows whether Goldstone's eyes are permanently damaged.

Goldstone, from his hospital bed, told a reporter he saw the police cruiser pursue another car and followed.

3 SUITS FILED TO BAR TRANSFER OF BROWNS' CLUB

Darst, 7 Minority Stockholders, Box-Seat Holder Seek to Enjoin Move to Baltimore.

Three suits were filed here today to prevent transfer of the St. Louis Browns baseball club to Baltimore.

The suits, all seeking an injunction from the circuit court, were filed by seven minority stockholders, Mayor Joseph M. Darst and a holder of a box-seat ticket for Browns' games in the 1953 season.

Hearings were scheduled for Thursday morning before Circuit Judges William B. Flynn and David A. McMullan to determine if temporary injunctions should be issued. The three petitions were prepared by Jerome F. Duggan, attorney.

The minority stockholders and Darst, in their separate suits, also asked the court to enjoin the Browns from disposing of Sportsman's Park.

Busch Would Buy Park.

August A. Busch, Inc., an Anheuser-Busch, Inc., subsidiary, which now owns the Cardinals, has agreed to buy Sportsman's Park from the Browns for $1,000,000 if the team moves out of St. Louis.

Ford Frick, baseball commissioner, said at a baseball meeting today at Tampa, Fla.: "August A. Busch is the one man who can block the transfer of the Browns to Baltimore.

"If Busch would tell Bill Veeck (the Browns' president) that he is not interested in buying Sportsman's Park at this time, Veeck could not continue with the project without the money

Dance Adjourns for Manhunt When 2 Prison Musicians Blow

CANON CITY, Colo., March 16 (UP)—The disappearance of the clarinet and saxophone players of a 12-piece dance band completely disrupted a Canon City social event.

The band was playing at a dance Saturday night for Colorado state prison guards and their wives, and its 12 members, including the two who vanished, are convicts.

Officials explained that the 10 remaining musicians could have performed adequately for the dance, but most of the guests had to leave hurriedly to hunt for the missing performers.

The Colorado State Patrol, which has joined the search for the fugitives, said today the two convict-musicians were still at large. Patrol members said the two are believed to have driven away in an old-model automobile.

ROANOKE RAPIDS POWER CASE WON BY PRIVATE UTILITY IN SUPREME COURT

FPC Licensing Power Upheld, 6-3, Despite Overall U.S. Plan—Douglas in Dissent Calls It 'Raid' on Public Domain.

WASHINGTON, March 16 (AP)—The Supreme Court today upheld the Federal Power Commission in licensing a private company to build a multi-million hydro-electric plant on the Roanoke river at Roanoke Rapids, N. C.

The decision ended a four-year dispute between former Secretary of the Interior Chapman and the commission over the license. It gives the Virginia Electric and Power Co. the right to build and operate the project.

Chapman fought for government construction.

Justice Frankfurter delivered the 6-3 decision. Justice Douglas wrote a dissenting opinion in which Chief Justice Vinson and Justice Black joined. Justice Clark wrote an opinion concurring with the majority. Justices Reed, Minton, Burton and Jackson concurred in Frankfurter's opinion.

Big Issue Not Decided.

In his lengthy opinion, Frankfurter said the court felt the commission's order must stand, but he emphasized that the tribunal was not deciding the big issue raised:—whether the Government or a private concern should build the plant.

"That question is not within our province," said Frankfurter.

"We simply decide that the jurisdiction of the Federal Power Commission to issue licenses for private construction of hydro-electric projects in the public interest has not been withdrawn by Congress as to the Roanoke Rapids site."

Frankfurter's opinion said Chapman's contention that the project had been placed by Congress beyond the licensing power of the Power Commission required a close study of the steps by which plans for Roanoke Rapids had developed.

Frankfurter then went into a detailed explanation of those steps and at the end of his explanation, stated:

"We find no solid ground for concluding that Congress has taken over the entire river basin for public development with such definiteness and finality so as to warrant us in holding that Congress has withdrawn as to this whole river basin its general grant of continuing authority to the Federal Power Commission to act as the responsible agent in exercising the licensing powers of Congress."

Douglas Terms It 'a Raid.'

Dissenting, Douglas called the licensing of the power company to build the dam "a raid" and an "unconscionable appropriation of the public domain by private interest." He wrote that the Roanoke Rapids power site "belonging to the Federal Government" is now being surrendered to private power interest.

Douglas added:

"The master plan now becomes clear; the Federal Government will put up the auxiliary units—the unprofitable ones; and the private power interests will take the plums—the choice ones."

In his appeal Chapman related that Congress had authorized development of the Roanoke river basin in 1944 as one huge project which was to include 11 federally-built dams.

Among the 11 was to be one at Roanoke rapids. Chapman argued that the Power Commission therefore had no authority to license the power company to go ahead with private development.

MALENKOV SAYS ALL ISSUES CAN BE SOLVED PEACEFULLY; U.S. SABRE JETS IN GERMANY

ARRIVAL GIVES AMERICANS CRAFT TO MEET RED MIGS ON EVEN TERMS

Fighters Are Sent to Base From Which Plane Shot Down by Czechs Was Operating—Others Due Soon.

WIESBADEN, Germany, March 16 (UP)—"A number" of American F-86 Sabre jets, battle-tested against Russian-built MIG-15s in Korea, arrived in West Germany today to bolster western air defenses against marauding MIGs which last week shot down two western military planes over Germany.

The speedy United States jets were sent at once to Fuerstenfeldbrueck Air Base. It was from that base in Bavaria, near the Czechoslovak frontier, that two American F-84 Thunderjets took off last Tuesday when they were attacked and one was shot down by two MIGs of the Red Czech Air Force.

The Sabre jets were rushed here from bases in Britain. The Air Force announcement said they were ordered to the southeast corner of the United States zone of Germany for "temporary duty."

Regular Force Due Soon.

A regular force of Sabre jets had been earmarked for service in Germany and will be flown here from the United States later this week.

The arrival of the Sabres for the first time gives the United States Air Force in Germany a plane which can fight on even terms against the fast Soviet MIG-15s. The older F-84 Thunderjets are too slow.

An Air Force spokesman indicated the Sabres flown here from Britain will be used to intercept any Soviet or Iron Curtain aircraft that violate the borders of the United States zone of Germany—before the regular force of Sabre jets is delivered.

The Air Force did not say how many Sabres were transferred to Germany. Its announcement said they "may be used as required to supplement other aircraft available in the performance of the normal missions of the Air Force." It added:

"The investigation of unidentified aircraft flights over the United tSates zone of Germany is a standing operating procedure of the Twelfth Air Force. These F-86s may participate in such investigations when appropriate."

Canadian Wing to Be Sent.

The Royal Canadian Air Force also has announced plans to send a wing of F-86 Sabre jets into Germany. They will be based at Zweibruecken as part of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's growing air force in Europe.

Russian MIG-15s last week shot down a British Lincoln bomber over the northern portion of West Germany, made a threatening mock attack on another British bomber and fired at a British European Airways passenger plane when it strayed briefly from the permitted Allied air corridor from West Germany to Berlin. Seven British airmen were killed when the Lincoln bomber was shot down.

British bombers and fighters, fully armed, began a week's maneuvers over Western Germany today.

The planes put into the air over western Germany today constituted the biggest armed bomber and fighter forces since the war.

The bodies of five of the British airmen killed or fatally injured when the bomber was shot down along the Soviet-British zonal borders in Germany, were brought out of the Russian zone last night.

The other two parachuted to the British zone but died of injuries.

The bombers—both piston and jet planes—will fly out from bases in Britain night and day for a week, to "bomb"—in imagination—targets on the continent.

Most of their objectives are in western Germany and several are only a few minutes flying time from the Soviet zone border.

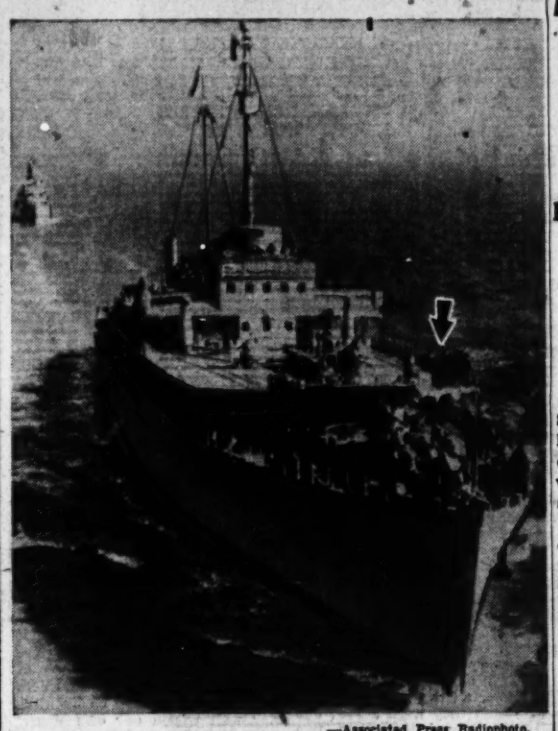

The new British Canberra jet bomber will take part as well as Washingtons and Lincolns, which are World War II types.

U.S. STUDENTS TRY PHONING MALENKOV, NOT ON PARTY LINE

Greeted by Churchill, Eden and Queen's Husband—Special Security Measures Taken.

LONDON, March 16 (AP)—President Josip (Tito) Broz of Yugoslavia stepped ashore today to begin an historic visit—the first ever made to Britain by any head of a Communist state. His arrival on British soil had been delayed for hours by a fog.

Greeting him at Westminster pier in the shadow of Parliament were the Duke of Edinburgh, Queen Elizabeth's husband; Prime Minister Churchill and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden. Tito was attired in a naval uniform. Smiling broadly, he shook hands all around.

The Duke saluted him and Tito returned the greeting. A guard of honor also presented arms as the Yugoslav national anthem was played. After the welcoming ceremony, which lasted about 10 minutes, Tito strolled along the Thames embankment with the Duke. Later Tito drove with Churchill to the Prime Minister's official residence.

Nature of Talks Secret.

Tito is here for talks with British leaders. The exact nature of the discussions has not been disclosed and as deep a veil of secrecy surrounds the purpose of his visit as surrounds his movements while here.

In a brief speech of greeting at the pier, Tito expressed hope his visit "will greatly contribute to the further strengthening of the friendship, mutual understanding and colloboration between our two nations." He recalled Eden's visit to Belgrade last year, saying it had "a very favorable effect, not only regarding mutual confidence but also regarding improved co-operation and political co-operation in other spheres."

Tito said that in the "present insecure political situation, menaced by the horror of war, our two countries now have a vital interest to preserve peace and stability." Because of the many elements menacing world peace, he added, there are subjects upon which he and British statesmen should exchange views.

He said he wished to assure the British that they should "consider the people of my country as their stanch allies, because the people of new Yugoslavia are striving toward the same ends as the people of Great Britain."

Security Measures.

Stern security measures have been taken to protect the Red ruler from any danger at the hands of a possible assassin.

Great numbers of policemen, many wearing bullet-proof vests, guarded his every movement. The security precautions were without parallel in recent memory.

The arrival at Westminster pier was without incident, but as the car carrying Tito and Churchill swung out of Whitehall into Downing street a magnesium flare dropped on a crowd a few hun-

EISENHOWER KEEPS TO BUSY SCHEDULE DESPITE A COLD

WASHINGTON, March 16 (AP)—President Eisenhower was back at his desk today with a full schedule of callers after taking a rest Sunday because of a cold.

Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said the President still has a little cold, but appears nearly recovered. Eisenhower went to work at 8:02 a.m. today.

The President's cold caused him to miss church yesterday. He was to have attended the dedication of the Resurrection Lutheran Chruch at Arlington, Va., but a White House spokesman said "it was thought wise that he should rest Sunday."

The spokesman said Eisenhower's cold was "aggravated somewhat" while he was playing golf at Burning Tree country club Saturday afternoon.

HOUSEWIFE FLIES 600 M.P.H. IN SOUND BARRIER 'WARMUP'

LONDON, March 16 (UP)—A British housewife with a 7-year-old daughter hopes to become the first woman to break the sound barrier, making her flight before France's Jacqueline Auriol has a crack at it.

Mrs. Dolores Therese Moggridte whipped across a Royal Air Force Field Saturday at close to 600 miles an hour in a Meteor jet preparatory to her pass at the barrier.

It all began when she read that Mme. Auriol, daughter-in-law of President Vincent Auriol, of France, was planning to fly through the sound barrier.

"Why should a French woman be the first, I asked myself—and decided then and there to do everything I could to beat her to it," the 104-pound housewife said.

SPEECH VIEWED AS INVITATION TO WEST TO WORK OUT A SOLUTION

Dictator Makes Special Reference to U.S.—Promises Firm Policy for Peace—Foreign Diplomats Applaud.

MOSCOW, March 16 (UP)—Soviet Premier Georgi M. Malenkov has invited the West to work out a solution to outstanding world problems, diplomatic sources said today.

They said the invitation was contained in a statement last night by Malenkov to the Soviet Parliament. The Premier said all present world problems could be worked out by mutual agreement among all countries even including Russia and the United States.

"At the present time there is no controversial outstanding problem which could not be solved in a peaceful way on the basis of mutual agreement among the countries concerned," Malenkov said. "This refers to the relations with all states including our relations with the United States."

New Regime Approved.

The Parliament in a 70-minute meeting approved Malenkov as the successor to Joseph Stalin.

His new government, including a reorganized Council of Ministers, also was approved by the 1339-member Parliament.

Foreign observers attached the utmost importance to Malenkov's statement on the settlement of international problems. It brought loud applause from the Parliament and even foreign diplomats in their boxes, including American Charge d'Affaires Jacob Beam, stood during the cheering.

"States interested in the preservation of peace can be assured the Soviet Union now and in the future will wage a firm peaceful policy," the Soviet Premier said.

The Supreme Soviet approved the appointment of Marshall Klementi Voroshilov as president and of Lavrenti P. Beria, V. M. Molotov, Nikolai Bulganin and Lazar M. Kaganovich as "first deputy" prime ministers. A. I. Mikoyan, minister of foreign and internal trade, was listed as "deputy prime minister."

Reaffirms Desire for Peace.

Malenkov repeated the principles of Soviet domestic and foreign policy which he announced at Stalin's funeral last Monday. He reaffirmed "the continuation of the firm peaceful policy of the Soviet Union."

One foreign diplomat termed the speech "almost an offer to sit down with the United States and anyone else and try to ease the world's tension."

"It could be one of the most important statements to be made in a very long while," another diplomat commented.

(In Washington, officials of President Eisenhower's administration said they were studying Malenkov's words carefully but commented that the sincerity of any peace overtures would be shown better by action rather than words. Such specific action, they pointed out, could range from an easing of tensions in Germany to an armistice in the Korean war.)

Not once did Malenkov refer to "warmongers" or to American "imperialists." Both these terms, formerly so widely applied to activities of United States leaders, have been absent from pronouncements of Soviet leaders and the Soviet press since Stalin's death.

Refers to Rights of Others.

Malenkov said his new government's foreign policies are based on respect for the rights of other countries, "strict adherence to all treaties" signed by the Soviet Union, and co-operation and development of business relations with all nations, whether Communist or capitalist.

The Soviet Union, he went on, would draw even tighter its links with its allies, and especially with Communist China and the "people's democracies" of eastern Europe.

After his speech, Malenkov announced for the first time the full list of the reorganized Council of Ministers, or cabinet. He also disclosed that before he died Stalin approved the numerous mergings of ministries in the government.

The new government has 26 ministries, as compared to more than 50 in the old.

Chief among the organization changes announced at the session was the abolition of the separate Navy Ministry, headed by Adm. N. G. Kuznetsov. It was merged into Marshal Bulganin's Ministry of Defense.

Malenkov also announced crea-

Five Million Stalin Mourners Tied Sprint Record, Accountant Figures

MANGUM, Okla., March 16 (AP)—The way accountant Frank Baker figures it, five million Russians have just tied the world's record for the 100-yard dash.

Impossible? He cites as authority the Moscow radio, which announced that number filed past Joseph Stalin's bier in 72 hours.

That means, according to his calculations, the mourners two abreast, 3½ feet apart, ran past the bier at 22 miles an hour.

Twenty-two miles an hour is 9.3 seconds a hundred yards—a speed record attained heretofore only by American sprinter Mel Patton.

U.S. CHALLENGES MALENKOV TO PUT 'PEACEFUL INTENT' WORDS INTO DEEDS

State Department Suggests Action to Settle Korea Dispute or Other Issues — Notes Bare Mention of Stalin.

WASHINGTON, March 16 (AP) —The State Department today challenged Soviet Premier Malenkov to carry out his words on "peaceful intent" through action to settle the Korean fighting and other East-West issues.

A statement by Press Officer Lincoln White said the department received "with interest" Malenkov's inaugural declaration yesterday at Moscow, in part because the name of former Premier Stalin was "barely mentioned."

For this reason and because Malenkov apparently recognizes a "latent power for good" among the Soviet peoples, which Secretary of State Dulles recently mentioned, the department said Malenkov's words were received "with interest by this government."

Meaning Yet to Be Determined.

"Their true significance however must be determined by the future action of the Soviet Union and by those under its sway," the statement said. "Protestations of peaceful intent are not new from the Soviet Union but words must be weighed against acts.

"The war continues in Korea. Planes on peaceful routine missions are shot down in Germany. Pledges for the independence of Austria continue to be ignored.

"It will be interesteding to see how in these and other pressing respects Mr. Malenkov intends to implement his words of peaceful intent."

Malenkov declared in his inaugural address that all "troublesome and unsolved questions (with the West) may be resolved by pesceful negotiations."

Some Western diplomats took it as a strong statement but the general reaction in Western capitals was that deeds rather than words were what was needed from the new Soviet rulers.

The State Department's reaction was given by White as an informal statement. He made it plain it was fully authorized but not cleared personally with Secretary Dulles.

Dulles's Words Recalled.

The statement referred at length to what Dulles said last week in New York about human aspirations for freedom within the Soviet bloc which Dulles said could be held in check by tyranny but not forever.

White noted that Dulles said that among all peoples there is a longing for recognition of the dignity and equality of the individual and for general recognition of the right of the individual to achieve his destiny in a manner of his own choosing and in harmony with his neighbors.

Dulles blamed Stalin for stifling these aspirations and said he had capitalized on the prestige of the Red army in World War II. Stalin's death opened a new era, Dulles said.

Against this background, White said that Malenkov "it would appear, also recognized this latent power for good which Mr. Dulles emphasized in New York."

"It is also of some significance that the name of Stalin was barely mentioned by Mr. Malenkov," White added.

Knowland Wants Showdown.

Meanwhile, Senator Knowland (Rep.), California, demanded that the United States force a cold war showdown in the United Nations with a move to brand Russia as "a supporter of aggression" in Korea.

At the same time, the chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee told the Senate the United States should request that U.N. members who have recognized Red China withdraw their diplomatic representatives. Knowland said the Russians can prove their peaceful intentions only if they withdraw "moral and military aid to the aggressors" in Korea.

He proposed that the United States "forwith have introduced in the United Nations a resolution declaring the Soviet Union a supporter of aggression in Korea and a violator of the United Nations charter."

Senator Cooper (Rep.), Kentucky, said Knowland's proposal would lead to "outright war" with the Soviet Union. In answer to Knowland, Cooper said Russia unquestionaly is an aggressor, but there are "some values" in avoiding the label. He said the Administration must consider "how best to postpone the outbreak of war."

In advance of White's statement, informants had made plain that administration officials intended to overlook no opportunities to work for peace that might be presented by the new Soviet regime.

Malenkov mentioned no specific issue for settlement, offered no particular formula and made no commitment on anything. He did go out of his way a little bit, however, to specify that he thought issues between Russia and other countries could be settled.

Several Motives Possible.

Experts on Soviet history and conduct said that, quite apart from the question of whether he sincerely is putting forth an olive branch now, Malenkov might be motivated by any of several purposes.

He might want to raise hope in the outside world that Stalin's death would increase the chances for peace. He might want to reassure people inside the Communist world if they are especially nervous due to the change of government control. He might hope to lull and even split the Western alliance. He might be aiming primarily at creating a relaxed international atmosphere in which the western European countries would refuse to go through with a European Defense Community and West German rearmament.

In other words, it was said that there are persuasive reasons why Malenkov should be talking peace at this time—just as there are persuasive reasons why he might have ordered a tough policy in Germany which resulted in shooting down British and American aircraft last week.

At the same time, the United States, British and other Western governments, being committed to get peace if possible though not at any price, are compelled to deal with the situation which Malenkov creates by his olive branch oratory..

Gen. Gruenther Doubts Air Attacks Mean Russia Is Ready for War

GEN. ALFRED M. GRUENTHER, Allied chief of staff in Europe, kisses his godchild, 10-month-old LINDA DAVIDSON, held by her mother, MRS. GAR DAVIDSON, on arrival in Washington today to begin a round of conferences. Mrs. Davidson is the General's sister.

Chief of Staff to NATO Commander Says 'We Are No Longer a Pushover,' West's Might Is Growing.

WASHINGTON, March 16 (UP) —Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther said today he doubts that recent Communist attacks on Allied planes over Europe mean Russia is ready for war.

Gruenther, chief of staff to Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway in Europe, said after conferring with President Eisenhower that is his own personal opinion. He did not say what Eisenhower's opinion is.

Gruenther suggested that the air incidents might be the result of "increased vigilance" or "some trigger-happy" flyers.

But he said he is confident the growing strength of the West will cause Russia to take a long look before provoking any incident that would lead to a war.

"We are no longer a pushover," he said.

Getting Better, He Says.

Western defense forces are getting better all the time, are much better than they were a year ago and infinitely better than two years ago, Gruenther said, but there still are many problems to solve.

Gruenther said he felt the European defense treaty eventually will be approved by the member countries, although it will cause "some pain" to several of them.

Gruenther flew here from Paris headquarters of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization for conferences on Europe's defense problems.

He was chief of Staff to Gen. Eisenhower when the President was NATO commander. Gruenther termed his White House visit a "courtesy call." He stayed for lunch with Eisenhower and a group of Congressmen.

'Fed Up' With Attacks.

Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg, Air Force chief of staff, also just back from abroad, said last night he is "fed up with our boys being used as clay pigeons" by Communist fighters pilots in Europe.

Vandenberg, who has been inspecting air bases in Europe and Africa, said he could only guess whether the shooting down of British and United States planes by Red MIGs was part of a deliberate plan.

"I'm worried about it," the general said, however.

He said he had asked Gen. Ridgway to see if any changes should be made in instructions to United States pilots regarding contact with Red planes.

The air chief explained that it is necessary for United States pilots in the American zone of Germany to fly near the borders "to see what is going on but they stay well within our own lines."

Commenting on the state of United States air bases overseas, Vandenberg said he found morale good "in spite of the mud and below par living of units in France.

"The units in Germany are pretty well fixed," Vandenberg said. "North African bases are beginning to look better. The French area (of Africa) also is beginning to look better."

Vandenberg was asked if the border incident in Germany had changed his goals for the Air Force.

"My goal is still the 143 wings authorized by the Joint Chiefs of Staff. . . . The sooner we get to it the better."

PICKET BAR UPHELD IF RIGHT-TO-WORK LAWS ARE VIOLATED

WASHINGTON, March 16 (AP) —The Supreme Court decided today that states may forbid labor union picketing if the picketing conflicts with state right-to-work laws.

The 7-2 ruling upheld an injunction issued by a Richmond (Va.) court against the peaceful picketing of a school construction job there.

The contractor contended the union's objective was to compel cancellation of a contract with a non-union subcontractor.

Virginia law says the right to work may not be denied because of membership or non-membership in a labor union. It declares illegal any agreement between an employer and union by which a non-union worker is denied the right to work.

LONDON IS COOL TO PEACE GESTURE

LONDON, March 16 (AP) — Britain is more interested in the deeds than the words of the new Russian gorvernment, a Foreign Office spokesman declared today.

Asked at the regular Foreign Office news conference to comment on the address to the Supreme Soviet by Russian Prime Minister Georgi Malenkov yesterday, the spokesman said:

"We have heard similar speeches before. It is a new government, however, and naturally we shall be interested to see if their actions are different from previous governments."

When a newsman suggested Malenkov's address indicated he desired talks with the West, the spokesman replied:

"If there is anything Mr. Malenkov wants to say, I am sure he will find no difficulty expressing himself through diplomatic channels."

THOUSANDS BEGIN SOLEMN MARCH AT GOTTWALD'S BIER

All Work to Stop for Funeral Thursday — No Mention of Who Will Rule in His Place.

VIENNA, March 16 (AP)—The Prague radio said thousands of mourning Czechoslovaks began passing by the bier of President Klement Gottwald in Hradcany castle at noon today.

A state funeral will be held on Thursday for the dictator-president of Czechoslovakia who died Saturday. All work will be stopped throughout the country for the opening five minutes of the services, set for 1 p.m. The body will lie in state in the castle until then.

The national observance for Gottwald will be a small-scale version of the elaborate Russian observance last week for his Communist comrade Joseph Stalin. Gottwald attended the outdoor services for Stalin in freezing weather in the Soviet capital's Red Square—and there apparently caught the cold that developed into pneumonia with complications and resulted in his death.

There has been no announcement of the successor to Gottwald's dictatorial control over the Czech government, the all-powerful Communist party and the army and police.

Observers here speculated that the authority might be split among several top Reds. The presidency, possibly turned into a figurehead position, might go to 75-year-old Vice Premier Zdenek Nejedly.

The four-man commission appointed to make funeral arrangements was looked upon as the likely heir to actual authority. Heading the commission is Premier Antonin Zapotocky, apparently the top contender for the highest power. The others on the commission are:

Karol Bacilek, minister of national security. He may continue running the police and border guards.

Any struggle for power among the four might not be revealed beyond the inner circle for many months. A new purge could be necessary before consolidation of power in one man.

Moscow's representative at Gottwald's funeral will be Defense Minister Nikolai A. Bulganin, the Prague radio said.

The Budapest radio reported yesterday that Hungary's prime minister, Matyas Rakosi, called on the Czechoslovak minister in the Hungarian capital to convey condolences on Gottwald's death. This was the first mention that Rakosi had returned home from Stalin's funeral. There had been speculation that he might have been detained by the Kremlin.

Greer Garson Robbed of Gems.

PALM SPRINGS, Calif., March 16 (UP)—Screen Star Greer Garson was robbed of more than $10,000 in jewels while vacationing with her husband at this desert resort, police said today. Police quoted the British-born actress as saying the gems were taken from her cottage here late Sunday night while she and her husband, E. E. Fogelson, a wealthy oilman, were out.

ORDER TO REMOVE DEMOCRATS NEAR, MARTIN ASSERTS

President Will Soon 'Unfreeze' Policy-Making Civil Service Jobs, Speaker Says.

WASHINGTON, March 16 (UP) —President Eisenhower will soon issue an executive order to root Democratic holdovers out of policy-making jobs covered by civil service, House Speaker Martin said today.

Leaving the weekly White House conference of Republican congressional leaders with Eisenhower, Martin said the talk on "unfreezing" civil service jobs covered only those at policy-making levels.

The White House had announced more than two weeks ago that Eisenhower would issue the order. He said then that past Democratic administrations had abused the idea of civil service by "blanketing in" some jobs. "Blanketing in" is government jargon for giving politically-appointive jobs civil service status and protection.

'Fewer Than 1000 Jobs.'

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty announced originally that "fewer than 1000" policy-level jobs would be affected by the anticipated executive order.

Martin said today the Republican leadership feels it is necessary to get men and women into administrative jobs who will be obligated to carry out policies for which 34,000,000 persons voted last November.

There was still no elaboration, however, on the precise number of jobs involved or what departments and agencies will be affected, although it was understood practically none will escape entirely.

Civil Service Head at Meeting.

Arthuh S. Flemming, a member of Eisenhower's government reorganization committee, sat in on today's meeting.

Meanwhile, Congress heard that Eisenhower needed new laws for the "housecleaning." Budget Director Joseph M. Dodge urged enactment of new laws that would give the President more power to put through a thorough government "housecleaning."

Senator McCarthy (Rep.), Wisconsin, said that under present laws, the President does not have enough power to "clear away all the debris that has accumulated over a period of years."

Dodge was summoned before a consolidated hearing of the Senate and House government operations committees which are trying to speed through congressional approval of Eisenhower's plan to list the Federal Security Administration to cabinet level.

Asking for laws broadening the President's power to reorganize executive agencies, Dodge said administration leaders are greatly concerned over the situation and have been discussing it for some time. He said no definite proposals are ready yet. The matter, he said, deserves the "urgent attention" of Congress.

Dodge spoke up after Senator McCarthy, chairman of the Senate Government Operations Committee, remarked that Eisenhower did not now have the power to "clear away all the debris."

Dodge agreed that only a few top jobs would be changed by the reorganization plan and added "reorganization powers are not sufficient to permit a bigger shake-up."

Taft said in an interview that lawyers for the FSA and the Departments of Labor and Agriculture appeared to have omitted their own names in compiling lists of jobs in their organizations which do not have civil service status and thus can be filled by the new Administration.

'Protecting Themselves.'

"Some of these people themselves may have civil service status, but I don't believe their jobs have any such status," Taft said. "It is in the legal departments of these agencies where there has been real New Deal thinking and it looks as though some of these lawyers have managed to protect themselves in making these reports."

Alien May Be Held on Ellis Island Indefinitely, Supreme Court Rules

5-to-4 Decision in Case of Man Excluded by U.S. and Rejected by Britain and 14 Other Nations.

WASHINGTON, March 16 (AP) —An alien barred from the United States for security reasons may be held indefinitely on Ellis Island, the Supreme Court decided today.

The 5 to 4 ruling applied to Ignatz Mezei, 54 years old, who claims to have been born in Gibraltar. Great Britain and 14 other countries have refused to admit him.

Justice Clark delivered the decision in which Chief Justice Vinson and Justices Reed, Minton and Burton joined.

Justice Black wrote a dissenting opinion in which Justice Douglas joined. Justice Jackson also wrote a dissenting opinion in which Justice Frankfurter joined.

Mezei said he was held on Ellis Island more than two years before he won release under $3000 bond. This came on his fifth try before the United States district court in New York City.

'Confidential' Evidence.

The Government on May 10, 1950, had ordered Mezei excluded on the basis of evidence "of a confidential nature, the disclosure of which would be prejudicial to the public interest for security reasons." Mezei was denied a hearing before a board of special inquiry.

United States District Judge Irving R. Kaufman in New York City, considering Mezei's fifth habeas corpus proceeding, said the alien's detention apparently had been excessively prolonged. Kaufman said he would rule in favor of Mezei unless the Government permitted him to examine the evidence.

The Government refused, so Mezei was permitted to post the bond. Today's action apparently means his bond will be canceled and he will return to Ellis Island.

Clark's decision said it is true that Mezei's position entails hardship.

"But," he said, "the times being what they are, Congress may well have felt that other countries ought not shift the onus to us; that an alien in Mezei's position is no more ours than theirs.

"Whatever our individual estimate of that policy and fears on which it rests, Mezei's right to enter the United States depends on the congressional will, and courts cannot substitute their judgment for the legislative mandate."

Dissenting View.

Jackson's dissenting opinion said Mezei "seems likely to be detained indefinitely, perhaps for life, for a cause known only to the Attorney General."

Mezei's own lawyer said the exclusion order against him was based on alleged membership in the International Workers Order, which appears on the Attorney General's list of subversive organizations.

Mezei first came to the United States in 1923. In 1948 he left to visit his dying mother in Romania, but was denied permission to enter that country. He remained in Hungary 19 months. In 1950 he left Hungary after obtaining a visa for entering the United States as an immigrant. On arrival at New York City, Mezei was excluded by an immigration inspector and later by the Attorney General, then Howard McGrath.

BRITISH SEA LORD RANKS RED NAVY SECOND IN WORLD

He Says It Is Building More Cruisers Than All NATO Powers Together.

LONDON, March 16 (AP)—Russia has the world's second most powerful navy and is building more cruisers than all the North Atlantic Treaty power together, Britain's First Lord of the Admiralty said today.

J. P. L. Thomas, introducing the navy estimates for 1953-54 in the House of Commons, said: "The increase in speed of the Soviet naval construction program has been remarkable of late."

"At present it includes many destroyers and submarines while more criusers are now being built annually than by all of the NATO forces combined."

Thomas added that Russia has about 20 "very powerful" cruisers, more than 100 destroyers and more than 350 submarines—making it the second largest navy in commission in the world.

"Russia also has a powerful naval air force. It is no use blinding ourselves to the fact that there is a very strongly armed and efficient Soviet navy," the minister said.

Most of these forces are concentrated in the Baltic and northern areas, Thomas told Parliament.

The United States Navy is the world's largest.

Thomas's estimate put the active strength of the British Navy at 166 vessels of all classes, ranging down from one battleship and two heavy aircraft carriers to minesweepers. The reserve fleet numbers 322 units.

Thomas said in a few years time the Royal Navy will seek bigger funds to step up the construction of modern new warships. For now, he added "we have to see, to the best of our financial ability" that Britain's navy is fully prepared in case "war in all its modern beastliness should come."

Priority is being given to ships for mine-sweeping, anti-submarine duties and to the completion of aircraft carriers, he said.

ENGINEERS' SOCIETY URGES HIGHER CITY SALARY LIMITS

A resolution, recommending that inequities in salaries for city employes in professional positions in St. Louis be corrected by raising the ceiling on them, has been adopted by the St. Louis chapter of the Missouri Society of Professional Engineers, it was announced today.

The resolution stated, "The ceiling on salaries established many years ago by the limitation in the charter has been one of the causes of inequities in some professional salaries. It is in the interest of the city of St. Louis that the best talent available be secured.

"The recruitment and retention of adequate numbers of properly qualified professional engineers and members of other professions in the public service depends largely on the compensation offered therein, as compared with other fields of endeavor."

GOV. ARN SAYS HE SUGGESTED THAT ROBERTS BE GIVEN GAS UTILITY JOB

Testifies He Acted on Request by Company's Regular Lobbyist to Recommend 'Public Relations' Man.

By ROY J. HARRIS
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

TOPEKA, Kan., March 16—Gov. Edward F. Arn of Kansas testified today that he recommended C. Wesley Roberts, now Republican National Chairman, for the Cities Service Gas Co. "public relations" job which paid $3750 in 1951.

Arn, first witness as the legislative investigation of Roberts went into its second week, said he made the recommendation shortly before his inauguration as Governor in January, 1951, on request of Cities Service's regular lobbyist, Jack Stites.

"He called me on the phone and asked if I could suggest anybody who knew about the general routine of the Legislature and could render a service of keeping track of and reporting to them through the 1951 session," Arn said in response to questioning by Attorney General Harold R. Fatzer.

"I think I probably suggested two or three names, but I probably put some emphasis on Wes Roberts. There was no discussion about the compensation he would receive."

"You know, don't you, that one can subscribe and get the same service for $40?" asked Fatzer.

"No, I don't know that, but I wouldn't think such a service would be very satisfactory," Arn replied.

Payment of the $3750 fee by the gas utility first came to light last Friday, when Roberts admitted before the joint investigating committee that he received that fee in addition to $11,000 from the Ancient Order of United Workmen, a fraternal insurance company, for helping sell a building to the state for $110,000. Some state officials contend the state already owned the building.

Roberts, who had been Kansas Republican state chairman until several months before the employment, insisted during five hours in the witness chair that he did no lobbying, although he said his duties for Cities Service called for conferences with committee chairmen and other legislators.

Defends State Officials.

In other testimony today Gov. Arn defended the position of state officials who had approved paying the insurance firm for the building a hospital structure on grounds of the State Tuberculosis Sanatorium at Norton — on the ground that Kansas courts had held that a building erected on someone else's land, with the landowner's consent, remained the property of the builder.

He said he had discussed this point in 1951 with one of Attorney General Fatzer's assistants, Red Varner, now dead, and that Varner had agreed the building belonged to A.O.U.W. although it was on state property.

Four other men who were key state officials in 1928, when the building was erected, testified last week that their understanding had been that the structure eventually would become state property.

Arn also repeated Roberts's assertion in testimony last week that all the furor over his 1951 activities is the result of a Kansas newspaper man's determination to "get" Roberts.

In Kansas the big issue is whether the Legislature "bought the Brooklyn bridge" in paying $110,000 for property it may already have owned. The purchase, not to mention the part Roberts played, has shaken the state as no issue in the last 20 years.

Impact on National Leaders.

But nationally—and Republican leaders in Washington and elsewhere are just beginning to realize this — the question is whether Roberts will be able to survive as national chairman irrespective of the state committee's findings.

United States Senator Frank Carlson of Kansas, on whose strong recommendation President Eisenhower named the 48-year-old Roberts as party chief last January, expressed confidence in Roberts last week but admitted he was "on trial" before the public.

The Republican party in Kansas, never too closely knit, is split wide open by the Roberts case. Members of the investigating committee are aligned mostly with the faction headed by Gov. Arn, who only Saturday renewed expression of his belief that Roberts had done no lobbying.

But Attorney General Fatzer, also a Republican and at first lukewarm in his approach to the Roberts matter, has taken the lead in questioning of witnesses before the committee, hinting that he might prosecute Roberts for failure to register as a lobbyist, regardless of what the committee does.

Penalty for Violation.

Maximum penalty for violation of the lobbying act is a year in jail and $5000 fine.

The letter from Cities Service confirming Roberts's employment specified that he was to do no lobbying, and was to provide only information.

But the generosity of Cities Service in paying $3750 has caused amused eyebrow-raising among capital oldtimers, who point out that complete information service on progress of legislation can be had by an established firm here for $200 per session.

PATRIOTIC SOCIETY LIMITED TO HOLDERS OF MEDAL OF HONOR

(Picture in Everyday Magazine.)

NEW YORK, March 16—A new society with the highest membership requirements in the world was organized yesterday to oppose Communist front movements in the United States and to press for a strong national defense.

Ninety-four Congressional Medal of Honor holders, believed to be the largest assemblage in history of men who have won the nation's highest award for valor in battle, attended the first national meeting of the Congressional Medal of Honor Society of the United States and elected as their first president Lt. Gen. Leon W. Johnson, chief of the Continental Air Command, Mitchell Air Force Base, L. I.

The society was incorporated in New York state in 1948, but no national meeting could be held until now.

During a business meeting, the members drew up a set of general objectives for the society which included, besides opposition to subversive organizations and support of the national defense program, establishing scholarships for children of deceased medal holders and recognition of persons who further prospects for world peace.

CHEMICAL METHODS TO TREAT PIN OAK DISEASE DESCRIBED

Methods of controlling a disease which turns leaves of pin oak trees a yellowish green are described in the current issue of the Missouri Botanical Garden Bulletin.

The condition, common in the St. Louis area where pin oaks are among the most desirable ornamental shade trees, is an indication of an alkaline soil, the Bulletin reported. It may be overcome by addition of chemicals to the soil or spraying of leaves.

A 50-50 mixture of ferrous sulphate and mist wettable sulphur at the rate of one pound for each inch of trunk diameter is recommended. This should be forced into the ground in early spring. Aluminum sulphate may be substituted for half the sulphur for even quicker response. Leaves may be sprayed with a solution of five pounds of ferrous sulphate and two pounds of soy bean flour in 100 gallons of water in late spring or early summer, but results are less lasting.

PVT. GEORGE GADDY WOUNDED IN KOREAN PATROL ACTION

Pvt. George M. Gaddy, son of Mrs. Nannie M. Lovvorn, 2523 North Twenty-third street, was wounded in the legs and back by shell fragments Feb. 23, the Defense Department reported today.

Pvt. Gaddy, 19 years old, wrote his mother from an Army hospital in Seoul that he was wounded while out on patrol. He said that of 22 men in the patrol, 10 were killed and six were wounded when they were pinned down by shell and mortar fire.

He has been in Korea about a month and a half. He entered the Army after attending McKinley High School and Hadley Technical School.

CLAYTON - WOODSON BUS LINE TO BE TESTED

North-South Route Serving 4 County Communities Begins Monday.

The Clayton-Woodson bus line, providing north and south transit service on a 90-day experimental basis to parts of Woodson Terrace, Overland, University City and Clayton, will be put into service next Monday, the St. Louis County Transit Co. announced today.

Operating through the main business and shopping sections of Overland and Clayton, the new line will serve an area of new houses and apartments in Woodson Terrace and the Canterbury Gardens apartment development in University City.

On the new route, busses will start at Woodson road and Stansberry avenue in Woodson Terrace, proceeding east on Stansberry to Boswell road; south to Guthrie avenue: west to Woodson; south on Woodson and McKnight road to Delmar boulevard; east to Old Bonhomme road; south on Old Bonhomme and south and east on Forsyth boulevard to a terminus at Forsyth and Jackson avenue, Clayton.

First busses will leave Woodson Terrace at 5:55 a.m. and the Clayton terminus at 6:23, providing service on a 30-minute schedule on week days until 7:30 p.m., when the last bus leaves Clayton. Last bus from the Woodson Terrace terminal will be at 6:40 p.m. There will be no service on Sunday.

Transit company officials said that until a bridge over railway tracks on Old Bonhomme road between McKnight and LePere roads is made safe for heavy vehicles, the new bus route will not go through the Canterbury Gardens apartment project.

Instead, it was explained, busses will be routed alongside the project over McKnight road between Old Bonhomme road and Delmar boulevard.

The Clayton - Woodson line is the first new line put into service by the transit company since the Edmundson Terrace - Overland line was inaugurated three years ago. The Edmundson Terrace-Overland route is no longer in service.

PROPOSES TO EARMARK HALF OF SALES TAX FOR AGED

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 16—A bill which would earmark half of all sales tax money received by the State for payment of benefits to the aged and others under the public welfare programs was introduced in the House today.

Representative Carl T. Webber (Rep.), Union, sponsor of the measure, estimated this would provide about $44,000,000 annually for this purpose. He said this would be sufficient to defray the costs of proposed increases for old age pensioners and others on public relief rolls.

However, Proctor N. Carter, director of Welfare, pointed out that the current cost to the state of old age pensions and the other welfare programs totals $43,000,000 a year. This would leave, under Webber's bill, only $1,000,000 a year to cover proposed increases.

INQUEST IN DEATH OF GIRL IS RESET FOR TOMORROW

Pathologist Says Tests Strengthen Theory Leonora Seiler Died of Suffocation.

An inquest in the death of Lenora Seiler, 13-year-old Valley Park girl, has been re-scheduled for tomorrow to allow a pathologist to complete an examination of the body, County Coroner Arnold J. Willmann announced today.

On the basis of an incomplete report, Willmann said it had been established that the girl was dead before her body was taken to the Meramec river, from which it was recovered Saturday. Undigested popcorn in the stomach indicated death occurred within four or five hours after she was last seen alive Feb. 15.

Further microscopic examinations of apparent bruise marks on the girl's throat and right thigh and an analysis of a silty substance, which covered the body to a thickness of one-half inch, also were being made.

Dr. John P. Wyatt, St. Louis University pathologist, announced today that a theory that the girl died of suffocation has been strengthened by results of laboratory tests.

Theory Body Was Buried.

Pointing to the silt on the body, Marshal Louis C. Brown of Valley Park advanced a theory that the girl was killed and buried in the bed of the river itself. He said at the time of her disappearance the stream was at one of its lowest stages. It would have been simple for the killer to scoop out a shallow grave, he said.

The Meramec rose 10 feet after the heavy snow of March 1 and the rain which followed, Brown said, and the swift current could have washed the body loose. It was found caught in submerged roots near the Larkin-Williams road at a point not far from the Valley Park city limits.

Brown said he and other St. Louis county authorities would search the river bank today for the girl's missing clothing. The body was unclothed when found. A chain and St. Christopher's medal, a religious medal Lenora was in the habit of wearing, was caught in her hair.

Persons known to have previously been suspected of sex offenses also will be called in for questioning, Brown said, although the pathologist's examination revealed no evidence of rape. The investigators will check through a number of cleared parking areas off Larkin-Williams road, near where the body was found.

Coroner Willmann, who first reported the body appeared to have been immersed in water less than two weeks, said today the condition of the internal organs indicated otherwise.

Funeral Arrangements.

The girl's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Seiler, 800 Vest avenue, showing the strain of the long tension they had been under, went yesterday to the Bopp undertaking establishment, 131 West Argonne drive, Kirkwood, to make funeral arrangements.

Mrs. Seiler sobbed intermittently as her husband discussed the case. He said he thought Lenora must have been killed by someone she knew.

"It's still a mystery," he said. "We still don't know what the cause of death was. I'd do anything to get the man who took her away. He will do it again unless we get him."

Seiler last saw his daughter when he took her and a companion Sarah Evers, to a Valley Park motion picture theater on Feb. 15, which was on a Sunday. She had left the theater when he drove there to pick her up and apparently had started to walk home alone.

Funeral services will be at 9 a.m. tomorrow at Sacred Heart Church, Valley Park, with burial in the church cemetery. Classmates in the eighth grade at Sacred Heart Parochial School will serve as honorary pallbearers. In addition to her parents she is survived by two brothers, Clarence, 16, and Norman, 9.

WOMAN IS SHOT BY FATHER IN ROW OVER HER MOTHER

Bullet Enters Jaw—Husband, a Dentist, Believes Plate He Made Saved Her Life.

Mrs. Erma Boyd, wife of Dr. R. M. Boyd, St. Louis dentist, was shot in the jaw yesterday by her elderly father, Frank Rutan, in an argument over her mother at the Rutan home in Charleston, Ill. She was in "good" condition today at a Charleston hospital.

Dr. Boyd said a dental plate he made for his wife deflected the bullet fired from a .22-caliber rifle, and thus apparently saved her life. The bullet lodged in Mrs. Boyd's neck. The Boyds live at 2675 California avenue.

The shooting occurred yesterday morning. Dr. and Mrs. Boyd had gone to Charleston, 130 miles northeast of St. Louis, after receiving a warning by telephone from a relative that Rutan was planning to have his 78-year-old wife, Carrie, committed to an institution, relatives said.

Rutan, held in Coles county jail, said his daughter "lunged at me." Dr. Boyd told authorities the two were merely quarreling and Rutan shot his daughter after she exclaimed, "You're not going to send mother away."

Mrs. Boyd corroborated her husband's version of the altercation today in conversation with her daughter, Mrs. Sharon Bradley, 2687 California avenue, Mrs. Bradley said. Reached by telephone at the hospital, Mrs. Bradley said Dr. Boyd, who has not practiced for two years because of illness, also was confined to the hospital today. She explained that Dr. Boyd, suffering from a recent ankle fracture, dropped his crutch during the argument and caused further injury to his ankle.

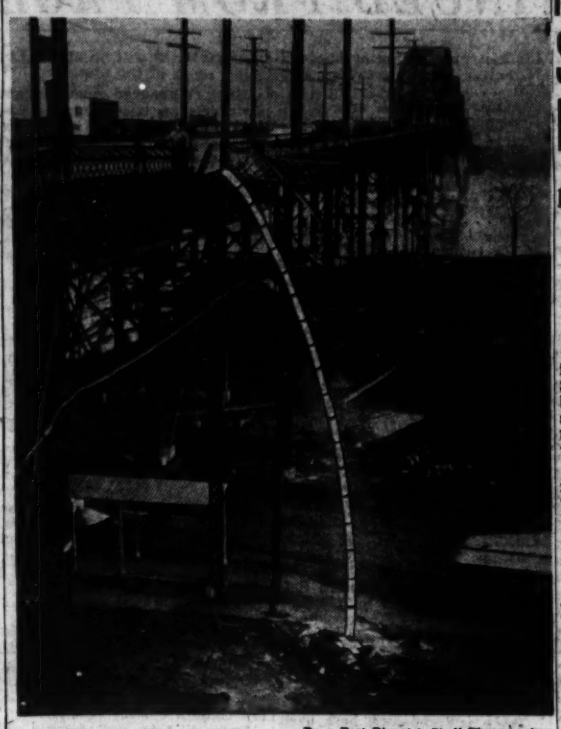

CITY HOSPITAL PATIENT KILLED IN PLUNGE FROM 4TH FLOOR

Roscoe Young, a patient at City Hospital, was killed when he plunged 40 feet from a fourth-floor window today at the hospital to a concrete area way.

Another patient in Young's room told police Young walked to a window on the east side of the building, unhooked the screen, and pushed himself out.

Young, 55 years old, lived at 1216 Park avenue. He had been a patient at the hospital since March 6 and had been operated on for hernia. No notes were found. An inquest will be held.

AUTO FALLS 50 FEET AND DRIVER LIVES

Machine Crashes Through Railing on McKinley Bridge Approach.

Robert Harden, 1426 Blair avenue, St. Louis, escaped serious injury today when the automobile he was driving crashed through a railing on the east approach of the McKinley Bridge and dropped about 50 feet to a parking lot. Harden, a Negro, is an employe of the General Steel Castings Corp., Granite City. He received chest injuries, and his legs were bruised.

The automobile, landing bottom side up, was pierced at the driver's seat by a short, steel pole. The top of the machine was crushed. Police said Harden was in a daze when they arrived and unable to give any details about the accident. They said the left front door was open, indicating he may have been thrown clear of the automobile a moment before it landed.

Five persons were injured, four seriously, yesterday when two automobiles collided at Seventy-fifth and State streets in East St. Louis.

Earl Deeg, driver of one of the automobiles, 1240 North Eighty-ninth street, East St. Louis, suffered chest and head injuries, and his wife received a fractured arm and head injuries. Other passengers in Deeg's machine were: Welborn Wessel, 1742 Illinois avenue, East St. Louis, both legs fractured and head injuries, and his wife, head and chest injuries.

John Darnell, 8316 State street, East St. Louis, was treated for a head injury which was not considered serious, police said. All five were taken to St. Mary's Hospital, East St. Louis.

GIRL, 10, HELPS FATHER IN WRITING FOR ENCYCLOPEDIA

A 10-year-old "editorial consultant" helped Edward M. Brooks, St. Louis University geophysicist, in his revision of chapters of a forthcoming children's encyclopedia.

He called in his daughter, Karena, for advice to make sure the material would be both interesting and understandable to young readers.

In chapters on the solar system and clouds, Karena had to change her father's phrase "diameter of the orbit" of a planet to "the size of the planet's path around the sun." She also substituted "how much" for "quantity" and "amount of material" for "mass."

MARSHAL CHASING SPEEDER ACCIDENTALLY SHOOTS SELF

He was admitted to St. Mary's hospital, East St. Louis.

The speeder failed to heed the red-light warning of the pursuing police automobile, Rhine said. He said the revolver was discharged when he struck it against the steering wheel.

FACT-FINDING BODY SAYS SCHOOL TAX RISE IS REQUIRED

Research Institute Reports Increase in Levy Is Needed to Offset Higher Costs.

The proposed school tax rate increase must be approved if the St. Louis Board of Education is to balance its budget and maintain a satisfactory cash balance on hand, the Governmental Research Institute said in a report issued today.

The institute, a non-profit fact-finding agency, pointed out that the board's expenditures for the next fiscal year will increase 4 per cent over the current year and that a further increase of 2.1 per cent is expected for 1954-55.

The present tax rate of $1.01 on each $100 of assessed valuation would be raised by 14 cents, if approved by voters at the April 7 election.

If voters reject this increase, the research institute's report stated, the authorized tax rate will be reduced to the 89-cent maximum which the board can levy without voter approval. This would mean an operating deficit of $3,894,000 for fiscal 1953-54 and $4,442,000 for 1954-55, it continued.

Even if the proposed increase is approved, expenditures for 1954-55 will exceed estimated receipts by about $280,000, the report said. However, it added that the board's cash balance would still be slightly above the required minimum.

The institute said the proposed increase would allow the board to increase teachers' maximum salaries by $200, to make them "comparable to those paid in most other American cities with a population of more than 500,000." Present maximum here is, on the average, $5200 a year, while it averages $5327 in 17 other large cities in the country.

The higher tax rate also is needed for prospective budget increases for pensions, textbooks, classroom equipment and for the board's part of the proposed educational television station, the report pointed out.

MALENKOV OFFERS TO SETTLE ISSUES BY AGREEMENTS

tion of a big new Ministry of Culture headed by P. K. Ponomarenko, a former member of the Communist party secritariat. It includes the former Ministry of High Education, the Committee on Art, the Ministry of Labor Reserves, the Radio Information Committee, the Ministry of Cinematography and the Chief Publishing Administration.

The merger also made Beria Minister of Internal Affairs, at the head of the old security and internal departments.

Other Appointments Ratified.

Other appointments approved by the Parliament included Marshal Georgi K. Zhukov and Marshal Alexander Vassilevsky as deputy war ministers, Marshal Alexander Sokolovsky as chief of staff of the Red army, Marshal Ivan S. Konev as chief of the Soviet land forces, and Nikolai Shvernik as chairman of the Soviet Trade Union Central Council.

Andrei A. Andreyev, veteran Soviet leader reported to have been in disfavor with the Kremlin for some time, re-emerged when the delegates elected him a member of the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet which acts for the Parliament when that body is not in session.

Malenkov's nomination as Prime Minister was put before the delegates by Beria, who termed Malenkov a "talented pupil of Lenin and a true comrade in arms of Stalin."

Malenkov, wearing his customary gray tunic without medals, spoke firmly and confidently. Regarded as one of the country's best orators, he talked fluently, without pauses.

"The Soviet people can be convinced that their cause is right, their unity is indestructible, and the Soviet Government will devote all its energy to strengthen the country, to make it prosperous culturally and materially, and to insure a free and happy life for all the people," he said.

The Parliament gave the new Premier three rising ovations lasting two minutes each during his half-hour speech.

The two houses of Parliament —the Council of the Union and the Council of Nationalists—met together at 2 p.m. and adjourned at 3:10 p.m. (6:10 a.m., St. Louis time).

DUMMY FAMILIES AWAIT BLAST AT ATOM TEST SITE

Out there, through the dining room window, is a distant fringe of mountains, blue with purple shadows in the valleys. The sun picks out the banded colors of the escarpments. Spring is greening even this desert land with life.

Across the road are a few automobiles, the sun twinkling on their glossy finish—visitors who dropped by for the day? A breeze picks up a handful of dust and spins it down the winding road.

The front dooryard is like yours . . . . except for that squat, red, steel tower over at the edge of the road, on the crossarms of which are perched strange instruments to tell scientists the facts of nuclear death.

Symbol of Death.

But the symbol of impending death and awful destruction stands down near the end of the road. See that tall tower, with the little shack atop it, framed in the view from the dining room window? That is it.

From that tower, at dawn tomorrow, a lightning swift horror will flash out and touch this home and all in it.

The explosion is set for 7:20 a.m. (St. Louis time) and will be broadcast nationally by the three major networks. (The telecast will be carried by Post-Dispatch Station KSD-TV from 7 to 7:30 a.m., and a description of the event will be broadcast by Radio Station KSD from 7:15 to 7:30. A special telecast showing the effects of the blast will be carried by KSD-TV from 3:45 to 4 p.m.)

There is foreboding here even now. There is silence which overwhelms even the shuffling feet of visiting observers.

Why, when these are only dummies, do you speak in such low voices?

They may be only mannequins. But tomorow they die, as you will die on some tomorrow if a bomb falls just a few blocks down your street.

Tomorrow, as the first light touches the high peaks behind the friendly white house, unearthly light will flash in the windows. And an instant later shards of glass will rip through the bodies of the four seated at the table as a blast strikes the home.

Consuming heat from the core of the bomb will sear the white clapboards. The crumbling pressure of the blast will hammer at the doors, shatter the windows, beat upon the walls: And ensuing fire can complete the ruin.

Only those "people" down in the cold, dank basement, smelling of fresh cement and newness like your own new home, may survive. Perhaps at Tuesday's noon they will still be sitting there in their basement bomb shelters, the woman sheltering the baby in her arms, untouched by the destruction above them.

It may be a "bomb" to the average man, but tomorrow's test object is still a "device" to Dr. Alvin C. Graves and his fellow scientists. He said neither a shell nor a bomb is being detonated. But the device, whatever its shape, will still pack a punch equivalent to 15,000 tons of TNT.

A thousand troops and 20 front-line reporters will be dug in two miles south of the tower.

Several hundred reporters and civil defense observers at News Nob, seven miles south of the explosion point, are due for shock and heat about equal to that experienced at last spring's invitational shot. Dr. Graves said the lower height of the detonation—300 feet as compared with 3500 feet in last year's plane drop—would compensate for the smaller device being used.

Dr. Graves said the blast will push against front-line soldiers and reporters with an extra pressure of one pound per square inch. The heat rise will be one calorie per square centimeter, enough to give the boys "a slight reddening of the skin—like a good sunburn, nothing more," Graves said.

The atom testers are hoping that a high overcast and breeziness will subside sufficiently to allow the trial to come off on schedule. As of last night, postponement chances were rated 50-50. If there is a postponement, the decision will come between 8 o'clock and midnight tonight.

Test for Automobiles.

Seventy automobiles and trucks are scattered among the trees within an 8000-foot radius of the shot tower. There are new cars and broken down old trucks. A few contain dummy families.

From all this, civil defense experts may learn which is safer under A-bomb attack, a home or a car.

And the Army hopes its maneuver will equip another battalion of GIs to cope with the realities of atomic warfare.

The two-mile (3500 yards) foxholes are twice as close as last year's positions. The closer trenches are being used because sheep survived in them previously.

The Atomic Energy Commission is conducting its usual biomedical studies on various animals placed in bunkers as close as 400 yards to the detonation tower. These animals include dogs, pigs, monkeys, rabbits and mice.

TITO IN LONDON AFTER FOG DELAYS SHIP FOUR HOURS

dred yards away. It flared fiercely and sent up clouds of smoke. The incident occurred against a wall a few yards from Scotland Yard.

Tito entered 10 Downing street, the Prime Minister's residence, with his hand on Churchill's shoulder. He left there a few minutes later and placed a wreath at the Cenotaph, Britain's war memorial. Watching crowds cheered and there were shouts of "Hero, Tito."

The ship in which he had traveled from Yugoslavia, the Galeb (Seagull), anchored last night 35 miles down the river and was to have cruised up starting at 8:30 a.m. (2:30 a.m., St. Louis time). During the foggy delay Tito could be seen from the air pacing the deck.

As a safety precaution, the scheduled times of his arrival and other events of his visit were kept secret. His stay will include lunch with the Queen at Buckingham Palace, as well as high-level policy talks and a round of dinners.

Extra Scotland Yard detectives have been called in from the provinces to help guard the Yugoslav dictator from possible assassination attempts by persons here who might count him an enemy—Stalinist Reds or Yugoslav royalists, for instance.

Four British destroyers and a Royal Navy torpedo boat formed a cordon around the heavily guarded Galeb last night. All other shipping was ordered to keep at least 400 yards away.

Ten bridges over the Thames here were cleared of traffic as the launch carrying Tito from the Galeb went under them, and river traffic was halted.

An escort of 13 motorcycle patrolmen, all wearing bullet-proof vests, was detailed to shepherd Tito's bullet-proof automobile as he travels about the city. The location of the house where he will stay has not been disclosed except that it is just outside London. He will travel to and from the house by a different route each time.

Police reserves patrolled last night at an anti-Tito protest meeting called by Sir Oswald Mosley's Union Movement, an outgrowth of Mosley's prewar blackshirted Fascist faction.

It has been five years now since Tito was read out of the Cominform for following a line which Moscow regarded as "too nationalistic"—meaning too independent. He still avows Marxist Communism, however.

From the lineup of top aids accompanying Tito on his first official visit to Britain, it appears certain that military, economic and political questions will be discussed. Of special concern to the West are the defense of the Balkans, the trouble resulting from Yugoslavia's dispute with Italy over Trieste and the strained relations between Belgrade and the Vatican.

Tito has been quoted as saying he had no intention of discussing Yugoslav domestic matters with Britain. There is speculation, however, that some economic or military aid may be requested.

THREE SUITS FILED TO BAR TRANSFER OF BROWNS' CLUB

he would receive from the sale of the park."

Continuing, Frick said: "I received a lot of telegrams from St. Louis, asking: 'Give us a chance to buy the ball club,' but in no instance was there one man with the necessary financial backing who signed such a telegram. If I received such a one, it would be something to take into the meeting."

Congressman Emanuel Celler (Dem.), New York, who headed congressional investigations of baseball two years ago, was reported to have let Frick know that "it would be a shame if baseball authorities stood in the way" of proposed transfers of major-league franchises.

The minority stockholders who filed suit were listed as Fred Sherman, William H. Walters, Frank Rather, Anna Fruin, Julius Meyer, George Lilienkamp and Howard Ettling.

They alleged that Bill Veeck, the Browns' president has been "wasteful and extravagant," and requested the court to enjoin him from "managing or handling" the property of the club.

"Veeck has treated, managed and used the money and property of the defendant corporation as though the same were his own money and property," the petition said.

Plaintiffs' Contention.

In seeking to prevent the transfer, the plaintiffs contend they are in danger of losing their investment "if not in whole, then a substantial part thereof."

Darst, filling his suit as mayor of the city and as an individual, used public interest as a basis for his petition.

The transfer of the baseball club would "cause irreparable harm and damage" to St. Louis and its citizens in that some 200,000 persons "will not visit the city between April 1 and Oct. 1—the period of the baseball season," Darst alleged.

He said the citizens of St. Louis "over a period of some 50 years" have acquired a "deep and abiding affection for the ball club."

He said out-of-town visitors to the baseball games spent an average of $10 each and that the income to hotels from the rental of rooms to visiting baseball teams amounted to $100,000 a season.

Veeck gave "thorough assurance at the time of purchase of 75 per cent of the stock of the defendant corporation" that the ball club would not be moved from St. Louis, Darst alleged.

James O'Sullivan, a rest-home owner, alleged in his suit that removal of the Browns would constitute a breach on contract between him and the ball club, based on his purchase of tickets for games for the 1953 season.

Sends Protest Wire.

J. Herndon Kirkland, a St. Louisan who owns luggage stores and operates travel tours, sent a telegram today to baseball officials protesting against the contemplated transfer of the Browns.

Kirkland charged that Veeck misled him and other stockholders in persuading them to let Veeck buy the major share of the Browns' stock in the summer of 1951.

"In the name of common decency and fair play I ask that you hold up the transfer of our ball club giving St. Louisans the right to buy back the Browns," Kirkland's telegram said.

"I was a stockholder in the Browns and one of a committee organized by former owner Don Barnes to persuade the many stockholders to sell their holdings to Veeck."

Kirkland charged that Veeck misled the stockholders when, at a meeting at the Racquet Club here in June 1951, he "stated to our committee he would not move the Browns, but would give us a team that would be an asset to St. Louis.

"With this thought and his promise not to move the team, I sold my stock to him and persuaded a large number of my friends to do likewise.

"I ask you again to hold up the transfer and give us an opportunity to buy back the club, allowing Veeck a profit over his purchase price should he desire not to remain here."

Alvin Griesedieck, president of Falstaff Brewing Corp., which has been broadcasting the Browns' games over a 30-station network within an 150-mile radius of St. Louis, said:

"If the Browns are taken away from St. Louis, as it appears they are about to be, it will represent a real civic loss to this city.

"It had been Falstaff's intention to broadcast the Brownie games this year."

Club Owners' Meeting.

In the meantime, American League club owners, meeting at Tampa, Fla., today, were expected to approve formally the transfer of the St. Louis baseball club.

"There is better than an even chance that the Browns will operate in Baltimore to start the 1953 season," Baseball Commissioner Frick said yesterday after a meeting of baseball officials at Bellair, Fla.

However, a hitch appeared to have developed because of the position taken by Frank Shaughnessy, president of the International League, which includes the Baltimore Orioles, a minor-league team whose name the Browns would take in the American League if the transfer is approved.

"$1,000,000 to Move Browns."

Shaughnessy, angry because the American League plans to take over his league's most valuable territory, said today "it will cost Bill Veeck $1,000,000 to move the St. Louis Browns to Baltimore."

Although owners of the American League clubs and those in the International League are expected to approve the transfer, the minor league must be awarded some sort of settlement for its lost franchise.

Veeck, after appearing for 90 minutes before the American League baseball club owners today, said: "I outlined all my problems — mostly financial. I have felt for some time that St. Louis no longer had the potential to support two major league clubs.

"My idea was to make the Browns the dominant club but I was afraid I was going to go broke in the process. The only other alternative was to move away."

Veeck said he thought there was an opportunity for establishing "great rivalries" between a Baltimore team and Washington and also between Baltimore and Philadelphia.

Another proposed baseball team transfer is awaiting approval of big-league and minor-league owners. It involves the moving of the Boston Braves of the National League to Milwaukee, Wis.

Army Denies Officers Said Funds For Ammunition Were Adequate

Requests Senate Committee to Make Correction — 'Pentagon Trying to Pass Buck,' Byrd Retorts.

WASHINGTON, March 16 (AP) — The Army today denied its officers told the Senate Armed Services Committee that Congress had made sufficient money available for an adequate supply of ammunition in Korea at all times.

The committee said Army officers had so testified. The committee statement came in an announcement that a subcommittee headed by Senator Margaret Chase Smith (Rep.), Maine, would look into reports of ammunition shortages in Korea.

Senator Byrd (Dem.), Virginia, who sparked the investigation, replied angrily that the "Pentagon is trying to pass the buck to Congress."

The Army's position was made known in a letter submitted to committee members last Thursday and made public today.

In the letter, Earl D. Johnson, acting secretary of the Army, noted the committee resolution sai dthat "officials of the Army Department have unanimously testified that defense appropriations for ammunitions, as promptly made by Congress upon request since the beginning of the Korean war, have been adequate."

He added:

"Careful review of the testimony of all the Army officials who appeared before your committee to testify in the current investigation will show clearly that the above quoted clause is unfortunate . . . .

"I know of no case where any of these Army officials testified, then or later, that, considering the continuation of the Korean operations, these funds were adequate, as stated in the aforementioned resolution.

"I therefore respectfully request that the necessary correction be made in the resolution so that it will accurately reflect the testimony of the Army officials to date before your committee."

Earlier, Senator Ferguson (Rep.), Michigan, said he has set off an investigation of reported ammunition shortages in Korea and elsewhere.

Ferguson heads the Senate appropriations subcommittee which passes on the Defense Department budget.

Both inquiries stemmed from testimony by Gen. James A. Van Fleet, retiring Korean field commander, that his frontline troops suffered serious ammunition shortages throughout the 22 months he led the United States Eighth Army there.

Ferguson said he and Chairman Bridges (Rep.), New Hampshire, of the Appropriations Committee conferred Saturday with Pentagon officials about their investigation.

Bridges, in a separate interview, said "the military has received every cent they asked for and if there are ammunition shortages then it has been a matter of mishandling."

Ferguson said he had asked Army officials to give his subcommittee copies of "every ammunition contract since the Korean war started."

"They tell us there have been nearly 10,000 contracts," he said.

Ferguson said his group will determine whether there actually were shortages, who was responsible, and what corrective steps have been taken.

1,300,000 Italians Unemployed.

ROME, March 16 (AP) — The government's central bureau of statistics said today Italy's unemployed now total 1,300,000 and not 2,000,000, the figure generally cited since the end of the war.

SOVIET COMMANDER IN GERMANY ENDS ROAD SLOWDOWN

BERLIN, March 16 (UP)—Gen. Vassily I. Chuikov, Soviet commander in Germany, intervened personally today to end a Communist slowdown which had halted hundreds of trucks on the highway to West Germany.

Chuikov visited the Soviet road barricades at Babelsberg, just outside Berlin, on his way to American headquarters where he paid a visit to Dr. James B. Conant, new United States High Commissioner for Germany.

At Babelsberg Chuikov found 200 Berlin-bound trucks and 100 west-bound trucks stopped by a Communist inspection slowdown. He inquired about the line and ordered the trucks cleared immediately.

Conant told reporters Chuikov's visit was purely a courtesy call. There was, he said, no discussion of the recent shooting down of Western planes or of any other sources of tension.

VOTES TO EXTEND FREE MAIL RIGHTS OF KOREA SERVICE MEN

WASHINGTON, March 16 (UP) —The Senate today passed and sent to the White House a bill to continue free mailing privileges for service men in Korea.

It applies to service men on active duty in Korea or any other "combat zone" designated by the President, and to those hospitalized outside the United States as a result of service in such areas.

GENE LOCKHART TARDY, DAUGHTER OUT-AD-LIBS HIM

Gene Lockhart, star of "Our Town," put in some fast ad-libbing when he arrived late for a performance last night at the Empress Theater, but his daughter got in the final squelch.

Lockhart, who forget that curtain time was 7:30 p.m., an hour earlier than weekday performances, came bustling in at about 8 o'clock — went immediately onstage to placate the audience with a spur-of-the-moment story about being locked up at the Zoo.

The audience applauded heartily and the genial actor, apologizing for his lateness, praised St. Louis and it audiences, said how happy he was and asked rhetorically, "What more does a man need?"

"Punctuality," stage-whispered daughter June from the wings, and the audience applauded even harder.

FREIGHT DRIVERS' LOCAL APPROVES MERGER PLAN

A proposed reorganization of the AFL Teamsters' Union in St. Louis to make all freight truck drivers members of one local was approved yesterday by about 3000 members of Local 632, one of the two organizations involved.

Thomas E. Flynn of Washington, international representative who came here about 10 days ago to investigate and streamline local operations, said the vote was unanimous. He will seek approval of the other union, Local 600, at a meeting at 8 o'clock tonight at Kiel Auditorium.

Flynn, acting as trustee for the two locals, said the reorganization would result in a more effective union since aims and working conditions of all truck drivers are similar.

The membership of Local 632 previously has been confined to over-the-road drivers and Local 600 has included city freight drivers, drivers of delivery trucks and platform men.

Flynn has proposed that all drivers who handle freight and all platform men become members of Local 632, giving this local a total membership of about 5000. Local 600, which now represents some 3000 men, would retain all drivers not handling freight and some miscellaneous classifications.

Some truck drivers now belonging to Local 688, a teamsters' union representing warehouse workers, would be shifted to Local 600, Flynn said.

TAFT SAYS 'VOICE' NEEDS REBUILDING 'FROM SCRATCH'

Praises McCarthy for 'Very Constructive Work' in His Inquiry on Agency.

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 16—Senator Taft (Rep.), Ohio, praised Senator McCarthy (Rep.) Wisconsin, yesterday for "very constructive" work in his investigation of the Voice of America. Taft said he felt the agency should be reorganized "from scratch."

The Senate Republican leader made the comment on the CBS television show "Man of the Week."

Asked for comment on the activities of McCarthy as head of the Senate Permanent Investigating subcommittee, Taft said he considered them "very constructive."

Criticizes Programs.

"If I had come in new to this thing," Taft said, "I think I'd have fired everyone in the Voice of America setup. I have never felt that their tone was right, that their approach to the problem was right, or that their presentation of America to foreigners was right. And they certainly were full of fellow-travelers."

Asked if he would urge Secretary of State John Foster Dulles to get rid of everyone in the agency, Taft replied: "That's what I'd tell him."

"It may be too extreme a viewpoint," the Senator said, "but I would clean it out and begin all over again from scratch."

Mundt Disagrees.

Taking issue with Taft, Senator Mundt (Rep.), South Dakota, said today most of the Voice's employes are "loyal, hard-working people, and it would be a mistake to fire them all in a drastic housecleaning.

As one of the original congressional sponsors of the Voice, and a member of the Senate subcommittee now investigating its operations, Mundt said he agrees with Taft that a shake-up in the agency is called for to weed out any disloyal or incompetent personnel. But he said:

"I certainly do not feel that by any means all of the Voice staff is either unfit or unfaithful to our American concept. I believe that the majority of Voice employes are loyal, hard-working Americans."

Mundt said he also thinks that "on balance" the Voice of America has "done more good than harm," even under the Democratic Administration, in carrying America's message to the world.

In reply to other queries on the telecast, Taft said that, while he hadn't made up his mind, he would think the Voice should stick to presentation of news, rather than propaganda, and that he felt the agency should be removed from the State Department.

Taft emphasized that the Voice should not be compared with the department, which is staffed by career diplomats, while the Voice, he said, is presently organized on a "Truman basis."

McCarthy said Saturday he expects the Voice will emerge as "the best of all" the Government's propaganda programs by the time his subcommittee has investigated the four other branches of the International Information Administration. He predicted "tremendous pressure" in Congress to slash appropriations for the Voice, but said he would oppose drastic cuts.

Fulbright Urges Curtailment.

However, Senator Fulbright (Dem.), Arkansas, said today Voice broadcasts have long been overemphasized and should be curtailed in favor of other Government efforts to counter Communist propaganda.

The Voice's shortwave broadcasts from this country, other than those to nations behind the Iron Curtain, "could be greatly reduced if not cut out altogether," he said.

McCarthy's subcommittee today heard testimony by an engineer that in his opinion the Voice wasted $850,000 on a contract held by his firm in building its transmitter towers.

Albert C. Veldhuis said his firm, the Wind Turbine Co. of Westchester, Pa., received a contract in August 1950 to build "curtain" antennas for Voice transmitters costing $1,700,000 and declared "a possible saving of at least 50 per cent could have been achieved" with different designing.

VISHINSKY APPLIES FOR VISAS TO RETURN TO U.S. FOR U.N.

MOSCOW, March 16 (UP) — Andrei Y. Vishinsky, just back from New York, applied for passport visas today so he can return to the United States to take up his new post of permanent Russian delegate to the United Nations.

Vishinsky came back to Moscow after Stalin's death and the announcement of his own replacement as Foreign Minister by Vyacheslav M. Molotov. He asked today for French and American visas so he can return to the current U.N. General Assembly meeting.

MAO REPORTED PLANNING TRIP TO MOSCOW SOON

TAIPEH, March 16 (AP)—A report that Red China's boss Mao Tse-tung will leave for Moscow before the end of this month to confer with the new Soviet Prime Minister, Georgi M. Malenkov, was published Sunday by the China Union Press.

The Nationalist news agency which claims underground contacts on the Red China mainland said arrangements for the visit were being made by Premier Chou En-lai who went to Moscow to attend the funeral of Joseph Stalin. Chou has not been reported back in Peiping as yet.

2 HURT IN FIGHT OVER FIRE

A fight over who was responsible for starting a fire that caused $10 damage to a mattress resulted in minor injuries yesterday to Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Johnson, 4564 Washington avenue.

Firemen said the fire was caused by careless smoking in bed. After they had left, Johnson, a cook, hit his wife with a broomstick, and she cut him in the back and right arm with a knife, police said. The Johnsons, Negroes, were treated at Homer G. Phillips Hospital and charged with peace disturbance.

The STIFEL · SCOPE
By CARL C. STIFEL
Republican Candidate for Mayor of St. Louis

St. Louis Needs A Mayor Who Knows How To Solve Deficits

WHEN MY father died, I was 26 years old. My inheritance consisted of over $400,000 in claims against his estate. I was the sole support for my younger sister and widowed mother. Friends advised me to abandon the estate to the creditors. This would have entailed a heavy loss to those who knew and trusted my father. So I resolved to pay them off in full, as my father himself would have done, had he lived.

In all humility, I turned to Divine Providence for help and the creditors were paid off in 7 years. Of course it also required planning, good management and business ability. And that was not the only time I have been called upon to help pull organizations out of the "red."

I know the value of long-range planning and the wisdom of economy. Many were the times I wore my late father's altered suits in order to save money and regain business health. Yes, I started in business life by inheriting a deficit. I pride myself on my experience in pulling operations from the dangers of mismanagement and decay.

I CAN DO IT AGAIN

As your Mayor, this will require action in many different phases of our city government. I plan to discuss my plans with you in this column from day to day. It will appear alternately in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

I am not a professional politician but a business man. First, let's look at the record. The record shows that St. Louis is in a tailspin, heading downward at a rapid rate. Not very much has been done during the last 4 years by the Democrats in the City Hall to get our municipal affairs under control.

Among first things is to put St. Louis on a sound financial basis. I understand our deficit runs into millions of dollars. We must eliminate our deficit and learn to live within our income.

I am for a new City Charter to streamline our city government. Our present charter was adopted in 1914. It was a good charter then but times have changed. This new Charter would bring about more efficient service, cut taxes, stop waste and inefficiency. As Mayor, my first concern would be to get the city on a sound economy. A new Charter is the first necessary step in the city's development.

A Long-range Financial Plan, which a new Charter would make possible, is the only way out of this Slough of Despond. In my business operations I am not accustomed to stumbling around in the dark without knowing where I am going. As an engineer, I never start to build anything without a carefully drawn set of plans covering every step.

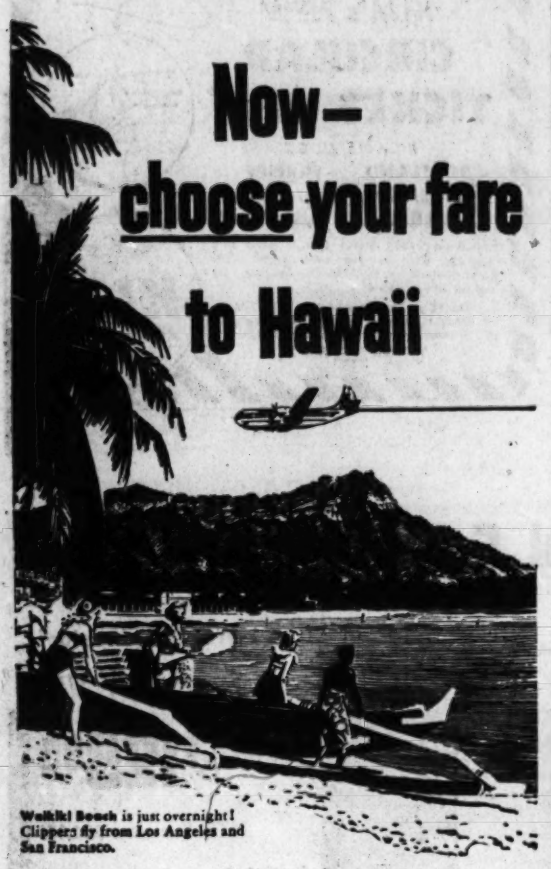

As your Mayor, this would be my starting point. To modernize the city government and to draw up a set of financial plans.

Read this column in the GLOBE-DEMOCRAT tomorrow. I will talk with you about our other municipal problems and my plans for a new and better St. Louis.

ALLIED PLANES SMASH LONG RED TRUCK CONVOY

Bombers Seal 150 Vehicles on Narrow Road—Destroy or Damage More Than 90.

SEOUL, March 16 (UP)—American and Australian fighter-bombers turned a mountain road into a death trap for Communist supply trucks today in the biggest single blow against Red vehicles in months.

Red trucks were strung along a five-mile stretch of road on the east coast as Meteors, Thunderjets and Marine Pantherjets swooped down on the convoy with bombs and bullets.

At the same time, other Thunderjets set a vital Communist rail center afire while Sabre jets flying protective cover knocked down one Communist MIG-15.

Meteors Open Attack.

Australian Meteors opened the assault on the Red convoy on a steep mountain road leading down onto the plain surrounding the east coast port of Wonsan.

Meteors first hit both ends of the long lines of trucks. The exploding, burning vehicles sealed off the escape for the others.

Then came other Meteors, Thunderjets and Pantherjets. Attacking at dangerously low altitudes in the mountainous terrain, the U.N. warplanes pounded the convoy. Some trucks tried to escape, but they could not pass or turn around.

Returning pilots said they left burning wreckage strewn over five miles of road. Smoke clouds hung over the area for hours. Preliminary estimates said more than 90 trucks were destroyed and many damaged.

Rail Yard Bombed.

Twenty-eight F-84 Thunderjets created havoc in the Red freight yard southeast of Chongju, destroying 17 box cars believed filled with war materiel and touching off four large explosions.

These raids followed attacks by 18 B-29 Superfortresses on two Red supply and troop centers near the North Korean capital of Pyongyang.

Twelve B-29s bombed an installation at Taepyongoe, while six others hit an area at Sinhung.

An Eighth Army officer said ground action showed a "marked increase" last night and early today.

South Korean infantrymen of the Ninth ROK Division turned back two sharp attacks against an outpost on Rocky Point on Sniper Ridge, as an American patrol fought a bitter battle with Chinese Communists in no-man's land.

United Nations patrols and artillery killed about 200 Red soldiers along the front yesterday. Allied big guns killed or wounded 131 in the eastern sector alone.

The Eighth Army reported Allied tanks and artillery ripped into Red positions with telling effect last week. A weekly report showed 845 Red bunkers destroyed or damaged and 740 Communist gun positions smashed.

Red Radio Says U.N. Is 'Tensing Up' Korean Front.

The Red broadcast said new Allied troops dispositions have been made along the whole battle line.

The broadcast also asserted large quantities of ammunition and military supplies have been sent by ships and planes to islands off both coasts. It added warships have appeared off the Korean coasts in large number "and have constantly engaged in amphibious warfare and anti-aircraft exercises."

Peiping ended with its familiar boast that United States plans for "a new military adventure" are doomed to failure.

1,000,000 VOTES REPORTED CAST IN COLOMBIA ELECTIONS

BOGOTA, March 16 (AP)—The pro-government newspaper El Siglo said today more than 1,000,000 Colombians voted in yesterday's one-party congressional elections. Nearly 2,000,000 are registered.

Only the ruling Conservative party put up candidates for 76 seats. The opposition Liberal party and dissident Conservatives abstained.

For the second day the anti-government Conservative newspaper Diario de Colombia failed to appear. Marco Alzate Avendano, one of the editors, said censorship officials would permit the newspaper to carry only official figures, and that an editorial and other material had been censored.

STRONG RED ATTACKS SMASHED IN INDOCHINA

Reinforced French-Vietnamese Troops Stop Vietminh Near Hue.

SAIGON, Indochina, March 16 (AP)—French-Vietnamese troops have smashed a series of strong Vietminh attacks six miles northwest of the ancient Annamese capital of Hue, killing 400 of the enemy and capturing 108.

The French high command said the Communist-led Vietminh attacked a series of Vietnamese-manned posts three days ago with two regular battalions of soldiers. French-Vietnamese reinforcements were rushed to the area, aided by amphibious landings in the river near Hue and heavy artillery fire and air bombing.

The Vietminh fled in disorder from the villages and the French said all their attempts to reorganize and renew the assaults were smashed early yesterday.

The French said the Vietminh objective apparently was to try to shatter French-Vietnamese posts defending rice fields around Hue and score "prestige success," after a long lull in the fighting zones of central Viet Nam.

Meanwhile, Viet Nam security agents claimed to have smashed a Communist rebel spy ring which they said had been operating in cities and ports where United States military aid shipments are being unloaded. Agents of the spy ring were jailed in Saigon, Haiphong and Hanoi.

NEW YORK CITY WELCOMES MAYOR OF WEST BERLIN

Ernst Reuter Says Europe's New Tyrant Will Have Downfall Like Hitler.

NEW YORK, March 16 (AP)—City Hall ceremonies today gave an official welcome to West Berlin Mayor Ernst Reuter, who declared Europe's new tyrant—like Hitler—will fall.

"We will stand fast," he said in an address. We have seen the downfall of the Hitler regime. We will see the downfall of others, too. That will come."

Reuter, whose divided city lies in the heart of Red-ruled East Germany, pledged that "you can rely on the people of Berlin" to fight for freedom, if need be.

"The epople of Berlin have made up their mind," he said. "They will defend their liberty."

New York Mayor Vincent Impellitteri presented Reuter with a scroll, citing him for his "struggle with Communist terror" and for providing sanctuary in West Berlin for anti-Communist refugees.

Yesterday, Reuter said he thought Red attacks on British and American planes apparently were a Soviet effort to "show their presence."

"How far they will go, I do not know," he added. "But I do not think they will go to a war."

Reuter arrived at Idlewild Airport for a two-week speaking tour for the International Rescue Committee's $1,000,000 campaign to help refugees in the Western zone of Germany. He plans to see President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles Friday.

Commenting on the death of Soviet Premier Joseph Stalin and the ascension of Georgi Malenkov, Reuter told newspaper men: "The reaction by the people in Germany was that they have some hope. I don't know if this is right or wrong. But they feel that something will change. Certainly, we are on the eve of a new era. But how it will turn out, we do not know."

The mayor said he plans to urge Eisenhower to continue mutual security financial aid to German industry for the next three or four years. Such help reached $65,000,000 last year.

FAROUK ASKS WIFE TO RETURN TO HIM IN 'OPEN LETTER'

ROME, March 16 (UP)—Former King Farouk of Egypt, in an open letter to his wife Narriman printed in a Rome daily newspaperd, appealed to her today "to come back to me."

Farouk apologized to his 19-year-old wife for not having gone to Rome airport to see her off when she flew to Switzerland last week. He said, "I am certain I should not have been able to control my nerves."

"Oh Narriman, whatever the so-called re-makers of Egypt may say or do, remember that I am and shall always be happy, whenever you have the courage to come back to me," Farouk's letter said.

Farouk charged three days ago Egyptian Premier Mohammed Naguib had broken up his marriage by exerting pressure on the ex-King's mother-in-law, Mrs. Assila Sadek. In his letter, Farouk continued his attack on his mother-in-law, calling her a "vain woman."

5 DOGS DAMAGE APARTMENT, ONE BITES OFFICER'S LEG

John Wilkinson, officer of the Humane Society of Missouri, was bitten on the right leg yesterday by one of five stray dogs which damaged the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. James Davis, 1016 South Ninth street, while they were visiting in Arkansas. The dog which bit Wilkinson was described as a "vicious" part chow. It will be kept under observation to determine whether it has rabies.

The dogs entered the apartment through an open door, Wilkinson said, and then gnawed chairs, clawed the television set and tore covers from the bed.

Solan Lott, a neighbor of the Davis's, heard the growls and barks of the dogs as they raced about the apartment. When he opened the door to investigate, the part chow ripped his trousers leg, and Lott retreated to place a call to the Humane Society.

SENTENCED IN CHICAGO ON PETTY LARCENY CHARGE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, March 16—Doyle W. Moore of St. Louis, an ex-convict, was sentenced here today to a year in the Chicago House of Correction on a charge of petty larceny.

Moore, 24 years old, was arrested last Saturday, a day after his release from the Missouri State Penitentiary at Jefferson City. Mrs. Isabel Martin accused him of thrusting a cigarette lighter shaped like a pistol into her parked automobile and demanding $10. He denied the charge in felony court.

Moore, who gave an address in the 1300 block of North Market street, was sentenced in circuit court at St. Louis Dec. 17, 1951, to two years in the state penitentiary on two burglary and larceny charges.

MASS GRAVE REPORTED FOUND AT BUCHENWALD; 700 BODIES

BERLIN, March 16 (AP)—A mass grave containing almost 700 bodies has been found near the old concentration camp at Buchenwald, the West Berlin newspaper Telegraf said yesterday.

The camp was founded by the Nazis and later used by the Communists.

Children playing in the area discovered the grave, the paper said, and Communist police have cordoned off the region.

URGES MARSHALL STATE SCHOOL HAVE NEW HEAD

Dr. Gildea Says Superintendent Should Push Rehabilitation, Not Merely Care.

By HERBERT A. TRASK
State Political Correspondent

JEFFERSON CITY, March 16—Details of the findings leading to a recommendation that Dr. R. P. C. Wilson, superintendent of the Missouri State School for epileptics and the feeble-minded at Marshall, be replaced by a man more concerned with the rehabilitation than custodial care of patients, were made public today.

The recommendation had been made by Dr. Edwin F. Gildea, head of the department of neuropsychiatry, Washington University School of Medicine, in a report on his inspection of the institution March 4, during a surprise visit to the hospital with a house appropriations subcommittee.

On the basis of his findings, the subcommittee denounced "deplorable" conditions in the institutions, and the Republican-controlled house appropriations committee called on Democratic Gov. Phil M. Donnelly to oust Dr. Wilson.

Describes Doctor's Beliefs.

Dr. Gildea characterized the 76-year-old Dr. Wilson as "an old-fashioned physician who believes that custodial care is the only sensible way to handle the feebleminded and epileptics."

He told the subcommittee much can be done in the training and rehabilitation of young people with feeble-minded or borderline intelligence.

"The committee is correct in recognizing that Dr. Wilson is unsympathetic and probably could not carry out a rehabilitation program for these young people," Dr. Gildea declared.

"He also is unwilling to release young women even though they are competent to earn their own living outside of the institution. He is in effect keeping these young people in an institution in order to have cheap labor."

Adequate Program Lacking.

The lack of an adequate program for the discharge of patients is one of the chief defects of the Marshall hospital, Dr. Gildea asserted.

Out of seven patients examined at the institution, he reported that at least four could earn their livings in the community and stay out of trouble, if they had some form of supervision.

"A new superintendent should be appointed who is more concerned with the rehabilitation and discharge of patients than he is with custodial care," Dr. Gildea declared.

"In order to introduce this rehabilitation program and to arrange for the discharged and placement of improved patients, substntially larger appropriations will be necessary."

He also recommended that at least one psychologist be employed by the Marshall hospital for the re-examination of borderline patients. He reported that in some cases patients have not been re-examined for 10 or 20 years.

A Senate investigating committee, which held a four-hour hearing at the institution last Friday is expected to report later this week that it could find no justification for the House subcommittee charges. The Senate group was created by the Democratic-controlled Senate to investigate the House charges, amid cries of "whitewash."

Gov. Donnelly has taken no action in regard to the demand that Dr. Wilson be ousted.

COUNTY COUNCIL TO BE URGED TO ACT ON WEISS AIRPORT

Acquisition and development of Weiss Airport on U.S. Highway 66 west of the Meramec river as a county municipal airport, will be urged before the St. Louis County Council Wednesday by A. Paul Vance, chairman of the St. Louis chapter, National Aeronautics Association, Vance said today.

Following a conference with County Planning Director M. Eugene Baughman, Vance said he would ask that "immediate attention" be given the airport proposal. He recalled that the Civil Aeronautics Administration's report of last January recommended that Weiss Airport be developed into "a supplemental municipal airport of ultimate trunk-service type and immediate development into a feeder-type airport."

Vance said he would ask the county's financial committee to study the matter of airport acquisition and development. In is report, the CAA said Weiss Airport could be expanded to accommodate runways up to 6000 feet long.

The estate of Mrs. Emilie Winkelmeyer, widow of Christopher Winkelmeyer, a brewery operator, was valued at $173,497 in an inventory filed today in probate court. Mrs. Winkelmeyer, 94 years old, died Jan. 18 at Deaconess Hospital.

Largest item listed was bonds with a market value of $97,551. Stocks totaled $27,740 and cash totaled $27,336. Her will, filed previously, provided for dividing the estate equally among her six grandchildren, after specific bequests of $1500 to charity and $2000 to friends.

Mrs. Winkelmeyer's home at 4585 Pine boulevard and its furnishings were left to her son, Edwin J. Winkelmeyer and three daughters, Mrs. James B. Edgar, Mrs. Fred Gerber and Mrs. Louis Masek. When Mrs. Winkelmeyer's husband died in 1934, he left an estate valued at $841,276 in trust to his wife with the provision it be equally divided among their four children after her death

New Simplified Supply Setup For Armed Services Described

Adm. Fowler Testifies Single Catalogue Is Being Written Under Law Designed to Eliminate Waste.

WASHINGTON, March 16 (AP)—The chief of the Defense Supply Agency said today he has developed an effective organization to simplify and standardize the supply system of the Armed Services.

R. Adm. J. W. Fowler, retired, head of the supply project, told a House subcommittee his agency is rapidly acquiring an adequate staff to carry out a law directing the Defense Department to write a single catalogue for all the millions of items which the armed services use in common.

The Defense Supply Management Agency headed by Fowler was set up under the Secretary of Defense to carry out the law passed by the last Congress.

Fowler was summoned before the Armed Services subcommittee to answer accusations that he is not doing what Congress ordered.

"This subcommittee means business," Chairman Hess (Rep.), Ohio, asserted at the opening of the hearing.

The Defense Cataloguing and Standardization Act, he said, represents one of the largest potential areas for elimination of waste.

Fowler said the basic catologuing steps, such as classification, are substantially completed and his agency now is able to shift from mere identification of unrelated items to concentration on completing the identification of groups and classes of items.

"In this way," he said, "it is possible to publish sections of the catalogue and secure the early benefits from its use."

The food section, the first of several projected, was completed last November, Fowler said. It contains, he added, 1193 items compared to 2035 before. About 17 per cent of the items were eliminated as duplicates or obsolete, he said, adding that the others were dropped through elimination of certain items which could be cut out without replacement.

Fowler said there was room for improvement in the first catalogue section, and "we expect to show improvement in each succeeding product as our experience grows."

This food catalogue, although imperfect, will be adopted by all the Armed Services July 1, Fowler said.

Congress said millions of dollars are being wasted because the services now have duplicating catalogues which are expensive to maintain and confusing to use.

HARRIMAN CALLS MALENKOV 'CRUEL, SADISTIC MAN'

NEW YORK, March 16 (AP)—Averell Harriman, former United States Ambassador to Moscow, said last night that Russian premier Georgi Malenkov impressed him as "one of the most cruel, sadistic men I met there."

"I think there is trouble ahead," Harriman added on a Columbia Broadcasting System television program, "See It Now."

At the end of the program newspaper men asked Harriman to explain his "trouble ahead" reference.

Harriman replied that he meant that Malenkov is "the sort of man" whose rule might lead to internal difficulties in Russia and that these difficulties in turn might lead to "misadventures abroad."

WESTERN LIFE SHOWS CONTINUED LEADERSHIP IN HOME STATE PRODUCTION
Year after year the volume of new business written by the Western Life Insurance Company in its home state has exceeded the volume written by the great majority of the companies operating in Missouri. The latest official report of the Missouri Insurance Department shows that in 1951 WESTERN LIFE increased its relative standing by outselling 117 other companies in volume of ordinary insurance sold in the state during that year, out of 147 companies operating in Missouri.
Of 20 companies with home offices in Missouri, WESTERN LIFE in 1951 outsold all but 5.

RED CROSS HELPS SAVE MOTHER FROM MENTAL CRACK-UP

Through the intercession of the Red Cross, a young mother was saved from mental breakdown and a family held together, it is reported in one of a series of case histories prepared for use in the current fund drive.

Shortly after Tom left the United States on an Army transport bound for the Far East, Tom's wife and his 15-month-old son were forced to move in with his mother. When it developed that Tom's mother was ill with cancer, the burden of caring for the entire family fell on Tom's young wife.

As time went on she became more and more depressed until she reached the breaking point. "I just don't care about anything more," she cried hysterically. When a Red Cross worker learned she had threatened suicide, Tom's commander was notified and Tom was granted an early discharge to return to the United States to save his wife and family from collapse.

Stevenson Briefed on Fighting In Korea by Allied Commanders —Associated Press Radiophoto.

ADLAI STEVENSON (right) being welcomed to Seoul by SYNGMAN RHEE, President of Korea. Looking on is WILLIAM ATWOOD, magazine editor who is accompanying the former Democratic presidential nominee on his world tour. Meeting was in the nature of a college reunion, since all three are graduates of Princeton University.

Meets With South Korean President Rhee—Flag-Waving Seoul Crowds Cheer Democratic Leader.

The 77-year-old ROK chief long has advocated a drive to the Yalu river border of Red Manchuria.

Stevenson called on Rhee immediately after his arrival by air from Pusan. On the way from the airfield to the presidential mansion, he received a rousing welcome from thousands of cheering, flag-waving Koreans, most of them school children.

Large banners strung across Seoul's main avenues read "Drive away Chinese Reds," "Advance north for unification of Korea" and "Strengthen ROK forces."

These were the same banners that flew during the three-day visit of Gen. Eisenhower last December.

Stevenson also was greeted with new banners reading: "Welcome Honorable Adlai Stevenson to Korea," and "We regard Mr. Adlai Stevenson forever as our friend."

On his third busy day in Korea, Stevenson also toured a huge Korean army training base at Kwangju in South Korea, took a close look at the American Sabre jet fighters and met the leading American jet ace, Col. Royal N. Baker of McKinney, Tex.

Stevenson appeared more deeply impressed with the ROK training program than anything else he has seen or heard in Japan or Korea. He expressed the belief that Asia can well defend itself against Communist aggression if the Western world furnishes arms and training and if Asians develop the will to defend themselves.

At an air base near here, Stevenson received a briefing on the MIG-killing tactics of the United States Sabres.

Later at Eighth Army headquarters he was given a briefing on the ground fighting by Lt. Gen. Maxwell Taylor's staff officers.

Stevenson and Taylor were guests at a dinner given by Rhee and his Austrian-born wife.

Yesterday, Stevenson toured a Communist prisoner of war camp on Cheju Island and was serenaded by anti-Communist prisoners playing makeshift drums and bugles.

Tomorrow, he will tour the battlefront. Wednesday he will top his five-day visit with a trip to a United States aircraft carrier in Korean waters. He will return to Japan Wednesday and leave for Formosa the following day.

SENATE GROUP WILL HOLD NEW HEARINGS ON HAWAII BILL

WASHINGTON, March 16 (AP)—The Senate Interior Committee voted today to have more hearings on Hawaii statehood before acting on the House-passed bill to make the territory a state.

Chairman Butler (Rep.), Nebraska, said the hearing would start tomorrow. A representative of the Department of Defense and several other Government witnesses will be asked to express their views on the question of the Hawaii boundary line.

Butler predicted the committee will act on the question of submerged lands, commonly called oil tidelands, before it votes on the statehood issue.

Butler told reporters discussion of the motion in closed-door committee session brought agreement that it "did not tie the Hawaii statehood bill to the Alaska statehood bill."

OVER 21,000,000 TV SETS MADE IN U.S. SINCE 1946

WASHINGTON, March 16 (AP)—An industry survey today showed that slightly more than 21,800,000 television sets were shipped from factories to dealers throughout the country from 1946—when postwar production was resumed—through the end of 1952.

The Radio-Television Manufacturers' Association, which compiled the figures, said they were not intended to reflect the total sets in use, in view of retirement of obsolete sets, some exports, and unsold sets.

However, other industry sources are currently estimating that more than 21,000,000 receivers are now in actual use, this of course including production and purchases since the start of 1953. Total TV set production for 1952 was 6,096,279 units.

BUSINESS GROUP BACKS G.O.P. ON CREDIT POLICIES

Says 'Country Must Now Place Great Reliance on Monetary Authorities.'

WASHINGTON, March 16 (AP) —The Committee for Economic Development, a business men's research organization, yesterday swung strongly behind the credit policies advocated by the Eisenhower Administration.

The committee is a non-partisan organization which has long opposed "easy money" policies and favored "hard money" and indirect controls policies exemplified in the programs of the new Republican government. Several former C.E.D. members are now in the Government, including the top treasury men—Secretary Humphrey and Under Secretary Marion Folsom.

The current C.E.D. report, on "flexible monetary policy," was drawn up by a subcommittee of such prominent business men and economists as J. Cameron Thomson, president of Northwest Bancorporation of Minneapolis; Thomas B. McCabe, former chairman of the Federal Reserve Board who is now president of Scott Paper Co., at Chester, Pa.; Beardsly Ruml, New York economist; Theodore Yntema, vice president for finance of Ford Motor Co., Dearborn, Mich., and Sumner Schlicter, Harvard University economist.

The report said that, in uncertain conomic times, "the country must place great reliance upon the monetary authorities." Monetary policy, fiscal policy and debt management should work together to "contribute to the goal of economic stability," it said.

This, and the report's program for achieving it, jibe with announced administration economic policies. However, the C.E.D. presented its report without mention of present or past administration policies.

The C.E.D. said:

"Prevention of the twin evils of deflation and inflation is the gravest and most urgent domestic economic task."

It went on to describe monetary policy as management of the money supply, and said the Federal Reserve System, charged with regulating money, has adequate personnel and authority for its task.

The Federal Reserve can increase or decrease the money supply—thereby making credit easier or harder to get and business easier or harder to operate. The reserve system, headed by William McChesney Martin Jr., a former St. Louisan, as chairman and six other board members, does this by:

1. Increasing or lowering the proportion of reserves banks must have (presently $100 of reserves to each $600 of deposits or $500 of loans the stiffest requirement allowed by the law).

2. Lending money to banks or requiring that banks pay outstanding Federal Reserve loans, and lowering or raising the interest rate on its loans to banks. Banks are now more heavily in debt to the Federal Reserve than since 1921, and the reserve system recently increased its interest rate half a point, to 2 per cent.

3. Selling or buying government securities held by banks. When the Reserve System buys securities from banks it adds the purchase price to their reserves. When it sells, it substracts the purchase price. Thus it increases or decreases banks' power to lend.

The C.E.D. report praised present Federal Reserve policy of tightening the money market by keeping reserve requirements high, purchasing bank securities cautiously and boosting its interest rate.

It said "pegging of (government security) prices or interest rates is definitely no part" of the reserve system's duty to preserve an orderly and stable economy.

The C.E.D. report added:

"The prestige of the Reserve System's board of governors could be enhanced by reducing membership from seven to five and raising salaries to cabinet level.

"A federal loan council consisting of heads of government agencies that have to do with credit, (should) be established to co-ordinate government policies in making and guaranteeing loans."

U.S. Unprepared for Atomic Attack, Senator Johnson Charges

Texan Demands People Be Given Facts on How Near Russian War Machine Is to 'Ready Stage.'

WASHINGTON, March 16 (AP) — Senator Lyndon B. Johnson (Dem.), Texas, said last night there is "dismaying evidence" that this country is unprepared to meet a possible atomic attack by Russia.

Johnson, Democratic Senate leader and former chairman of the watchdog Preparedness subcommittee, demanded that the people be given the facts on "how near the ready stage the Russian military machine is."

"We don't even know how near the ready stage our own military machine is," the Senator said in a statement transcribed for radio broadcast in Texas.

Johnson's criticism recalled a similar blast last week by Senator Symington (Dem.), Missouri, former Air Secretary in the Truman Administration.

Both Symington and Johnson are members of the Senate Armed Services Committee.

Symington said that if the people knew the facts regarding comparative Russian and United States preparedness they would demand a wholesale shake-up in the Defense Department.

Johnson did not go this far but he said his investigations of preparedness showed "that our defense chiefs were not getting the job done." He added: "Our subcommittee's investigations revealed waste, inefficiency—even graft—in our defense program."

Some corrections have been made, he said, "but much—very much—remains to be done."

"Up to now we have had to pin our hopes in the air on the B-36 bomber—although the plane has been shown to be not merely obsolescent but obsolete," he said.

Johnson recalled the shooting down of United States and British aircraft by Red planes in Europe last week.

"There seems no doubt that in each case the action was deliberate and unprovoked," he said. "Both the United States Government and the British Government take a grave view of these assaults."

TWO CHILDREN BURNED TO DEATH, ONE SAVED

Two small children were burned to death last night when their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Willie Thirdkill, Negroes, left them alone in their flat at 1929A (rear) Carr street. A passerby rescued a third child.

Fred Davis, a Negro, 1106 North Twentieth street, saw smoke pouring from the windows, ran up an outside stairway and carried the oldest child, Barbara Jean, 4 years old, to safety. He pulled the hook of a fire alarm box and returned to save any others that might be inside, but dense smoke kept him from entering.

Firemen found the bodies of Dorothy Jean, 3, and Patricia Ann, 13 months, inside the flat. Damage was estimated at $100 to the building and $200 to its contents.

Mrs. Thirdkill had gone out to a nearby grocery and her husband was on another errand at the time. Barbara Jean told firemen the blaze started with a flash of fire from a coal heating stove. She said she tried unsuccessfully to put out the flames with water.

DIES OF BURNS FROM FIRE IN HIS BED IN HOTEL ROOM

Paul Janecko, an old-age pensioner, died at City Hospital yesterday of burns suffered Feb. 21 in a fire in his room at the Stag-Pacific Hotel, 5 North Ninth street.

Firemen found Janecko on a burning bed when they broke into his third-floor room. He was unable to make a statement. He was 70 years old.

$183 Filling Station Burglary.

Theft of $183 in cash and tires, tools and other merchandise valued at $434 from a gasoline filling station at 3546 Market street, was reported to police yesterday by the attendant, Harvey Ranes, 2220 Oregon avenue. He said the back door had been broken open.

SINGER ANITA O'DAY HELD ON NARCOTIC CHARGE

LONG BEACH, Calif., March 16 (UP) — Singer Anita O'Day, 33 years old, was arrested yesterday on a narcotics charge after a policewoman reported seeing her inhale a powder identified by detectives as pure heroin. The arrest marked the third time she has been jailed on similar narcotics charges since 1947.

Narcotics officers said Policewoman Anne W. McLaughlin saw Miss O'Day sniff the powder then wrap it in tinfoil and place it on top of a door frame before leaving her dressing room to perform at a night club here.

Also booked on suspicion of narcotics violation was Dennis V. Roche, 26-year-old trumpet player, who officers said drove the singer to the night club from Los Angeles. He was held on suspicion of transporting narcotics.

Southwestern Company's $44,692,905 for 1952 Represents 6.15 Pct. Return on Investment.

Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. had net earnings last year of $44,692,905, an increase of $11,971,755 over the 1951 net income, it was announced in the company's annual report, made public today.

The earnings for the six-state system represented a 6.15 per cent return on average invested capital, the company said, but it warned that inflation continues to be a serious problem and that investment per telephone in new installations is continually increasing.

Out of the $44,692,908 earned, the company paid dividends of $37,612,500 to the holder of its common stock, American Telephone & Telegraph Co. dividends in 1951 were $30,600,000, but during 1952 the company sold an additional 850,000 shares to A. T. & T., bringing the total outstanding as of Dec. 31, 1952, to 6,750,000 shares.

Earned Surplus Up $6,258,836.

Net increase in earned surplus after payment of dividends and other charges was $6,258,836, making the balance at year's end $30,172,532.

Operating revenues of $408,449,883 were up $54,463,170, reflecting in part the $11,119,000 rate increase granted Jan. 15, 1952, by the Missouri Public Service Commission on the company's local exchange service in Missouri. Other rate increases were allowed by the regulatory bodies of Arkansas and Kansas and by 131 of the 267 cities in Texas in which the company operates, the report said.

Operating expenses, exclusive of taxes, rose from $258,169,298 in 1951 to $283,452,862 last year, while taxes of all kinds increased from $57,105,875 to $73,515,459. The report stated that taxes averaged about $3.08 per telephone per month and accounted for about 30 per cent of the customer's bill.

Nearly $176,000,000 was spent during the year for construction, giving the telephone plant in service and under construction at the end of the year a value of $1,163,741,136 before depreciation reserves of $267,414,821.

There was a net gain of 245,000 in telephones served by the company, and the unfilled applications for service were reduced by almost one-half to 57,500, the company said.

Average amount of money invested per telephone in service climbed from $270 at the end of 1951 to $281 at the end of 1952, while for each new telephone added in 1952 an investment of $457 was required.

More than 24,000,000 local and 495,000 long distance calls were handled on the average day in 1952, the report said.

WOULD TAKE FOUR STRONG CITIES FROM EACH CIRCUIT

TAMPA, Fla., March 16 (UP)—International League President Frank Shaughnessy today proposed that his league and the American Association merge.

Shaughnessy said the impending move of the St. Louis Browns to Baltimore and the Boston Braves to Milwaukee makes the merger necessary.

"We should take the best four clubs in each league, merge them into one league, and then gradually convert them—within a year or two—into a major league," Shaughnessy said.

He said that baseball now should aim for four major leagues—the two that exist, the combined International-American Association he proposed today, and the Pacific Coast League. The P.C.L. is in an "open" classification pending its qualification for major league status.

Shaughnessy was angry at the drafting of his Baltimore club for the Browns, and made no secret of it. But he said the thing now is to plan for the future.

He proposed Montreal, Toronto, Jersey City and one other city for half his new league and Minneapolis or St. Paul plus Kansas City, Louisville and Indianapolis for the other half.

Jersey City does not have any baseball now. It once played in the International League and now is interested in taking over the Baltimore franchise.

"Cities of 100,000 to 150,000 no longer can support minor league baseball," he said. "We must go major league."

American League club owners, overriding angry objections from the "high brass" of minor-league baseball, were expected to vote formal unanimous approval today of the Browns' transfer to Baltimore.

And a similar 8-0 "yes" vote is almost certain when the question of the Boston Braves' shift to Milwaukee is put formally before the National League club owners on Wednesday.

"There is better than an even chance that the Browns will operate in Baltimore and the Braves in Milwaukee to start the 1953 season," said Commissioner Ford Frick, after a high-level meeting of baseball officials in Belleair, Fla., yesterday.

Seven club owners were present for today's American League meeting in a hotel here, with General Manager Joe Cronin representing absent owner Tom Yawkey of the Boston Red Sox. Only six "yes" votes are needed and all eight have already voted informally in favor of the transfer.

In similar fashion, all eight National League owers have indicated approval of the Braves' switch to Milwaukee.

Frick yesterday warned both the Browns and the Braves that they could not move their teams unless the International League, which presently includes the Baltimore Orioles, and the American Association, including the Milwaukee Brewers, gave their approval.

"The laws of baseball are very clear and specific on this point," declared the commissioner.

Speculation on the probable new home of the Baltimore Orioles centered on Hartford, Conn., Providence, R.I., and Quebec City, Que. Hartford dropped out of the Eastern League last year, and there is a ball park with lights and equipment available there.

As for the Milwaukee Brewers, president Lou Perini of the Braves said he would like to move that farm team to Toledo. The Ohio city had an American Association team until last year, when it moved to Charleston, W.Va.

Carpenter Says It's Asinine.'

President Bob Carpenter of the Philadelphia Phils, who is not a member of the council, bitterly criticized the Browns' shift to Baltimore at this time.

However, it was virtually certain both minor leagues would vote in favor. In each case, only five "yes" votes out of eight are required. Since five of the International League teams are owned by major-league teams, and six of the American Association, an approving vote appears sure.

The International League owners are tentatively scheduled to meet here Tuesday night. If they aren't all on hand by that time, the meeting will be held Wednesday morning in St. Petersburg, Fla. The American Association owners' meeting is definitely scheduled for Wednesday morning in St. Petersburg.

"If all these meetings are in accord, there will be no need for any further meetings," said Frick. "However, all must be satisfied."

Belated Rules Change.

Sudden transfers of major league teams on the threshold of a new season would be outlawed under a new baseball law proposed today.

The law, suggested by the five-man executive council of the major leagues, would prohibit the shifting of franchises except between Oct. 1 and Dec. 1 annually.

"We want to head off any further double-action, quick-on-the-tragger moves," explained Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick, a member of the council.

Instead of the specific Oct. 1-Dec. 1 transfer period, the new law might be phrased to allow transfer only "from the end of the season to the mid-winter meetings," Frick said. The proposal, drawn up by the council in its meeting yesterday at Belleair, Fla., will be presented to the annual major-league meeting in July.

Frick has made no secret of his irritation with the Browns and the Braves for springing their proposed site changes so suddenly with the opening of the season only a month away (April 14).

On Saturday, he told president Bill Veeck of the Browns and President Lou Perini of the Braves to transfer their clubs "immediately or stop talking about it."

Negro High Teams to Compete In Public League Track Meet

Sumner, Vashon, and Washington Tech, the city's three high schools for Negroes, will compete in the Public High School Field Day and in a series of dual track meets with Public Leauge members this year, it was announced by Jim Hutton, publicity director for the league today.

A "guest trophy" will be awarded if one of the Negro schools takes first place in the field day, and the Public League trophy will be awarded to the league member with the highest number of points.

The field day will be held at the Public Schools Stadium, Friday, May 22, at 1 p.m. Preliminaries will be May 19. The date of the event was moved up from May 28, because there will be workmen at the stadium at that time, preparing for the Central High centennial celebration on June 3.

There were several dual track meets between Negro schools and Public League members last season, but they did not compete in the annual field day. All dual meets are regarded as practice events for Public League members, with only the field day counting officially.

There will be a meeting of track coaches for the purpose of making entries and drawing for heats and lanes May 14, in the Physical Education Office.

A proposal to change the opening date of the Public League baseball season from March 30 to April 6 has been approved by the coaches, League Director Walter Williams said. A companion proposal provides that a Public League team need not participate in a league game within three days after a state tournament contest, should a member reach the state finals.

Kiner on Way To Camp After Accepting Terms

PALM SPRINGS, Calif., March 16 (AP)—Home run specialist Ralph Kiner, his traveling bags packed for days, heads for Havana today to join the Pittsburgh club and conclude a stormy holdout session with the Pirate general manager Branch Rickey.

Presumably concluding one of the most publicized holdout campaigns since the clamorous era of the late Babe Ruth, Kiner said he was booking airline passage to Cuba as soon as he could make it.

Late last night—30 minutes, in fact, before another ultimatum by the demanding Mahatma that he agree to terms—Kiner from his winter home here disclosed that he was coming to terms.

The terms, Kiner said, were almost exactly those he and Rickey agreed on at their meeting in Hollywood on Feb. 13. They call for Kiner to receive something under $76,000, a cut he agreed upon from the $90,000 he is supposed to have received last year.

Kiner was asked bluntly who won the bitter, wordy and long range squabble between himself and Rickey.

"The only thing I ever held out for was what we originally agreed upon a month ago. Some of the things we agreed on at that time were withdrawn in the days that followed."

Kiner, who was the co-home run champion with Hank Sauer of the Chicago Cubs with 37 apiece last year, said he had sent the following wire to Rickey last night:

"I accept the terms of your March 14 telegram and will report as soon as transportation is available. I am anxious to get to spring training and I am in good condition. I hope that I can in some way help the team get into the first division, and I hope to be with Pittsburgh the rest of my baseball career."

The formal contract signing will come in Havana this week.

All Saints Wins Men's Basket Title

All Saints won the senior's men championship in the Father Sullivan basketball tournament by defeating St. Anthony, 75-57, in the final at DeAndreis High School. Jack McCullen had 20 points for All Saints, while Earl Meyer led St. Anthony with 19.

St. Patrick downed Holy Family, 67-64, in the junior boys final, and St. Mary Magdalen scored a 53-24 victory over Perpetual Help in the juvenile boys title game.

Collinsville Takes Frosh-Soph Tourney

Bob Schaulat scored 24 points to pace Coach Mel Paul's Collinsville team to a 67-62 victory over Madison in the championship final of the 16-team sophomore-freshman basketball tournament at Gillespie. Jim Flagg had 14 for Collinsville. In the third place game, Gillespie topped Wood River, 49-40.

Pal Moore, 58, Dead; Ex-Boxer Beat Champions

MEMPHIS, March 16 (AP)—Pal Moore, a fighter who never had any trouble beating champions but never won a title, died here yesterday. He was 58 years old.

Physicians said the death of Thomas Wilson (Pal) Moore was due to a stomach ulcer and the severe asthmatic condition that forced him to retire from the ring in 1924.

Pal, a bantamweight in his day, won 12 decisions over the various champions in his class—but they were all newspaper decisions in the "no decision" bouts then allowed.

Basketball Fixer, Now In Prison, Gets Another Sentence in Tax Evasion

NEW YORK, March 16 (AP)—Salvatore Sollazzo, 49, now serving eight to 16 years in prison for bribing college basketball players, today was sentenced to a year and a day and fined $2000 for evading more than $264,000 in Federal income taxes.

Sollazzo pleaded guilty last Friday to two separate indictments charging he filed false income tax returns in 1945 and 1946. He pleaded with Judge Sylvester J. Ryan for a light sentence.

"If you give me time it will put the lid on my coffin and finish me for life," Sollazzo told the court. "I have a lot of good in me and I would like a chance to show it."

"There must be some good in you, but you kept it submerged and never allowed it to influence you in your actions with others," Judge Ryan replied.

Assistant United States Attorney Louis I. Kaplan told the court that Sollazzo had given the Government valuable information that helped break up a gold-smuggling racket involving hundreds of millions of dollars.

Judge Ryan said he was taking that into consideration, as well as the fact that Sollazzo faces possible deportation to Italy. The court added, however, that Sallazzo was "a thief, a chiseler, a briber and a gambler."

Phils Swing Mightily, Hit the Air as Miller Wins for Cards, 3-1

By J. Roy Stockton
Sports Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 16—Stu Miller, who joined the Cardinals last August and became the most interesting pitcher on Eddie Stanky's staff as he won six and lost three, still has observers talking about his prowess.

Stu pitched six innings against the Philadelphia Phillies at Al Lang Field yesterday afternoon and it was the same old story.

Philadelphia batters could haardly wait to rush to the plate with their bats. Miller looks so easy to hit. His speed isn't terrifying, like the speed of a Mizell or a Dean or a Vance. Nor does he seem to have any curve that falls off the table. From the press box he looks like a pitcher that even the old and obese could stand up and face safely.

But if it hadn't been for an error, a misplay by Miller himself, he would have blanked the Phillies through the six innings. He gave up six hits, but the Phillies, swinging eagerly and with much verve, never were able to hit the young right-hander with authority.

Nobody seems to know just what it is that Miller uses to perplex the hitters, except that he has remarkable control of the velocity of the ball and never seems to throw two pitches with the same speed.

His 'What Is It?' Pitch.

"That's a sinker," Director Walter Shannon of the B, C and D clubs said, when we asked him what the low pitch was that Miller was using, a pitch that so many Phillies went fishing for.

"That's a curve, a side-arm curve," director Joe Mathes of the Cardinal farm system replied to the same question. "He's different from most pitchers. Most of them come down with their arm overhand, or three-quarters. That side-arm pitch just slips out and down away from their bats."

Whatever it was, the Phillies were unhappy about it. They couldn't hit Stu when a hit would have caused trouble. The biggest clutch was the sixth inning, Miller's final on the hill. And by the way he was the first of Eddie Stanky's staff to go that far. In

Gray Derby Favorite 'Another Man O'War'?

THERE are 137 three-year-olds nominated for the May 2 running of the seventy-ninth Kentucky Derby and some of them raced well as two-year-olds. . . . A number have established good records in the three-year-old campaign to date. . . . But of all those entered one stands out like Jimmy Durante's schnozzle.

He is Native Dancer, a gray colt that in reality will not be three years old until March 27, although his birthday officially was Jan. 1. . . . A remarkable fact about this candidate is that although he isn't actually "of age," and hasn't been to the post this year, the Agua Caliente winter book already has established him as a 5 to 2 favorite and horsemen already are thinking of him as "another Man O' War, or "another Citation"!

Jockeys, owners of rival candidates for the Derby and race track fans already are arguing that he has "everything"—all the racing essentials—to the Nth degree. . . . And that if defeat overtakes him it will not come in the shape of a horse, but of an accident, illness or racing misfortune.

AND how did the gallant gray attain such a reputation? . . . That's easy. . . . The colt (he's by Polynesian-Geisha, the dam by Discovery) won all nine starts as a juvenile. . . . He defeated the best of his age easily. . . . He came from behind and ran away from his opponents in record time, in winning the Futurity. . . . He spreadeagled his field at the longest two-year-distance of 1 1-16 miles. . . . And he finished the reason with a money-earning record for two-year-olds of $230,495.

Handicapper John Campbell placed the Dancer at the head of the list of 112 juveniles of last year with the impost of 130 pounds. . . . The nearest to him, weighs 7 pounds less, were Laffango and Tahitian King (the last named by the way, was also sired by Polynesian.)

The highest possible honor that could be awarded was voted him when he was named, by the handicappers of all the thoroughbred Racing Association tracks not only champion of his age, group, but also the "Horse of the year"—an honor awarded to no other two-year-old in history.

Jockey Reactions Were Almost Extravagant.

FURTHER testimony to the quality of Native Dancer comes from the fountain head—the jockeys. . . . Here are quotes we picked up from a booklet "American Champions," prepared by the Thoroughbred Turf Association specialist John I. Day.

TED ATKINSON, who rode horses against Native Dancer last year—"He looks like a champion just parading to the post. . . . He acts and responds like a champion when he's running. . . . He is a truly great horse." Atkinson said this after the East View Stakes in which he rode Matagorda, which Saturday won the Louisiana Derby.

EDDIE ARCARO, who rode Tahitian King in the Belmont Futurity, finishing second—"I was up on a great horse myself and thought we had it won. . . . But that Dancer just smothered us."

ERIC GUERIN, who rode Native Dancer in all of his nine victories and after 1 1-16 miles East View Stakes, said: "Nobody could ask any more of a horse than Native Dancer has given. . . . After we collared that last horse he actually eased himself up. . . . But he could have opened up and won by 10 lengths, if I had asked him to."

There must be something behind all this testimony. . . . It's unanimous. . . . But it wouldn't be complete without something about Native Dancer's progress this year and what his trainer thinks.

BILL WINFREY, trainer for A. G. Vanderbilt stable, will quit California for the East with the Dancer, early this week. . . . His charge has gained close to 150 pounds during the winter—and that's plenty. . . . He hasn't been raced during his long stay at Santa Anita but he has worked out and paraded between races for the edification of the big Los Angeles crowds.

"He looks like a champion even when he parades" was well said, apparently . . . That's the way the spectators accepted him . . . Trainer Winfrey told L.A. reporter: "I believe he will run all day."

"I haven't seen anything" (three-year-old rivals) "here at Santa Anita to worry me," Winfrey commented. "I only know what I have read about the Florida-raced colts. . . . I know about Laffango and Straight Face from last year.

Winfrey also told reporters he expected to start Native Dancer in the East in a six-furlong race first and then in the Gotham and Wood Memorial stakes—the last named is now a $100,000 event.

Tiger Jones Favored.

NEW YORK, March 16 (UP)—Middleweight Ralph (Tiger) Jones of Yonkers, N. Y., was favored at 7-5 today to beat welterweight Danny (Bang Bang) Womber of Chicago in tonight's 10-round feature bout at Brooklyn's Eastern Parkway Arena.

Moss Hits Homer Off Muncrief

By L. A. McMaster
Of the Post-Dispatch Sports Staff.

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif., March 16—John Lester Moss, a catcher who makes his home in Toledo, O., or other points, according to where he parks his house trailer, may get his name in the baseball Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, N.Y., as the man to score the last run for the St. Louis Browns, a club with a brilliant history—50 years in the American League.

Moss hit a home run off Bob Muncrief, one-time Brownie pitcher, in the seventh inning of an exhibition game at San Francisco for the second score of a 2-0 victory over the Seals of the Pacific Coast League.

Duane Pillette would be the last winning pitcher. Harry Brecheen would be the pitcher who made a batter make the last out against the Browns. Don Lenhardt the player who made the last hit, etc.

Play Indians Today.

The Browns meet Cleveland here today, after a seven-and-two record in nine exhibitions against Coast League clubs. Don Larsen and Hal White will do the pitching.

St. Louis fans may have to go to Baltimore to see Billy Hunter, new shortstop of the club, of whom they heard during the winter as a $150,000 purchase from Forth Worth. Billy will begin to do his stuff against Cleveland.

The victory in San Francisco yesterday was the only shutout for the Bill Veeck-Marty Marion club to date. Marty was well pleased with the work of his pitchers. It was a good game, in spite of three errors by the Browns.

Pillette, pitching five shutout innings, ran to eight frames his total of work in exhibitions against the Triple A teams. And in that stretch he has given up only one run and six hits.

Two Balls Out of Infield.

He showed yesterday that he is close to being ready to face American League opposition. He allowed only two hits, walked two men and struck out one. He retired three men without a batter getting the ball out of the infield after Shortstop Dave Melton opened the third with a long double off the left field wall. Except for Melton's two-bagger and a single by third baseman Nini Checo, only two balls were hit out of the infield by the Seals during Dee's time on the mound.

Brecheen opened with a strikeout against Joe Grace, one time Brownie outfielder and permitted only one Seal to hit to the outfield and that was a flyout by the last batter in the game. The only base runner while he pitched got to first on an error.

Al Line, a southpaw, held the Browns to three hits in the first four, ex-Brownie Muncrief was baffling except for Young, Pillette and Moss, yielding only one base on balls in addition to the four hits in four innings and going out for a substitute hitter. Bill Boemler pitched a shutout ninth for the Seals.

Six Players Are Cut Off Brooklyn's Roster

MIAMI, Fla., March 16 (AP)—Manager Charlie Dressen temporarily cut the Brooklyn Dodger squad when six players were ordered to the minor league camp at Vero Beach.

However, Vic Marasca, a GI outfielder on the Montreal roster, was definitely released by his return to that club. It also was announced that Jim Baxes, a third baseman who last played at Hollywood, would be optioned to Montreal, when and if he waived his GI rights.

The others were pitchers Chris Van Cuyk, John Rutherford and Ken Lehman, all holdovers, and outfielder Walter Moryn, up from Montreal. Moryn probably will be returned to the Royals but the pitchers are being sent to Vero Beach mainly because they will be given a chance to pitch in the minor league camp.

Licking by Simpkins Points Up Great Weaknesses in Kutis Club

By Dent McSkimming

It takes a real optimist to see the brighter side in defeat. Nick Jost, leader of the Kutis soccer club, saw his team lose, 3 to 1, to Simpkins yesterday, but he predicted today that his players will profit by the reverse.

"Simpkins brought out very plainly a few weaknesses in our team," said Nick. "We have a week's time to talk over our mistakes and correct them. I think we'll be a stronger team next Sunday when we face Chicago Falcons."

And Kutis certainly had better be a stronger team. It's a bit late to make lineup changes, but some serious practice and blackboard talks may straighten out the kinks. The Falcons are coming here for the first game of the western final series in the national Open Cup competition. The second game will be played at Chicago, April 5, total goals to win.

Among other things, the better balanced Simpkins team exposed once more the inadequacy of the Kutis forwards. Hal Weigel was out of place at center forward. He might have made a good man at any one of several other positions, but he long ago proved he was not an effective center forward. The Kutis management did the player and the team a disfavor in refusing to admit this too obvious weakness.

Simpkins 3-0 in Playoff.

By taking command from the start, and winning beyond question, Simpkins took the post-season playoff championship with three victories, no defeats. Kutis won two and lost two. In regular season play, Kutis won both the first and second half-season races.

Even in losing, Harry Keough, Kutis center halfback, again took highest honors. Right Fullback Herman Wecke and Left Half Tom Julius were also equal to all demands, but Left Back Earl Kestler wallowed helplessly, Russ Murphy's game was generally below par and not one of the forwards, unless it was Oscar Corona, was effective.

Simpkins, on the other hand, came up with bright performances right down the line. Bill Hain was a keen center forward whose unpredictable maneuvers brought out the best in defender Keough. Frank Wallace couldn't make headway through Wecke, so he fell back on his versatility and played a roving game. He was 'way over at inside right when he gave up the pass that enabled Hain to score the second goal.

Pariani Brilliant.

Gino Pariani, who scored a brilliant out-of-the-air first goal, was up to his form of three years ago. Pete Traina, never going twice in the same course, was personally responsible for Kestler's bad day, and was denied a goal only because the crossbar was a bit too thick.

Johnny Barrale was a very productive worker. John Traina was equally good as an inside forward and halfback; John Galimberti a useful ofrward; Harry Desmuke a good breaker-upper. Charley Colombo proved his worth by holding the center of the opposing line helpless; Bobby Annis was rarely embarrassed and usually graceful; rookie Gene Cucchi outstanding against weak opposition and Goalie Frank Borghi faultless.

So, Simpkins bowed out of the 1952-53 season looking quite as dominant as they were in the 1948 and '50 seasons when they won the national championship. This time, though, they'll just sit it out and root for their foes of yesterday, Kutis.

Pasteures A.C., St. Louis's lone representative in the national amateur championship series, held Grapettes to a 2-2 draw in an exhibition preliminary to the Simpkins-Kutis game.

In an earlier game, St. Ambrose defeated Fifth District Youth, 1-0, in an exhibition.

Allie Reynolds Joins Yanks' List of Injured Players

NEW YORK, March 16 (UP)—A new rash of spring training injuries—claiming Allie Reynolds of the Yankees, Bobby Thomson of the Giants and Roy Smalley and Warren Hacker of the Cubs as its latest victims—is plaguing the major leagues.

Although most of these were laughed of as "not serious" by the players involved, the injuries were of enough consequence to delay the training progress of the athletes and disrupt managers' plans for whipping teams into smooth-working units.

Reynolds, the Yankees' 35-year-old world series star, retired from yesterday 4-1 exhibition victory over the Dodgers after two innings with a pulled muscle in his back.

"I've had it before," said Indian Allie, "and I'm not too worried about it."

Thomsin Hit by Pitch.

Reynolds Yankee team mates hoped he was right about the nature of his ailment. But in some quarters there was concern about the lame back which also bothered the big right-hander during the 1952 world series. Allie may be forced to sit it out for nearly a week before making another pitching effort.

Thomson, who combines with Monte Irvin to provide the Giants' 1-2 home run punch, was struck on the right hand yesterday by Mike Garcia of the Indians during Cleveland's 3-2 victory over New York. The injury was described as "painful but not serious." Just to make sure, however, Thomson was sent to a hospital for X-rays.

Smalley, the Cubs' first-string shortstop, has come up with a lame back, and Hacker, ace of the pitching staff, has a twisted knee. Both were sidelined as the Cubs trimmed the white Sox, 8-3.

The Tigers also were hard hit by a variety of ailments. Rookie Shortstop Harvey Kuenn has a sprained ankle, Outfielder Bob Nieman the flu and Infielder Owen Friend a pulled leg muscle.

Two Dodger pitchers suffered badly bruised legs during the weekend, both knocked out of commission for a few days by batting practice drives from teammate Pee Wee Reese. Billy Loes was struck on Saturday and Preacher Roe yesterday.

DiMaggio Out of Hospital.

One major league team, the Boston Red Sox, received cheering news from its incapacitated roster when it was learned that Outfielder Dom DiMaggio has been discharged from the hospital after an eye operation and will rejoin the team in Sarasota, Fla., next Thursday.

Larry Doby, one of the last Indians to sign this season, turned in the outstanding performance in Sunday's games when he hit a game-winning home run off the Giants' Sal Maglie and made a spectacular catch of a 412-foot drive to save the game. Daryl Spencer hit a Giant homer off Garcia.

Manager Phil Cavarretta of the Cubs hit two doubles and drew a walk in his first spring training appearance as he led his team to victory. Bob Rush pitched two-hit ball for five innings as the Cubs jumped on Joe Dobson early. Bob Ramazziotti homered for the Cubs.

CHICAGO, March 16 (AP)—George Bobmeyer of St. Louis lost ten pins to an auditor's correction in the A.B.C. Sunday.

This drops Bobmeyer out of tenth place in the all-events and puts Joe Harris of Hammond, Ind., in that spot with 1908.

Bobmeyer now has 1899 instead of 1909 as figured previously.

An assault by 450 bowlers failed to disturb individual and doubles standings. None of the top ten in singles, doubles and all-events was even mildly threatened.

Top doubles total of the day was the 1213 registered by Ralph Cline (597) and Donald Shafer (616) of Columbus, O. Detroit's Don Carter and Fred Bujack pace the two-man event with 1335.

Ray Kratky of Omaha, Nebr., rolled the high singles scored with games of 212-238-211 for a 661 total. This division is led by John Muth Jr., Wilwaukee, who has a whopping 727 score.

In the all-events, Jack Sanders of St. Paul, Minn., totaled 1865, far behind leader Fred Bujack of Detroit, who has 1970.

Barons Clinch Title, Beating Flyers, 6 to 1

CLEVELAND, March 16 (UP)—The Cleveland Barons, the New York Yankees of the American Hockey League, tucked away their eighth regular season pennant today and prepared to try for their sixth Calder Cup playoff championship.

The Barons have won more A.H.L. regular season and playoff titles than any other team and they clinched the 1952-53 title yesterday by defeating the St. Louis Flyers, 6-1. It's their third regular season championship in the last four campaigns.

In the only other game, the Providence Reds defeated the Buffalo Bisons, 4-2. Neither club has a chance to make the playoffs.

Eddie Olson, Baron left winger, took over the individual point getting lead in the A.H.L. by picking up two assists to run his season's total to 81, while his nearest rival, Guyle Fielder of the Flyers, was held pointless.

Red Wings Held To Draw by Black Hawks

NEW YORK, March 16 (AP)—The Toronto Maple Leafs, Stanley Cup champions in five of the last 10 National Hockey League seasons, may not make the playoffs this year.

The Leafs played a 1-1 tie with the last-place New York Rangers last night. Meanwhile, the Boston Bruins edged the Montreal Canadiens, 2-1, and the Chicago Black Hawks battled to a scoreless deadlock with the Detroit Red Wings.

Kansas, Huskies To Meet

KANSAS CITY, March 16 (AP)—The East-West deadlock for the National Collegiate Athletic Association's basketball supremacy will be broken in a pair of showdown doubleheaders here this week.

That's the only safe prediction for the fifteenth N.C.A.A. cage extravaganza involving Indiana and Louisiana State of the Eastern section, and Kansas and Washington of the West in the payoff games in Municipal Auditorium tomorrow and Wednesday nights.

Each section has come up with seven champions in previous tournaments.

Indiana (21-3), Big Ten champion, and Louisiana State (24-1), Southeastern kingpen, will open the firing before a sellout crowd of about 10,500.

The Kansas Jayhawks (18-5), N.C.A.A and Big Seven champs, and the Washington Huskies (29-2), Pacific Coast representative, will then settle the Western issue.

Favorites Won.

Coach Phog Allen's ball-hawking Kansas crew dumped Oklahoma A. & M. a two-time national champion, 65-55, at Manhattan, Kan. The Kansans had to put on a great defensive stand in the closing minutes.

Indiana made the final rollcall, 79-66, over Notre Dame at Chicago, and Louisiana State trimmed Holy Cross, 81-73, at Raleigh, N. C.

On a basis of the latest ratings in the Associated Press poll No. 1 Indiana would be the favorite, but Washington is getting the top billing mainly because of the presence of its All America Bob Houbregs. Washington was voted No. 2 nationally.

Houbregs dumped in 34 points against Santa Clara after setting a new tournament record of 45 in the Huskies's victory over Seattle Friday night.

No. 5 vs. No. 7.

All told, the semifinals bring together four of the top ten teams. Kansas is in the No. 5 spot and L.S.U. No. 7.

Bob Pettit, a 6-foot, 9-inch junior, fired home 29 points to make Louisiana State's victory over Holy Cross a comparatively easy one at Raleigh.

Indiana, which beat Kansas 60-42 back in 1940 in the last national finals held at Kansas City, got the job done against Notre Dame on Don Schlundt's 41-point shooting. The 6-foot, 9-inch center got 30 of his points in the first half.

In consolation games at the four playoff sites Saturday, Pennsylvania raced over DePaul, 90-70, at Chicago; Wake Forest humbled Lebanon Valley, 91-71, at Raleigh; T.C.U. edged Oklahoma City University, 58-56, at Manhattan, and Seattle defeated Wyoming, 80-64, at Corvallis.

Veteran Auto Race Driver Is Killed in Fresno Race Crash

Garrett, 42, was dueling for third position with George Amick of Seattle. Their cars locked wheels on the thirty-third of 40 laps. Garrett's racer spun out of control, crashed into a wall and somersaulted several times. He died instantly.

He is survived by his wife, Helen, and three children, including a son, Billie, a race driver in Los Angeles.

Larsen Upsets Mulloy In Masters Net Final

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., March 16 (AP)—Art Larsen, San Leandro, Calif., yesterday upset Gardnar Mulloy, top-ranking amateur tennis player in the United States, 6-3, 6-2, 6-3, to win the men's singles championship at the First Masters invitational tournament.

The third-seeded Larsen snapped a string of 10 consecutive tournament championships won by Mulloy who had not been beaten since his final round defeat by Frank Sedgman at Forest Hills last September.

Doris Hart of Coral Gables and Vic Seixas, Philadelphia, won the mixed doubles title, defeating Mulloy and Mrs. Thelma Long, Sidney, Australia, 6-3, 6-2.

Allan Quay, Tampa, defeated Tommy Mickler, St. Augustine, 6-3, 6-4, to win the junior singles.

This around-the-neck tackle (at left) is a bit unorthodox in rugby but it added spice to the Missouri Rugby Union game at Forest Park in which the Dwarfs (dark shirts) defeated the Raiders, 9 to 6.

Title Game Was Grand Finale For Seven Burroughs Players

By Harold Tuthill.

The John Burroughs Bombers today were home safe with the highly-prized Class B. basketball championship but it took a wing and a prayer for the Airmen to reach their destination.

The wing was furnished by the Bombers' good bench and the prayer was supplied by the large contingent of Burroughs fans who encouraged their favorite through two hectic contests—the semi-final with Morehouse, which Burroughs won, 67-66, and the final with Puxico, also won by Ray Wolfe's Airmen, 73-65, at Cape Girardeau.

Both games required extraordinary comeback powers for the Bombers to capture their first state basketball title and wrest the honors from Puxico, victor in 1951 and 1952. In the game with Morehouse, Burroughs was down 18 points and still triumphed when Bobby Thym's goal in the last second decided the issue.

In the battle with Puxico, Burroughs trailed by 16 points in the early stages of the game and then used its celebrated pressing defense to rattle the Indians and cause them to throw the ball away almost as much as Morehouse did the night before.

When the Bombers started the second half they trailed, 42-38. Quick goals by Gordon Philpott and by Bill Gullion put the teams even at 42-42 and a free throw by Philpott gave Burroughs its first lead of the contest. Puxico's James Smith tied the count at 43-43, but when Philpott again hit from scrimmage Burroughs moved into the lead which it kept for the balance of the game.

There were some anxious moments in the final quarter when Thym fouled out with four and one-half minutes to play, but the Burroughs substitutes stepped into the breach and filled the loss not only of the clever playmaker but also of Philpott and Gullion, the Bombers' "big boys."

Gullion is 6-2, Thym 6-1½ and Philpott is 6-1. The "mighty mites" of the squad were Ralph (Bebe) Weinrich, 5-9, Leigh Strassner, 5-8 and Gates Agnew, 5-11.

Contrast that with the starting five of Puxico which showed James Morris, 6-6; Welborn Smith, 6-2; James Smith, 6-3; Harold Simpson, 6-1, and Mike Burris, 6 feet.

Seven of the 10 taken to the state classic by Coach Wolfe are seniors. They are Strassner, Weinrich, Thym, Philpott, Gullion, Pete Fischer and Gates Agnew. The others—Joe Lintzenich, Hewes Agnew and Cliff Dimmitt—are juniors.

Gaining the championship marked a new high for Burroughs which bid for the title in four of the last five years. The Airmen finished fourth in the one class tournament at Springfield in 1949, then defeated Morehouse, 56-50, for third place in the 1951 Class B tourney. Last year Puxico tripped the Bombers, who, it later developed, were on the verge of a siege of mumps.

Two scoring records were set as Waynesville thumped Morehouse, 83-66, in the third-place game. Bill George of Waynesville scored 42 points to break the old mark of 41 set by Philip (Red) Murrell of Linneus against Morehouse in 1951.

Joe Todd of Morehouse gathered 129 points in four games to break the former mark of 88 made by Win Wilfong of Puxico in 1950.

Burroughs' victory over Puxico evened the series between the topflight rivals at two triumphs apiece. Burroughs, which finished with a 27-1 record, the best of any Class B team in the state, wound up with a string of 22 consecutive victories, virtually a duplication of the drive which Cleveland's Dutchmen put on to capture Class A honors in the tournament at Columbia.

When Cleveland defeated St. Louis U. High in the "A" final, it was the Dutchmen's fifteenth consecutive victory.

Major League Stars Beat Coast Champions

HOLLYWOOD, March 16 (AP)—A major league all-star aggregation beat the defending Pacific Coast League champion Hollywood Stars 3-1 in a charity game yesterday.

Bob Feller, Virgil Trucks, Satchel Paige and Steve Gromek limited the stars to five hits. Three Hollywood hurlers were nicked for nine including a homer by Ferris Fain of the Chicago White Sox.

A throng of about 13,000 contributed an estimated $25,000 to the Kiwanis Club fund for crippled children.

Fain's homer came in the third and the All-Stars, managed by that all-time great Ty Cobb, tallied twice in the seventh on doubles by Dee Fondy, Al Smith and Hank Sauer.

Hollywood scored in the ninth when Ted Beard lofted a high fly with the bases loaded.

Dwarfs, Radisons Win in Rugby Union

The Dwarfs defeated the Raiders, 9 to 6, and the Radisons served the Knights A.C. a 12-0 loss in Missouri Rugby Football Union games at Forest Park.

A pair of penalty kicks by Bill Flynn for the Dwarfs, and successful tries by Phil Jovanovic and Mike Harold for the Raiders had tied the score at 6-6, when the Dwarfs' Tom Crawford raced 55 yards to a score late in the second half.

Harmarville in Eastern Final

PITTSBURGH, March 16—Defending champion Harmarville today is in the eastern finals of the National Open soccer tournament by virture of a 3-1 victory over the Philadelphia Nationals, champions of the American Professional Soccer League, yesterday at Freeport Road Park here.

The highly-favored Nationals pleased a 2000 crowd with a fine display of soccer but lacked punch, especially in the late stages of the second half. The seemingly inept outfit of the West Penn District had too much strength in reserve for the Nats.

16-Year-Old Bowler Fourth in Petersen

CHICAGO, March 16 (AP)—Sixteen-year-old Johnny Bergs of Milwaukee moved into fourth place in the Petersen individual bowling classic yesterday with an eight-game total of 1581.

Rudy Pugel of Milwaukee still leads for the $10,000 first money with 1649. Second is John McGrew of Chicago with 1644. Fred Lerch of Columbus, O., is third with 1590. Daniel Hiestand of Allentown, Pa., is in fifth spot with 1565.

Padres Blank Tokyo Club.

SAN DIEGO, Calif., March 16 (UP)—Two San Diego hurlers blanked the Tokyo Giants, 4 to 0 before the 2088 fans yesterday as the two clubs wound up their series with the Padres holding a 5 to 1 advantage. Bob Kerrigan pitched five innings of hitless ball and Bill Thomason took over to allow the Japanese nine two hits for the remainder of the contest. The Padres, meanwhile, tagged the Giants' star right hander, Takehiko Bressbo, for nine hits.

Harrison Ties Mark in Golf Meet Victory

Totals 266 To Triumph In Florida

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 16 (AP)—Big Dutch Harrison hung a record-matching 266 on the scoreboard Sunday to win the $10,000 St. Petersburg Open golf tournament in a drama-packed finish.

The drawling "Arkansas Traveler" covered the last 18 holes in 66, five under par for the Pasadena Municipal course, then lounged in the locker room while a pair of hot St. Petersburg pros—Chick Harbert and Dick Mayer—made a great but futile effort to catch him.

Harbert, who shot his second 64 of the tournament, just one stroke off the course record held by Jim Turnesa, and Mayer wound up in a second-place tie at 267.

Harrison, playing out of Ardmore, Okla., was 18 strokes under par for the distance as he equaled the record for the 19-year-old tournament. Jack Burke Jr. set the mark last year at the nearby Lakewood course in the process of winning his fourth straight tournament of the 1952 winter tour.

Harrison's victory gave him a $2000 first prize and ran his earnings this year to $4735. It was his first tournament triumph since the Havana Open last December. Harbert and Mayer took $1000 each.

When Harrison finished his round, Harbert and Mayer were three holes back and in a position to beat him or force a playoff, so Big Dutch did considerable sweating before they called him out to present him with the cup.

Lew Worsham, Oakmont, Pa., captured the $800 fourth prize money with 270. Pete Cooper, White Plains, N.Y., was two more strokes back and won $700 for fifth place. There was a three-way tie for sixth at 273 among Al Besselink, Grossinger, N.Y., Jim Ferrier, San Francisco, and Bo Wininger, Oklahoma City.

Ohio University Severs All Athletic Relations With Cincinnati U.

ATHENS, O., March 16 (UP)—Ohio University has formally severed all athletic ties with the University of Cincinnati effective at the close of the current academic year, Athletic Director Carroll C. Widdoes announced today.

The action, Widdoes said, was taken by the university's eight-man athletic board in a meeting held Feb. 27, but announcement was withheld until Cincinnati was officially notified.

Cincinnati was Ohio University's oldest gridiron opponent with rivalry dating back to 1896. The two schools were scheduled to play here on Nov. 7 and again at Cincinnati in 1954.

Both games were tentatively scheduled by the mid-American conference to which both universities were charter members. Cincinnati withdrew from the conference last month after a five-game minimum was imposed by the president's committee. The withdrawal of Cincinnati from the conference removed all schedule commitments between the two schools.

No immediate reason was given for the action by the board. But Widdoes said the decision was made unanimously. The two schools are scheduled to meet in three sports this spring—baseball, track and golf.

Maureen, Connolly and Trabert Gain Titles

LA JOLLA, Calif., March 16 (AP)—Sailor Tony Trabert, former N.C.A.A. champion from Cincinnati, and Maureen Connolly of San Diego won the singles titles in the twelfth annual La Jolla Beach and Tennis Club invitational tournament yesterday.

Trabert, 22, now with an air squadron at San Diego Naval Air Station, defeated defending champion Tom Brown of Berkeley, 10-8, 6-3. Miss Connolly, 18, defeated Mrs. Helen Perez of Encino, 6-2, 5-7, 7-5.

Doubles finals: Miss Connolly and Julia Sampson of San Marino defeated Mrs. Perez and Dorothy Bundy Cheney of Santa Monica, 6-2, 7-5; Trabert and Brown defeated Herb Flam, also now in the Navy, and Hugh Stewart of U.S.C., 6-3, 8-2.

HIT OR MISS—By Ryan

"Oh, yeah! Did you ever set up pins for Louella?"

the sixth Earl Torgeson singled and Granny Hamner doubled with one out. Hamner's drive should have been caught. But Grant Dunlap, a fine prospect, who played first base most of last year for Shreveport, has things to learn about outfielding. He didn't play the drive well. Musial or Hal Rice or Slaughter would have caught the ball. But it was all right, because it gave everybody a chance to see Miller pitch under pressure.

Tommy Glaviano hit back to Miller and Torgeson was run down, but that left runners still on second and third. Smokey Burgess, the Phils' catcher, was walked intentionally and Steve O'Neill sent in Jack Lohrke to bat for Robin Roberts.

Lohrke Hits—the Air.

Miller pitched carefully to the pinch-hitter and the count finally reached three and two. The situation was a bit critical. Victories have been scarce for the Redbirds. They wanted to win this one and their lead over the Phils was a meager 2 to 1. But you never would have known there was any reason for tenseness, as Miller pitched. He threw that tantalizing half speed low curve, the one Shannon and Mathes were describing, and Lohrke took a vicious swing, hit only the air, and Miller and the Cardinals were out of the jam.

Pitching accounted for the victory, as after Miller had yielded one unearned run and six hits, Dennis Reeder, the 20-6 winner from Columbus, Ga., pitched three hitless innings. And so the Cardinal batting didn't have to be robust.

An error, a walk and a single by Miller produced a Cardinal run in the second inning, successive singles by Musial, Steve Bilko and Slaughter put the Cards ahead, 2 to 1, in the third and in the seventh Bilko hit a tremendous home run over the left field fence for a final 3-1 score.

Ray Jablonski is looking better as the spring training season advances. . . . He's hitting the ball hard and fielding well. . . . He's still far down in his average, with only five hits in 30 times at bat. . . . The club's batting average, going into yesterday's games, was .204. . . . Top hitters, except for the amazing Peanuts Lowrey, were Musial and Dunlap with .286. Schoendienst is below .100, to give a rough idea.

The Redbirds journey to Clearwater today to play the Phils in a return game. . . . Gerald Staley and Curt Simmons will be the starting pitchers. . . . Stanky said he probably would pitch Miller again against the Reds next Saturday. . . . Rogers Hornsby recently was quoted as saying Miller couldn't get by for long. Because the batters were hitting at his motion. . . . It will be interesting to see what Hornsby's Reds do against the crafty right-hander. . . . Catcher Bill Sarni, the lone holdout of the Cardinals, finally has agreed to terms. . . . He wired Vice President Bill Walsingham that he will fly from Los Angeles, arriving here in time for a workout Tuesday.

Miss Berg Sets Tourney Record In Golf Victory

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 16 (UP)—Patty Berg, whose ready smile and deadly short game are trademarks in women's golf, hoped today that her record-breaking fifth Augusta titleholders' championship would bring a repeat of the successful seasons that followed her past triumphs in the event.

Miss Berg of St. Andrews, Ill., reeled off a 75 in the final round yesterday to win the $1000 first money with a 294 for the 72 holes. She beat her nearest rival, Betsy Rawls of Spartanburg, S. C., by nine strokes and clipped four off the tournament mark of 298 set by Babe Zaharias in 1950.

Miss Rawls finished with a 76 for a 303. Louise Suggs of Atlanta, Ga., was next with a 78—306. Mary Lena Faulk, an amateur player from Thomasville, Ga., captured fourth place with a 76—308. Jackie Pung of Honolulu was fifth with a 78—310.

It was Miss Berg's second straight tournament victory, indicating she may go on to the kind of season that marked her 1937, 1938, 1939 and 1951 titleholders' triumphs. She won four tournaments in 1937, 10 in 1938, six in 1939 and four in 1951, including a one-stroke weathervane playoff triumph over Mrs. Zaharias that alone was worth $5000.

While Miss Berg erased the old tournament mark with a steady 72-74-73-75, Mrs. Zaharias of Tampa, Fla., Betty Jameson of San Antonio, Tex., and Marilynn Smith of Wichita, Kan., wound up in a three-day tie for sixth with 312s. Mrs. Zaharias matched Miss Berg's final round card, while Miss Jameson shot an 81 and Miss Smith an 80.

Alice Bauer Hagge of Sarasota, Fla., was next with 76—313. Peggy Kirk of Ponte Vedra, Fla., and amateur Bea McWane of Birmingham, Ala., were next with 79—315s.

Cloudy Weather in Store for St. Louis

Weather conditions as of 12:30 a.m., C.S.T., March 16, 1953. Temperature figures show average for area. Arrows denote wind flow; shaded areas indicate rain; dotted areas indicate snow. Barometric highs and lows in inches.

—Associated Press Wirephoto.

Cloudy weather in the St. Louis area tonight and tomorrow with a low temperature tomorrow morning of 40 and an afternoon high of about 65 was forecast by the St. Louis Weather Bureau. Temperatures over Missouri ranged this morning from 22 at Kirksville to 37 at Joplin.

Rain fell yesterday in the Pacific Northwest and from the upper Mississippi Valley to the North Atlantic states. In Boston rainfall totaled 2.74 inches and 1.58 inches in New York City over the last 24 hours. Rain tonight is forecast for the Pacific Coast states, Texas and New Mexico with scattered snow flurries along the Continental Divide, as shown by the map at left.

Tornadoes were reported over the week end in north central Arkansas, Mississippi, western Tennessee, southern Illinois and southwestern Iowa and a violent thunder and hail storm in central Illinois. They destroyed buildings and trees and killed one person in Mississippi.

A high pressure area over the Missouri-Arkansas border is expected to move tomorrow to West Virginia and another shown in the West should dissipate. The low pressure area over the northern lakes region will move into Canada north of Maine tomorrow.

By JOSEPH AND STEWART ALSOP

WASHINGTON, March 16.

PRESIDENT DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER is seriously considering an American air defense program estimated to call for 16 billion dollars to 20 billion dollars of additional defense spending. The matter is being actively discussed on the highest level, in the National Security Council.

The sharp spur of the discussion is a solemn warning contained in studies made for the Government by a group of the most highly qualified American scientists. These men have bluntly forecast that before very long, the cities and the industry of the United States will lie open and virtually defenseless against a devastating Soviet air-atomic attack. Two years is the time of grace allowed.

Few if any graver choices have ever confronted an American President. On the one hand, there is the requirement for huge added spending, with all its implications.

If the program is adopted, capital outlays for air defense will of course be spread over more than one year. But the capital outlays will in turn generate huge maintenance and replacement charges. Hope will dim for the process described by Senator Robert A. Taft as "getting defense spending down to a reasonable level." The Eisenhower fiscal policy will probably have to be revolutionized, which will provoke sharp congressional reactions.

Warning of Total Peril.

On the other hand, unfortunately, there is the scientists' warning, not quite certain yet very terrible, of total peril ahead. The source of the warning is such that it cannot be lightly disregarded.

In brief, it derives from a study of the air defense problem undertaken by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, on an Air Force contract, not long after the beginning of the Korean war. This M.I.T. study, known as Project Lincoln, was originally conceived by former Secretary of the Air Force Thomas Finletter as a sort of Manhattan District for air defense.

Although considerable work has been done on new equipments, Project Lincoln has not assumed the proportions of the Manhattan District. Yet it has long absorbed the lion's share of M.I.T.'s remarkable scientific and technical resources, constituting such a heavy burden, indeed, that M.I.T. President James R. Killian Jr. has repeatedly but vainly sought relief from it.

Among the Lincoln leaders were Dr. Killian himself, Dr. Albert G. Hill, who served as project director and Drs. Jerrold Zacharias, and Lloyd V. Berkner. Consultants from the initiation of the project were such men as Drs. Charles Lauritsen, I. I. Rabi, J. Robert Oppenheimer and Vannevar Bush. Finally, last spring, when the time to reach conclusions was nearing, an immense and imposing array of physicists, mathematicians, engineers and other leading men was brought in from other American universities and scientific institutions.

Problem to White House.

The expanded working party, known as the Summer Study Group, added to the scientific constellation such figures as Drs. Leland Haworth, of the Brookhaven Laboratory, Winfield Salisbury of the University of California, and Emmanual Piore, civilian chief of the Office of Naval Research. The Summer Study Group reached its conclusions after long and intensive review of all relevant data, technical, mathematical and theoretical. The Project Lincoln-Summer Study Group findings, plus the supporting facts, were then transmitted to Washington, where the problem was at once taken to the National Security Council and the White House.

When confronted by the same choice that now confronts President Eisenhower, President Harry S. Truman understandably preferred to leave the final decision to his successor. In this manner, President Eisenhower inherited his present dilemma as he took office.

The source of the dilemma, of course, is the explosion of the first Russian atomic bomb in September 1949. It is now three and a half years since that crucial event; yet Project Lincoln represents the first really comprehensive, officially sponsored, scientific effort to assess the meaning of the atomic bomb in Soviet hands.

To find out this meaning, the first question to be answered was whether the Kremlin possessed or was acquiring the means to deliver decisive quantities of atomic bombs to American targets. The answer was in the affirmative.

Leaving on one side such special means as bombs secretly introduced into our ports by visiting ships, and guided missiles launched from enemy submarines, it was found that the Soviet strategic air force in itself possessed impressive capabilities.

As of today, the Soviet strategic air force is known to comprise more than 700 TU-4s. This aircraft, comparable to our own B-50, lacks intercontinental round-trip range. But it may be air-refueled. It can of course be flown on one-way missions. It is able to carry fast Soviet jet-fighters under its wings. If this device is adopted, the jet-fighters, bomb-loaded, of course, can be released from the TU-4s just off our coasts, and will then drive to their targets at speeds equal to the speeds of the planes composing our small interceptor force.

In addition, it is possible, and is even thought by many to be probable, that the Soviets are now producing bigger, faster bombers of full intercontinental range, suitable for round-trip attacks. It is further thought that these new Soviet heavy bombers may be equipped with turbo-prop engines, to permit speedy flight at low altitudes for a hedge-hopping target approach.

In any case, Project Lincoln and the Summer Study Group have positively credited the Kremlin with the capability of delivering decisive quantities of atomic bombs to American targets within two years. It is not known what form the scientists think such a Soviet attack might take—whether carried out by the new Soviet heavy bombers or by air-refueled TU-4s or by TU-4s with attached fighters flying sacrifice missions. The scientists have unquestionably worked with much data that is not as yet publicly available. The important point is that these men, whose judgment no one can lightly ignore, have warned that the Kremlin will be able to press home a decisive attack.

Basis for Grace Period.

The second question the scientists had to answer was whether the Kremlin would have enough bombs, and if so, when. It was this question, mainly, which introduced the time factor, leading the scientists to allow a time of grace before the time of total peril. Even so, their calculations cannot be said to be cheerful.

For obvious reasons, the figures used by Project Lincoln are not precisely known. But a rough idea of them can no doubt be obtained from estimates of Soviet atomic production that were in official American use until not too long ago. These estimates would give the Soviets between 130 and 155 bombs of 50 kiloton power as of Jan. 1 this year; between 205 and 250 bombs as of Jan. 1, 1954, and between 275 and 360 bombs as of Jan. 1, 1955.

At any rate, the Project Lincoln-Summer Study Group scientists concluded that the Kremlin would have an atomic stockpile large enough seriously to cripple, or even to devastate this country within two years' time. Their forward estimates, of course, included reasonable margins for bombs-not-on-target and for reserve stocks.

"Cripple" and "devastate" are here used, it should be added, as words of art, which they have recently become. "Crippling" has the ordinary dictionary meaning of "devastation," being atomic damage sufficient to hamstring this country in a war, but not to end all powers of resistance. "Devastation," in turn, means the degree of destruction needed to knock out this country as a military opponent, beyond hope of comeback.

The quantities of atomic bombs-on-target needed to "cripple" and to "devastate" the United States have been accurately calculated. This bleak work is understood to have been done by Project East River, a scientific group studying civil defense under another Government contract, which was rather closely co-ordinated with Project Lincoln.

Reprieve Not for Long.

It should also be remarked that certain competent authorities in the Pentagon think the Project Lincoln-Summer Study Group conclusions are a bit pessimistic. These men say it will be at least three years, and maybe four, before the Kremlin possesses a "devastating" atomic stockpile. The reprieve is not for long, and the comfort is diminished by the nature of the answer to the scientists' third question.

This was the question, whether our existing and currently projected air defense system promised this country any sort of security against Soviet air-atomic attack. The existing air defense system was found, unhappily, to have only one virtue. The post-Korean improvements of the warning net (the "radar fence," so grossly overpainted to the public) will give warning of an oncoming attack to our Strategic Air Command. Thus the planes of Gen. Curtis Lemay's retaliatory striking force will at least be able to take evasive action.

Yet the interval of warning will be woefully short. The weapons to bring down the attackers are woefully few and poor. And the kill rate of attacking aircraft will be woefully low. Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg has claimed a potential kill rate between 20 and 30 per cent, which in itself is far too low against attackers carrying atomic bombs. The scientific analysts believe that a kill rate below 10 per cent is infinitely more likely.

Such low kill rates against atomic attackers really amount to no air defense at all. If the foregoing calculations are correct, our cities, our industry and our mili-

GEORGI MALENKOV

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., March 16.

THE new master of all the Russians, Georgi M. Malenkov, has a sport that makes him kin to commoner men. He shoots ducks. It is the terribly vital task of the Soviet secret police to make sure that while Malenkov shoots ducks, nobody shoots Malenkov.

The plump, crafty successor to Stalin looks like a white grub bureaucrat, desk-anchored and lazy. Actually, however, he is a quick, alert shot, with a fast lifting gun and a good eye.

Shooting and fishing, the sports of lonely and independent men, are the favorites in the Ural country where this partly Tartar boss comes from. Malenkov has little interests in team sports, for which his 250-pound figure is unadapted, and golf to Russia is a "capitalist sport."

Malenkov's preparations to pursue the duck, the snow rabbit and the reddish fox are made by the police.

15,000-Acre Preserve.

Through their private networks the police, run by Lavrenti P. Beria, alert the special game preserve reserved for top presidium members. It is an area about 60 miles northeast of Moscow. Here are about 15,000 acres of tightly guarded land, full of game, including ducks, snipe, geese and squirrels.

Before Malenkov and his party arrive, special guards start continuous patrols, first around the whole preserve, and then around the smaller lake zone selected for shooting.

Farmers nearby have learned to give a wide berth to the hunting preserve, which is in broken, lightly wooded, rolling country. Signs saying "trespassing forbidden" are everywhere, but they are superfluous.

Every farmer knows that if caught inside he will be tried not as a "trespasser," but as a "terrorist," and draw a term in a prison camp.

Armored Train Car.

When time permits, Malenkov hitches his armored special car to a train for Leningrad, the best duck country in the north. His black armored Packard is rolled inside the car. After the 12-hour journey in the sealed train he arrives near Leningrad, gets into the car. He drives to Lagjinoj Pole, a 30,000-acre elite reserve for a few Kremlin leaders, about 100 miles to the north.

The marksman-dictator also tries his gun—though very rarely—on the three other reserves: In the Urals, the Caucasus and the great Altai range, where there is a hunters' sanatorium.

Malenkov likes particularly to hunt with cool, methodical comrades. A favorite companion is Maxim Z. Saburov, who is boss of the new ministry making autos, tractors, farm equipment, and machine tools. Another friend is the electrical boss Mikhail Pervukhin, Russia's Samuel Insull.

When duck hunting in the fall Malenkov wears the regular wealthy huntsman's outfit of hip-length waders. But unlike the American rubberized boots, they are made of leather, treated to be water-tight. The bottoms of these costly Russian boots are made of cow's stomach, which is supposed to be pliable and as well impervious to water. These elite huntsmen also wear a sweater underneath, a padded jacket, lined with outer leather, and a cloth cap.

When rains come the huntsmen wear the gray or black oilskins that are the outdoor dress of all foul weather workers in the U.S.S.R. In snow they wear full furs.

The Kremlin's duckhunters keep away from rubberized material, especially rubber boots, sharing the Russian superstition that they give rheumatism.

On the ponds and lakes of the Moscow and Leningrad guarded preserves, Malenkov and his party usually shoot from a rowboat rather than a blind. Decoys of wood are floated out on the lake beforehand by the police. Live ducks are also used.

The police-guides are armed for hunting with shotguns, usually made by the German firm of Sauer in Thuringen. They also have American Winchester rifles for shooting fox and wild boar.

Malenkov uses a shotgun with two barrels of different bore, to make it possible to insert different sizes of shell in the same weapon.

In winter, when rabbits are the game, Malenkov wears furs, fur-lined jackets and fur cap. But the time he seems to enjoy most is duck-hunting season, when the Kremlin parties become blowouts. They broil the ducks outdoors and serve them with vodka.

The bag of ducks a huntsman can take is unlimited, but he must take it from Sept. 15 to Oct. 15, sometimes Nov. 1.

Six sailors from France, Greece, Italy, Turkey, the United States and Britain, each hoisted his own country's flag on the bastion of Lascaris, overlooking the Harbor. As each flag unfurled, a Royal Marine band struck up the appropriate national anthem.

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON.

SECRETARY OF DEFENSE CHALES E. WILSON went into a complete, though secret reverse last week. After telling a Senate committee he could make no real cuts in the defense budget, he ordered the Navy to cut by two billions, the Air Force by two billions, and the Army by $250,000,000.

Reason for the reversal was a determined desire on the part of Budget Director Joe Dodge to chop expenses, plus realization that in the armed forces there's the greatest fat.

Last year a subcommittee spearheaded by Congressmen Carl Vinson of Georgia and Eddie Hebert of Louisiana performed extensive research on armed services duplication, and finally a law was passed requiring the Army, Navy, Air Force to compile one catalog from which they all would order instead of competing against one another through separate catalogs.

That law was passed on July 1, 1952. Since then, the Defense Department has had 300 people working full time in Washington, plus 3000 people working part time in the field to compile a joint armed services catalog. Finally, after spending $87,000,000, they have produced the first edition—a catalog on "subsistence" or food—length, 40 pages!

In contrast, the complete purchasing catalogs of the Army, Navy, Air Force fill one room. So, at the rate of $87,000,000 for 40 pages, it will take billions to complete the entire catalog.

As a result of this dilly-dallying, acting Defense Secretary William Foster in the Truman Administration sent a confidential memo to his Republican successor on the day before Eisenhower took over.

According to the confidential memo, the 40-page catalog for the purchase of food "Does not include information on each item needed for supply operations such as . . . size, weight, cubage. . . . This means that the subsistence catalog which covers the simplest catalog of items existing in the military supply system cannot be used in supply operations. . . ."

In other words, after spending $87,000,000 of the taxpayers' money and eight months time, even the meager 40 pages of standardized cataloging aren't worth using.

Czechoslovakia Viewed in West As Country Most Likely, After Albania, to Oust Soviet Bosses

Roving Editor in Europe for 'United Nations World.'

PARIS, March 16.

ALLIED intelligence officers in western Europe do not hesitate to name Czechoslovakia as the satellite country, right after Albania, that is most likely to succeed in shaking off the Soviet yoke.

Their reason: It is the one big country in the Red slaveyard that is not occupied by Russian soldiers. If Prague were to rebel, Moscow would be obliged to send troops into Czechoslovakia from the outside, thereby unmasking the principle of rule by naked force.

It is an open secret that Czech patriots, knowing this, planned several putsches after 1948. But all these attempts were nipped in the bud by the vigilant Communist party clique. At least one such plot was exposed by Rudolf Slansky, who was hanged last December.

Will Czechoslovakian patriots try again, in the not so distant future, while the new Kremlin bosses are busy consolidating their own power?

Despair Increasing.

Western intelligence experts don't want to make guesses but they say this:

From a Soviet standpoint, the situation inside Czechoslovakia is deteriorating at a faster rate than at any time since the occupation and despair is growing, especially among Slovaks.

While continuous purges have weakened the country, its people are still so steeped in western culture that they do not respond to Russia's oriental "horse medicine." A prominent Czech refugee, a former cabinet minister, told me:

"My people are very slow in becoming aroused. It took them four years—from 1938 to 1942, before they started an effective resistance movement against the Nazis. Then they killed Nazi butcher Reinhard Heydrich. But once their fate seems hopeless, Masaryk's countrymen will do anything to regain their freedom."

According to Allied intelligence officers, the main causes of the bad situation (from a Soviet standpoint) in Czechoslovakia today are the chronic food shortage and drop in production of factory-made products. Potatoes were put on ration in 1952 due to a poor crop, which was blamed, first, on an early frost and a late drouth. Then the Communist bosses accused the farmers of sabotage in refusing to deliver their crops.

Since January of this year, even potato ration cards are no longer honored. Meat and eggs are not available except on the black market. Last month the situation became so tight that allocations of eggs for minors under 18 were cancelled. Milk quotas for children and aged people were drastically cut.

A decree also withdrew ration cards from business men and other remnants of the bourgeoisie who were told to fend for themselves or starve. That, it is reported, resulted in many cases of malnutrition.

Bosses Are Powerless.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Attention Diverted

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Whether Gov. Donnelly intended it or not, the effect of his recent statement in the press is to suggest that the House Appropriations Subcommittee, of which I am chairman, held the hands of AFL labor organizers when we investigated the state institutions.

But there is another effect that is far more serious, and that is to divert attention from the horrible conditions that exist in these institutions.

Representatives of 110 civic, church and labor organizations appeared before us. We invited them to appear because we wanted to get the whole story on why Missouri, which is sixth among the states in ability to pay for the care of its unfortunates, is forty-sixth in the quality of care it provides.

AFL representatives were among those who testified. We have no knowledge that they may, as Gov. Donnelly says he has heard, have attempted to organize institution employes. The fact is that these employes have been represented by the AFL for the last five years.

Gov. Donnelly's statement not only diverts attention from the bestial, inhuman conditions we found—slave labor, totally inadequate rehabilitation, the holding of people who are well and should be returned to society. It also diverts attention from the job that the Governor and the Legislature must do together if we are not to hold our heads in shame at the conditions we tolerate.

Even though Missouri ranks so low in the quality of its care, Gov. Donnelly has recommended cuts in the budget for the mental institutions. The Governor has not explained how budget cuts will raise the quality of care. This is the issue—and it must not be obscured by sideshows.

This bipartisan committee has worked long and hard, has probed into every corner, to find out what the trouble is and what must be done about it. I cannot say too emphatically that what we need is co-operation from the Governor, not diversion.

EDWARD W. GARNHOLZ,
State Representative,

Time for a Change

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Why do you still call Adlai Stevenson the "defeated" candidate? It has been more than four months since he was "right" and I believe he is known well enough so that we no longer need the extra title.

Research Report

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The American Institute of Baking conducted a study in 1950 to determine what effect, if any, the addition of fluorides to the public water supply would have upon bread quality. It found:

"The addition of fluoride ion in concentrations up to 10 parts per million (10 times more than the St. Louis Dental Society recommends) in the sponge and dough water has no effect upon bread quality.

"Bakers in communities that plan to incorporate fluorine in the city water supplies as part of a program to reduce the incidence of dental caries should anticipate no difficulties in using such water for bread production."

That quotation is from a summary of the study contained in a special bulletin of the institute, "The Effect of Fluoride in Dough Water Upon Bread Quality," Chicago, July 6, 1950.

So the brewers are worrying about the baker's dough rising. They are a little late in their research.

Only Prose Worth Reading

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Good old Otto Pauls really said a mouthful when he wrote recently that the Post-Dispatch performed a distinct service to its readers by occasionally reprinting an editorial from Col. McCormick's Chicago Tribune.

CHARLES E. CARY.

The Police Were Right

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Can William Eyermann criticize the St. Louis police for performing their duty? He feels they did wrong in arresting his wife for driving with bright lights while speeders on Hampton go unmolested.

Mr. Eyermann knows perfectly well that the police cannot possibly catch every traffic violator. It might be possible if every third car on the streets were a police car. The police did not single out Mrs. Eyermann. They do their best in catching all the violations possible.

The writer is glad to know that arrests are being made for driving with bright lights. They are nearly as dangerous to other motorists as is the speeder. There is no excuse for one having bright lights on without knowledge, since the auto builders have signals installed in cars to indicate bright lights. No good driver allows it to happen. There is no need for bright lights in St. Louis, with well illuminated streets, so long as the driver observes the speed limit.

Mr. Eyermann will find ample proof of arrests for speeding in the Hampton District for violations on Hampton avenue if he will take the time. It is high time that we all co-operate with our traffic officers rather than criticize them. It is one of the first steps necessary in the elimination of the present day traffic mess. SIDNEY SMITH.

Who Does What

A commission demarcating boundaries for the activities of federal and state governments and private enterprise could serve some valuable purposes. It is proposed by Senator Ferguson of Michigan and Representative Brown of Ohio.

Whether the job could best be done by a commission of the precise form and mandate proposed by Senator Ferguson and Representative Brown may be open to question. But useful work awaits a study which would approach the task without partisanship or preconception.

This is perhaps particularly true in the field of electric power. What should be the relative roles of private and public power? It is one of the most controversial questions under the subject heading of Government and Business.

Our feeling is that public power should come into the picture to offset the shortcomings of private power's efforts. It should pioneer in fields like rural electrification in which most power companies have been remiss. It should build dams and systems of dams for multiple purposes —including flood control, irrigation and navigation—which are beyond the purpose and the financial means of private companies. It should offer competition to privately-owned utilities which have grown stagnant for lack of it, to get them on their toes and keep them there.

At the same time, we do not feel that public power should pre-empt what can be done as well by private power. We favor public monopoly no more than private monopoly—stagnation in noncompetitive public systems no more than stagnation in noncompetitive private companies.

At the other extreme, the efforts of private companies to sabotage legitimate developments of multiple-purpose projects on the nation's rivers (including power) are equally undesirable.

That is what the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. is trying to do in the rich Central Valley of California and the Virginia Electric and Power Co. is trying to do in the Roanoke River valley of Virginia and North Carolina. Their method is to skim off the most profitable of the power projects. This would leave the remainder too poor as power-revenue producers to defray the cost of socially valuable functions such as flood control which cannot pay their own way.

A commission which would attempt to set public and private enterprise into their proper perspective in the power field should go still farther. It should deal with the larger perspective of national water policy, from which the power issue is inseparable.

Should irrigation come ahead of navigation (as we believe)? Should flood control come ahead of power? Should drinking-water supply and sewage disposal come ahead of uses for mining and manufacturing?

Some of these functions have to do with saving lives. Some make life possible in parts of our country where it would not be possible otherwise. Some make life better. National priorities should be set up in that order.

For lack of this character of fundamental thinking, well-thought-out and set down on paper, some costly mistakes are being made and some not-too-fruitful controversies are being waged. A study devoted to ascertaining the best means of doing things could save billions in expenditures economized and resources conserved.

Stopping by a Marsh

On a Sunny Morning

Pity the commuter whose course into the city does not lie along a bit of marsh these mornings. For he who comes downtown between only houses and buildings has not yet seen that the red-winged blackbirds are back. They were out early today in the bright sun, swinging saucily on stalks of swamp-growing plants, flashing their brilliant, yellow-edged epaulets as they flew along the water courses, looking for nesting places sufficiently boggy to keep unwelcome visitors away.

The red-winged blackbird is no pessimist. If he finds his marshy haunts still frozen over when he arrives, he cheerfully waits out winter knowing that time is on his side in the cold war. The female is seldom seen at close range but she is singularly beautiful. Her plumage is a rich fabric with warp of black and woof of twisted thread of brown and yellow. Perhaps it is because she is so irresistible close up that the red-winged male is often polygamous and always ready to consort with spouses other than his own.

In the busy days ahead bulky pockets will be woven of rush blades and lined with grass and hung low between the reeds. After that four to six eggs will appear—light blue and curiously marked with dots, lines and patches of black and blue—perhaps the most impressionistic of birds' eggs. Over it all will sound the juicy notes of "Oucher-la-ree-A!" and another round of the seasons will be on. The world still won't be right, but it will be decidedly better!

A Traffic Prediction

More than 100 St. Louis organizations have indorsed the proposed master traffic control ordinance. Consequently Louis G. Berra, majority floor leader, predicts the Board of Aldermen will pass the bill before adjournment.

With such emphatic support, the traffic bill, it appears, could hardly miss passage. But the overwhelming backing for it is no more than evidence of the soundness of the plan which the Chamber of Commerce created and pushed so forcefully.

By giving St. Louis more one-way streets and through thoroughfares, the ordinance would be an immediate answer to traffic stagnation. Mr. Berra's prediction of passage should come true.

Trouble-Makers in Japan

There is a disturbing element of anti-Americanism behind the no-confidence vote cast against Japanese Premier Shigeru Yoshida and his consequent dissolution of the Diet. New elections, one hopes, will return him to power with stronger parliamentary support and thus spare our diplomats a throbbing headache.

Much of the difficulty goes back to the fact that Yoshida came into the leadership of the Liberal (actually conservative) party only after Gen. MacArthur found it necessary to force out the party's founder, Ichiro Hatoyama. Even so, Yoshida was able to win the premier's office only with the support of Hatoyama, not to mention a number of politicians once accused by the United States of war crimes.

These men have been missing few chances to make life difficult for Yoshida. Their favorite tactics have been criticism of various aspects of his policy of co-operation with the United States. Even though some of them were not averse to aggressive war a dozen years ago, there has been sniping at every move looking to Japanese rearmament. There also has been much snide talk against democracy, and the start of a movement to restore the absolute powers of the Emperor with the rather obvious hope of making him once again the tool of a palace cabal.

Under different world conditions, the Japanese might be left to worry about these matters as internal political affairs. But considering Japan's importance in the non-Communist defense network, United States authorities must watch the forthcoming elections with keen interest, hoping for a rousing demonstration of popular democracy. That is the ultimate answer to the trouble-makers.

David Rhode Island vs. Goliath Texas

Divide 1214 square miles into 267,339 square miles and you get 220. That is how many times bigger Texas is than Rhode Island. But Rhode Island doesn't care a hoot. Little Rhode Island is a sovereign state under the Constitution and it has its rights which no one can take away. It can challenge a piece of daylight burglary just as well as New York or Pennsylvania or Illinois or some big state.

And that is just what the forty-eighth state—in size—is doing. The House of Representatives at Providence has voted to instruct the Attorney General of Rhode Island to oppose the off shore oil grab which Texas, Louisiana and California are attempting to put over on the country. If the State Senate concurs, it will be the official policy of Rhode Island that natural resources off the shores of coastal states belong to all the people.

But that isn't all. The Rhode Island resolution would not stop with denouncing the proposed legalized steal. If the quitclaim bill passes Congress and President Eisenhower signs it, then Rhode Island would require its officials to take legal action in the federal courts. This might well have the result of blocking permanently the transfer of offshore oil to the states from the Navy in whose custody it was placed in the Truman Administration for safekeeping.

Rhode Island sets an example of state courage as well as enlightened self-interest. While the subject of a legal challenge to the oil grabbers is being talked about elsewhere Rhode Island starts to do something about it!

Progress in Home Front Defense

The civil defense plan which Gen. Hardaway has just announced represents a solid achievement. In two years, St. Louis has not only drawn up this master design to protect its population in case of atomic or other attacks from the air. It has also enlisted some 30,000 persons and trained some 10,000 of them.

Four thousand of these trained and ready defense workers are high school students who have received instructions as litter bearers. Civil defense has been made a regular part of the public school curriculum in St. Louis this year for the first time. A complete warning system, with special sirens, is soon to be installed.

Members of the Fire Department have had a test drill, and members of the Associated General Contractors have practiced their work of operating bulldozers and other heavy equipment to clear the way for rescue.

Solid as these accomplishments are, they are far from the complete job. It is important to avoid a false sense of security. Gen. Hardaway, the acting civil defense director, says himself the defense measures are not yet adequate.

St. Louis has not yet made arrangements with neighboring communities for help. The Legislature needs to enact a law which would relieve these Missouri and Illinois neighbors of liability for damages if they came to the aid of St. Louis and other cities in Missouri. Much is yet to be done about air raid shelters, stocking of medical supplies, enlisting of more civilian workers, training and drilling.

New York City had its first all-out air raid test 16 months ago and has had repeated public tests and drills since then. St. Louis has not yet had a single city-wide air raid drill.

More co-operation is needed from the Federal Government, which has done too little everywhere, and from Jefferson City, which has almost folded up the little it had been doing for civil defense.

Lobbyist? Why, No!

C. Wesley Roberts, Republican National Chairman, painted an odd picture of himself to Kansas legislative investigators. He was, he said, a man who had worked for companies interested in state business but he was not a lobbyist, required by law to register. He was, instead, a public relations man without an office.

In this informal kind of employment Roberts took a fee of $3750 from Cities Service Gas Co. in 1951. That was the year after he had been state G.O.P. chairman, and the same year in which he got $11,000 in the sale of an insurance company building to the state.

As in the hospital matter, Roberts denied he "lobbied" for Cities Service. He said his job was to keep the utility informed about bills in which it was interested, not to lobby for or against the bills. He did, however, have to "talk to a good many chairmen and legislators. . . ."

It is still a little hard to see how Roberts could inquire about the progress of a bill (for a fee) without offering opinions for or against the bill, or doing something close to lobbying, but maybe this is how he worked:

Roberts: How's the Cities Service bill coming?
Legislator: It should pass.

Keep Ambassador Kennan

It would be, in our opinion, a serious misfortune if Secretary of State Dulles were to permit Ambassador George F. Kennan to retire instead of being given a new assignment. This possibility is suggested by officials in Washington and reported by the Associated Press.

Mr. Kennan is one of the best-informed men on the subject of Russia in the whole world. He has been our diplomat at Moscow. He had much to do with establishing the containment policy which arrested the march of Communist aggression without plunging the free nations into World War III with the Kremlin. Whatever the critics of containment as a policy may say, it has served a very worthy purpose.

Though Mr. Kennan is only 49 years old he has already served the State Department for 26 years. In short, although he is an expert in a critical field of relations and has more than a quarter-century of experience, he is still a relatively young man. His greatest usefulness as a diplomat should lie ahead of him.

Mr. Dulles and Mr. Kennan may disagree on the so-called "liberation" policy proposed in the presidential campaign. Healthy disagreement should not disqualify the latter from serving the former. It will be a sad day in the history of our diplomacy if an honest dissent brings dismissal. One informed dissenter can be worth 10,000 Yes men. If Secretary Dulles wants to reassure able young men who are thinking of State Department careers, he could not do better than to keep George Kennan.

NEW SPRING AND A NEW BLOSSOM IN WASHINGTON

Jamming the Voice of America

The Mirror of Public Opinion

McCarthy investigation seems bent not so much on inquiry as on doing utmost damage to Voice of America program, columnist says; effect on Voice staff is to make them weigh words with respect to what Congressmen think, not to what overseas audience thinks.

By John Crosby

There are a good many things the matter with the Voice of America but the investigation by Senator McCarthy's committee, far from being designed to correct them, seems calculated to accentuate them to the point where the Voice will have difficulty functioning at all.

The one basic flaw in the Voice is a sort of occupational timidity which prevents it from speaking with or even formulating a clear, coherent, positive philosophy of democracy. And the reason for that timidity is the constant threat of investigation which has kept the Voice in hot water practically since it started.

John Crosby

The effect of this everlasting threat on writers and editors, whose task is to undermine the Communist world and to win respect for free societies, is disastrous. Practically every word written at the Voice is weighed with respect—not to the French peasant at whom it will be aimed—but to the Congressmen who may later investigate it.

Propaganda is one of the world's most difficult arts and one at which we are still children. Even given the utmost freedom, the Voice could be expected to make some mistakes. The threat of investigation inevitably tends to drive writers into the safe waters of the innocuous and the dull, neither of which is a very effective propaganda weapon. Considering everything, it's a wonder that the Voice is as potent as it is.

Congress, of course, has not only the right but the duty to investigate. Still, one wonders just what Senator McCarthy is up to in this one. First there was a parade of malcontents to the witness stand, each bearing a grudge against some past or present superior on the Voice. Their testimony was an incredible display of pettishness.

It was what may be described as predigested testimony. That is, the committee counsel had already heard it all and picked what he wanted repeated in the glare of the television cameras. Still, in spite of this careful rehearsal, the witnesses didn't always perform according to plan.

Nancy Lenkeith, for example, was obviously put on the witness stand to say that she had been fired because she had reviewed Whittaker Chambers's book. Once on the stand, though, under oath Miss Lenkeith refused to say any such thing. Despite repeated proddings by McCarthy and the committee counsel, Miss Lenkeith would say only that she had been dismissed after reviewing the book, refusing to say that was the cause of her dismissal.

Another witness, Virgil Fulling, in trying to prove that his newscasts had been softened toward Communism, spoke of one story about an uprising in Bolivia against what he described as "the Communist government." His superiors deleted the word "Communist."

Left like that, it sounded very damaging. Fortunately, Senator Stuart Symington, who added a touch of common sense to the proceedings, brought out the fact that the Bolivian government was a good deal closer to a Fascist government than a Communist one. The deletion of "Communist" from the newscast then sounded like a sensible editorial difference of opinion rather than a softening toward Communism. Yet, some instinct tells me that Senator McCarthy would have left the erroneous idea in the minds of the public if he could have gotten away with it.

The question of a man's beliefs, which are a matter for his own conscience, were brought out several times. Was Roger Lyons an atheist? He flatly denied it. Did Reed Harris still believe the things he wrote 21 years earlier in a book called "King Football"? He denied it, too.

Even if they were guilty of these irrelevant charges (and they apparently were not), what has this to do with the Voice of America? As Edward R. Murrow pointed out dryly on "See It Now," the proper sphere of investigation of the Voice is in what it is saying in 46 languages to the world—not to go delving in a 21-year-old book called "King Football."

The whole intent of the McCarthy investigation seems to be not to investigate but to do the utmost damage to the Voice. And they're doing plenty of damage to its prestige on both sides of the Iron Curtain.

Does this help the cause of anti-Communism? After all the Voice, for all its faults, is taken seriously enough by the Communists so that they spend millions of dollars trying to jam its broadcasts to keep them from being heard on the other side of the Iron Curtain.

Instead of spending all the money on transmitters, the Communists should just have hired Senator McCarthy, who seems intent on jamming the Voice from this side of the Atlantic.

Quirino Parts With Magsaysay

From The Washingon Post.

The resignation of Ramon Magsaysay as Defense Secretary in Manila appears to be the opening gun in the 1953 presidential campaign.

Apparently there had been a growing sentiment for Mr. Magsaysay to become the candidate of the Liberal party which four years ago elected President Quirino. But the President cannot tolerate the thought of stepping aside in favor of a member of his cabinet.

Recently he induced the leaders of his party to reject Secretary Magsaysay and to indorse himself for another nomination. That appears to have brought a parting of the ways.

Mr. Quirino's ambition has thus involved him in a very difficult predicament. Because of the eight-year limit fixed on the service of any President by the Philippine Constitution, Mr. Quirino, who stepped into the office from the vice presidency six years ago, could serve less than a year and a half of the next four-year term. Beyond that, his regime has become so steeped in corruption that there is little prospect of his election if the balloting is honest.

These factors should have dictated the nomination of the most outstanding person in his official family—Secretary Magsaysay, who has made an excellent record in repelling the lawless and Communistic Huks and who has the reputation of being a conscientious and untainted public servant. But, having refused to take the graceful way out, Mr. Quirino now probably faces the alternatives of withdrawal from the presidential race or defeat or resort to violence.

Some observers of the Philippine scene say that if Mr. Magsaysay is nominated by the opposition Nationalist party, he will win easily. His accomplishments as Secretary of Defense have been almost the only thing about the Quirino regime to commend it to the people.

Magsaysay stands for common-sense methods of dealing with the Huk menace and for cleaning out the corruptionists who have brought disgrace to Manila. His struggle for good government in this showplace of democracy in the Far East will be watched with great interest far beyond the boundaries of the Philippines.

Between Book Ends

Light for Those in Darkness

LOVE IS NOT BLIND, by Russell Criddle. (Norton, 272 pgs., $3.50.)

Russell Criddle was blind, as the result of a boyhood accident, but he wouldn't admit it. Especially, he rejected the attitudes that were presumed to go with blindness. He rebelled against the pity assumed by seeing persons as his due.

Not altogether in his own behalf, did he do so, but because pity on the part of others made them unhappy and he did not want anybody to be unhappy on his account.

For him to realize a normal life necessitated a normal attitude toward him. The book he has written is the account of his struggle to remove the abnormality incident to his own condition in the hope of removing it for others.

Russell Criddle

The best way, he learned early, in the situation in which he found himself, was to be submissive instead of resentful, in order to minimize the friction that could so easily arise to plague him and others. He found he could adjust to his handicap and save himself and others the distress occasioned by lack of adjustment. His incapacity was accepted as a challenge, something to be overcome instead of being overcome by it.

In doing practically everything that a seeing person could do, he found compensations and satisfactions. He came to look on himself as fortunate in that his affliction was not disabling, as some other handicap might have been.

He could pitch hay, he reminded himself, as he could not have done if he had lost a hand, and he could cut corn, as he could not have done with a crippled leg.

There were times when he went hungry rather than, by acknowledging his blindness, accept the bread of charity. It was better to go hungry than to excite in others the pity that would distress him and them.

Always through his years of darkness Criddle insisted that he was not blind. It was only that he couldn't see. There was a difference. He was not grateful for his handicap but grateful that life had taught him what he needed to know to cope with it.

There is fine courage in the book.

Why the Weather Alters So

WIND, STORM AND RAIN, by Denning Miller. (Coward-McCann, 200 pgs., $3.95.)

The atmosphere is the dynamic, life-producing layer of the globe. It is the closest thing in nature to man. It compels his highest, most constant interest.

Although meteorology, which deals with the atmosphere, is still one of the most inexact of sciences, much knowledge of a dependable nature has been compiled and systematized by study and experimentation since the beginning of science many years ago. Encouraging progress has been made, especially within the last 30 or 40 years.

We now know that the weather changes of our immediate locality are linked with vast operations of the atmosphere over at least half the earth.

Denning Miller's book is a recent retelling of the story of the weather. He is well qualified by love of subject, experience and education. A mathematician, he is a member of the Institute of Navigation, served as an air navigator in the Naval Reserve in World War II and has written training manuals on navigation, map reading and contact flying.

He tells how the atmosphere makes life possible; how the air moves about the world; air masses and how they are bred; fronts and frontal storms (a comparatively new chapter in meteorology); how the clouds form; how winds adjust atmospheric pressure; the air aloft and the "jet stream" (a recent discovery in the upper air); weather within the tropics; weather maps and what they tell; how to forecast the weather. The Shadow of Kansas Over Washington

WASHINGTON.

AN ENTIRELY UNPRECEDENTED kind of investigation is taking place out in Topeka, Kan. A committee of the Kansas Legislature is investigating C. Wesley Roberts, the national chairman of the Republican party, and Washington is following the inquiry with intense interest.

The outcome can have a direct bearing on the congressional elections next year, when the magic name of Eisenhower will not be at the head of the ticket. Many Republicans here feel that the new chairman has already been put under too great a handicap. The charge against Roberts is that he accepted a fee of $11,000 as "public relations counsel" in the sale of a privately-operated hospital to the State of Kansas, when in fact, the state already owned the buildings. The amount involved was $110,000.

Roberts

The best guess of informed observers in Kansas is that the legislative committee will clear Roberts of any wrongdoing in the matter. At the time of the transaction, he held neither a party nor a public office. He was a shrewd operator in Topeka, who knew his way around with the Legislature.

Landon Calls It Disgrace.

But, this will not heal the deep division in the party in Kansas. Roberts's defenders explain the outcry over the deal as a piece of that partisan warfare. They say the question would never have been raised if it had not been for the inter-party feud.

The hostility goes deep. Alf Landon, G.O.P. presidential nominee, put out a statement denouncing the deal and Roberts's part in it as a disgrace to Kansas. Landon opposed the draft of Gen. Eisenhower and thereby found himself in opposition to such influential Kansas Republicans as his old associate, Senator Frank Carlson.

In the Washington mess with the long series of disclosures, particularly in the Bureau of Internal Revenue, the matter may seem a minor one. But, in righteous Kansas it has loomed very large.

Qualities Sought in Kansas.

State Attorney General Harold R. Fatzer wrote a 15-page letter to the Legislature explaining his stand and concluding:

"There is nothing politically right which is morally wrong. If wrongs occur in public affairs, they can be corrected by men of courage and integrity. These are qualities which are inherent in the vast majority of Kansas people. These are the qualities that Kansans demand in the administration of their public affairs.

"If the acts of those who, for selfish interest or gain, morally or legally violate these basic principles, they will not be condoned or justified by the citizens of Kansas."

Most Kansas newspapers have been highly critical of the transaction and of Roberts's part in it. Needless to say, they are Republican newspapers in what has been, with minor exceptions, a one-party state.

Cole Also From Kansas.

It is not the rightness or wrongness of the Roberts fee as such that troubles those Republicans already beginning to worry over next year's elections. They feel that while the chairman's role is not that of crusader in shining armor, he should nevertheless as organizer and spokesman for an administration headed by a crusading President have more stature than Roberts has.

Kansas's politics have lately got into the national eye in a disadvantageous way. President Eisenhower named a lame duck Kansas Congressman, Albert M. Cole, to be head of the Housing Administration.

The Democrats in the Senate took the opportunity when Cole's name came up for confirmation to tee off on his record. They showed that he voted against virtually every housing measure in recent years, even including those backed by Senator Robert A. Taft, the Republican leader in the Senate.

Wrong on Flood Control.

Cole has the unenviable distinction of being the only Republican ever defeated by a Democrat in his district in Kansas. The explanation in the state is that Cole offended the dairy farmers by his stand on oleo. And, more important, he got on the wrong side of the flood control issue.

With the mighty Missouri having twice gone on a rampage, flood control is of vital concern to Kansans. What the Administration does—or does not—do about it will count heavily with voters next year. The report of a Missouri Basin Commission named by President Truman is now before Congress.

The division in Kansas represents, in part at least, the old Eisenhower-Taft split in the party. Whether it is merely a local explosion or whether it exists in other states the test of '54 is likely to reveal.

SEES GRAVE DANGER IN ANTI-RED 'FRENZY'

Lecturer Praises Archbishop Ritter for Ending Segregation in Schools.

Anti-Communist "frenzy" in the United States is a greater danger to this country and its free institutions than any threat which exists from outside, Milton Mayer, formerly of the University of Chicago faculty, said here last night.

Mayer, recently returned from teaching at the University of Frankfurt, Germany, addressed the Liberal Forum of the Young Men's Hebrew Association, 724 Union boulevard. He warned against racial discrimination.

"The bogy raised by anti-Communists," he said, "is driving us wild. In our wildness, we are in mortal danger of forgetting that all men are created equal, and that they are endowed by their Creator with certain specific and inalienable rights."

Archbishop Joseph E. Ritter's action in eliminating segregation in St. Louis parochial schools several years ago was praised by Mayer as the most effective step recently taken in the United States toward ending "racism."

Lauds St. Louis Newspapers.

Mayer said St. Louis has "the best press in the country" for objective presentation of the news.

Persisting animosities and inequities based on race are the only rock against which American civilization might break, he warned, emphasizing that freedom of discussion is vital to democracy.

The writer and lecturer, who now lives at Carmel, Calif., expressed fear that increased American tension on the Communist issue will, if the international situation becomes worse, lead to an outbreak of measures directed against minority groups.

"The hate we are now stockpiling against Communists," he said, "will direct itself against every plausible, semi-plausible and implausible victim.

"Orgy of Hatred."

"In the past week, there has been an orgy of absolutely goulish hatred against the dead Stalin in the press, radio and even among our statesmen—as if this one man could be the cause of the world's ills.

"Yet some 5,000,000 people, human beings like ourselves, went weeping past his casket in Moscow. Either we are getting an inadequate picture of this man and the regime he represented, or these millions and those they represented are moral idiots."

Mayer told his audience the democratic way of life is far superior to life under a dictatorship. He added that he was not and never had been a Communist, but would be unwilling as a free American citizen, to discuss his politics at the insistence of Congressional investigators.

The speaker has contributed articles to Life, Harper's, Christian Century and Catholic Digest magazines. He is a contributing editor of Progressive, Negro Digest and Fellowship. He was introduced by James A. Singer, chairman of the forum committee.

The award was made in previous years to Dr. John J. Kessler and to Irving Dilliard, editor of the editorial page of the Post-Dispatch. The St. Louis B'nai B'rith Councils are composed of eight lodges and chapters, with a combined membership of 7500.

EISENHOWER STRESSES FATHER'S HOME ROLE

PHILADELPHIA, March 16 (AP)—President Eisenhower said today "It is an old but unchanging truth that the father represents authority in the home.

Eisenhower made the comment in a message to the twenty-first annual convention of the National Catholic Conference on Family Life. It was made public here at the start of the three-day sessions.

The President, in a letter to the Rev. Edgar Schmiedeler, director of the Family Life Bureau, Washington, said he "noted with interest that the general theme of your convention is 'the father, the head of the home.'

"It is no less true that members of a family who learn and live by wholesome respect and authority in the home qualify as citizens who know genuine respect for public authority," the President said.

"In this sense, the respect and authority deserved and commanded by the father are the source of respect for law itself in society at large."

The most Rev. Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, apostolic delegate to the United States, speaking at the pontifical mass which opened the convention at the Cathedral of SS. Peter and Paul, declared "the home is the family school and there is no substitute for it."

"There the father must preside; there he teaches; there he gives his personal imprint to the education of his children," Archbishop Cicognani said.

"Fathers and mothers, be concerned with the future of your children. The future will largely be determined by the preparations you make."

STALIN'S DEATH WON'T CHANGE REDS, JEWISH LEADER SAYS

CLEVELAND, March 16 (UP)—The National Council of Jewish Women opened its twentieth triennial convention here last night with a warning that the death of Joseph Stalin in Russia offers no hope of Communism losing any of its "unrelenting ruthlessness."

Mrs. Irving M. Engel of New York City, president of the council, told the more than 800 delegates at the start of the five-day convention that "Stalin and (Georgi) Malenkov (Stalin's successor) are but two sides of the same coin. There can be little difference between master and pupil when the textbook has been Communism in all its unrelenting ruthlessness."

"Only wishful thinking," Mrs. Engel warned, "sustains the view that the death of Stalin and the assumption of authority by Malenkov could mean the end of Soviet anti-Semitism—or . . . of its militant opposition to all democratic people."

THOMAS L. STOKES

New Life, New Hope Stir Democrats

WASHINGTON.

SINCE ADLAI STEVENSON got some 27,000,000 votes for President, though not enough, it seems that a report is in order every so often on what goes with the Democratic party, even if Republicans now are getting most of the attention and most of the headlines, which is as it should be.

In Congress, where the record must be made, the Democrats have put together a cohesive organization with which, on a couple of broad issues that have arisen this early, they have challenged the party in power successfully, as you have been reading in your newspapers. But what of the party out in the country among the folks where elections eventually must always be won? Well, that brings up Col. Jacob M. Arvey, Illinois national committeeman and Democratic boss of Chicago and Cook county, and an observation he made here recently that was sage, if perfectly obvious. He said the party must build up its local organizations.

Stevenson

About that Col. Arvey ought to know. For his in Chicago failed miserably in the last election, and for the same reasons that such big city organizations elsewhere, with the striking exception of Philadelphia, also failed. They had got fat and lazy through the easy years of Democratic victory, as had many state organizations, also.

Virile Philadelphia Story.

Philadelphia offers a suggestion for what is needed. There a virile, newly-created Democratic organization, still fresh from previous success in overthrowing the moribund and corrupt city Republican machine, moved into action in last year's campaign under the leadership of Mayor Joseph S. Clark Jr. and Richardson Dilworth, district attorney. They swept up a whopping 165,000 majority for the Democratic national ticket.

That brings us to Democratic National Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell. He took Col. Arvey's words right out of his mouth long before the Colonel uttered them and has been proceeding to carry them out.

Chairman Mitchell has been moving about the country looking personally into the Democratic situation. His longest foray took him recently to the Pacific Coast for inspections in California, Utah, Idaho and Montana.

A Fresh, New Element.

He came back buoyed up about the interest and enthusiasm he found among party workers of the newer vintage who, themselves, were set on fire by Adlai Stevenson, and are still on fire, and are ready to sit up all hours making plans.

This fresh and new element, some young, but others young only in spirit and verve, woke up, in the campaign, to the fact that some of the old party wheelhorses, those who had been in charge of the organizations, did not pull very heavy in the last campaign and had no great zeal for victory.

Some of these old-timers were in politics chiefly for business. They were no longer much interested in issues stressed by Gov. Stevenson in the last campaign, but were ready, for personal reasons, for conservatism.

Mr. Mitchell found that these old wheelhorses had been shunted aside in some cases, relegated to the back row in others, and this, the chairman found most encouraging.

Interest in Issues.

Upon the newer element he sees a good foundation on which to rebuilt—first, an organization; second, a solid basis in issues which are what finally count in politics; and, third, to get energetic and devoted men and women as candidates for office; from the local level up through the states to Congress—who believe in progressive government and will fight for it.

He found a lively interest in issues, particularly in natural resources and their orderly development. That is very important to the expanding economy of the areas he visited.

Democrats were alive to the present threat to the proper utilization of resources in some of the policies here in Washington, some by the Eisenhower administration, such as restrictions on public power and reclamation, and the return of offshore oil lands to coastal states.

They have become alarmed how the latter is being seized upon in Congress to promote another dangerous step that would disrupt orderly development of natural resources, which is the return of all public lands to the states.

Stevenson's Speeches.

That would open the way for exploitation by selfish and rapacious private interests without concern for conservation in the general public interest.

On all these and other issues, Democrats in the West have a handbook handy in Adlai Stevenson's campaign speeches which they are finding just as fresh as when delivered and daily becoming more applicable, a heritage of much greater value than some foresaw. For, among other things, they are turning out to be most prophetic.

They expect the 1952 candidate to demonstrate that, chapter and verse, when he returns from his trip around the world.

VATICAN CITY, March 16 (AP)—Pope Pius XII pleaded yesterday for a unified Europe that would "consider as her mission the reaffirmation of spiritual values."

In his first speech since he became seriously ill nearly two months ago, the Pope spoke at an audience for a group of students from 18 nations in the Vatican's throne room. They were students of diplomacy from the Europa College of Bruges, Belgium.

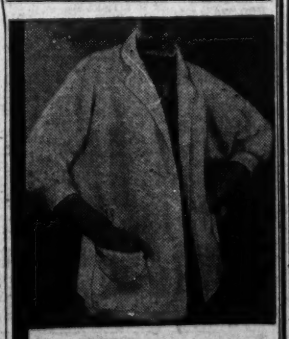

He said European unity must be based on Christianity "because we fear that Europe, without that, does not have the interior strength to conserve—in the face of more powerful adversaries—not only the integrity of her own ideals but also her territorial and material independence."

RAILS PULL MIXED MARKET OUT OF RUT BEFORE CLOSE

Malenkov Peace Feelers, if Such They Are, Were Ignored for All Practical Effects in Market.

NEW YORK, March 16 (AP)—Railroads marched ahead in a late burst of activity today in the stock market, and the entire list improved its position after holding mixed most of the day.

Volume came to 1,770,000 shares. That compares with 1,760,000 shares traded Friday.

Associated Press average of 60 stocks closed up .3 of a point at 115.3. Rails closed up .7 of a point, industrials .1 and utilities .1. (Dow-Jones industrial average gained .48 of a point and rail .91, while utility lost .11.)

The steels, motors and railroads gathered in most of the trading attention, although the best gains weren't always seen in these divisions. Motors many times slid to the downside as a group without emphasis.

The steels were encouraged by several reports of continued high demand. At the same time the American Iron & Steel Institute estimated operations this week at 100.1 per cent of rated capacity and revised upward last week's operations to 101.3 per cent of capacity, a rate which resulted in a new record high production.

The new Malenkov peace feelers, if such they are, were ignored for all practical effects in Wall Street.

Higher stocks included Southern Railway, United Air Lines, Twentieth Century-Fox, U.S. Gypsum, Eastman Kodak, American Can and Lockheed.

Lower were Public Service Electric & Gas, Dome Mines, Air Reduction, Westinghouse, U.S. Rubber and Admiral Corp.

NEW MOISTURE IN SOUTHWEST LOWERS WHEAT

CHICAGO, March 16 (AP)—Grains eased at the start, made a futile little attempt at a rally and then retreated to new lows for the day late in the session on the Board of Trade today. The late retreat was led by soybeans, upset by news the Commodity Credit Corporation planned to offer cottonseed oil to exporters on a bid basis. Heretofore, sales have not been made below the domestic market price. Fairly liberal cash grain receipts, particularly of soybeans, also depressed prices. Russian Premier Malenkov's conciliatory speech in the Russian Parliament brought moderate selling into all cereals. Rain in Kansas over the weekend created light pressure on wheat.

tary installations, conspicuously including the vital bases of the Strategic Air Command, will all be doomed in the event of large-scale air-atomic attacks strongly pressed home. The usefulness of the Strategic Air Command air fleet after the destruction of its bases and of most of the rest of the country is a question closely disputed. Certainly hurting the enemy would hardly console a "devastated" America.

In this remorselessly somber picture, there is a single ray of light. Our air defense is in a sorry state today, because it was not technically possible, until very recently, to contrive anything much better. More money might have been spent, but without proportional result. But the Project Lincoln-Summer Study Group scientists have given an affirmative answer to their final question, whether it is possible to build a truly effective air defense at this time. In fact their central finding is that America can achieve reasonable security against air-atomic attack, if America wants to pay for it.

The scientific advances which hold out this hope cannot be discussed in the present report. The novel weapons and improved warning devices that promise a measure of safety against the worst of all perils have no bearing on the great, central issue of national policy. The important point is that the scientists think the job can be done.

Much of the equipment needed is still in the design and theory stage. It is not certain that every part in the system conceived by Project Lincoln and the Summer Study Group will work as expected. There are even certain reported gaps in the concept—the warning system is understood to be much further perfected than the system of weapons that must respond to the warning. The estimates of expenditure, originally given as 10 billion dollars to 16 billion dollars and lately increased to 16 billion dollars to 20 billion dollars, are staggering.

The question is, in short, whether to gamble these vast sums (and perhaps the health of the economy) on the scientists being right, or to gamble the survival of America on the scientists being wrong. Such is the best short description of the two horns of the dilemma, between which President Eisenhower must shortly choose.

According to authentic report, the dilemma has thus far evoked mixed responses at the top level of the Administration. Among the members of the National Security Council, Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey and Budget Director Joseph Dodge are known to advocate a go-slow approach.

This is natural. Maintenance of all existing taxes — further tax rises to achieve near-balance of the budget—an increase in the existing national debt limit of 275 billion dollars—further inflation—further distortion of the economy by unduly high tax levels—these are the specters which inevitably haunt Dodge and Humphrey. By the very nature of their offices, they must incline to the often-repeated theory that the Soviets are "trying to destroy the United States by undermining the American economy."

Meanwhile another strong faction points out that economic impairment by inflation and high taxation is not a form of destruction that can be weighed in the balance against the physical and final destruction of this republic. President Eisenhower himself seems to lean towards this view.

Hint to Congress Leaders.

At any rate, on Feb. 19, the President took the significant step of giving more than an inkling of his dilemma to the Republican and Democratic congressional leaders. This was the bipartisan White House briefing on defense problems which was rather palely characterized as "grim" by Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire. At this meeting, the President, who could sleep soundly the night before the Normandy landing, confessed to the assembled Senators and Representatives that his dilemma was giving him sleepless nights.

As might be expected, one of the Governmental responses to the dilemma has been that of a man who hopefully consults other doctors, seeking a pleasanter verdict, when his own physician orders him to have a painful and dangerous operation.

Even before the Eisenhower inauguration, former Secretary of Defense Robert A. Lovett ordered a re-examination of the Project Lincoln - Summer Study Group findings and data by a committee including Mervin Kelly of the Bell Laboratories, Dr. Charles Lauritsen, Robert Wilson of Standard Oil of Indiana and President Frederic L. Hovde of Purdue University, with the former Air Force liaison officer with AEC, Gen. James McCormick, acting as secretary.

President Eisenhower is understood to have called a further group of expert consultants to the White House last week. It is hard to see, however, how any other expert group can decisively refute the findings of such a body of leaders of American science as composed Project Lincoln and the Summer Study Group. And if the refutation is not decisive, the gamble with the American future will still remain almost as terrifying as in the first instance.

Air Force Is Reported to Oppose So Costly a Plan.

WASHINGTON, March 16 (UP)—The Air Force has received proposals which, if adopted, would call for spending as much as 20 billion dollars to tighten the nation's air defenses, informed sources said today.

But a spokesman said the Air Force high command is not disposed to adopt in its entirety so extensive or expensive a plan.

James C. Hagerty, President Eisenhower's press secretary, said the White House "is not aware" of such a plan and that it is not under study there but left open the possibility that it might be under consideration elsewhere in the Government.

Hagerty was asked whether the White House was aware of any study calling for additional air defense spending of up to 20 billion.

"No," he replied.

Asked then whether such a plan might be under study by defense officials at the Pentagon, Hagerty said:

"I can't speak for the Pentagon."

He was asked also whether the plan might have been received at the White House and referred to some Government department.

"I am not saying anything on that," Hagerty declared. "I am merely saying it is not being studied by the White House."

One authoritative source said Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Air Force staff chief, never would approve a plan under which this country would rely on what amounts to a "Maginot line of the air"—a system that emphasized defense to the detriment of the Strategic Bombing Command.

It was said that no responsible Air Force officer believes it would be possible—even under the most ideal conditions—to build a defense system that could shoot down more than half of an attacking bomber force.

The most that Vandenberg has promised is that three out of 10 attacking bombers would be shot down. That is much better than any air defense system was able to do in World War II.

MOVIE MAN FINED $150 FOR HOUSE CONTEMPT

WASHINGTON, March 16 (AP)—Sidney Buchman, former Hollywood writer-producer today was fined $150 and given a one-year suspended sentence for not heeding a House Un-American Activities Committee subpoena.

He could have been jailed for a year and given a $1000 fine.

Once one of the nation's leading producers and writers of Hollywood films, Buchman has been out of the motion picture scene since he became involved in the House Committee's hunt for Communist influences in Hollywood.

District Judge T. Blake Kennedy of Wyoming, specially sitting here, fixed his penalty as one-year probation on a bond of $1000 and a fine of $150.

The 51-year-old Buchman told the court today that he "acted in good faith" and meant no contempt in his heart when he failed to show up for committee questioning Jan. 28, 1952. Instead of appearing, he went to court in an unsuccessful effort to kill the subpena.

He argued it was "unjust" for the committee to call him back since he had testified to his own Communist connections before a subcommittee in Los Angeles the previous September. In his Los Angeles testimony, Buchman said he was a Red from 1938 to 1945, but refused to name fellow members.

CZECHS REGARDED AS 2ND LIKELIEST TO FREE SELVES

of the Stalingrad Iron Works in Brno, Moravia. In the name of his union Zidek protested against the speed-up system, asked for higher wages, demanded potatoes without queuing up hours after work. The Communist management subjected him to "disciplinary investigation" but he escaped punishment because it was feared thousands of his followers would strike or slow down production.

As a result of all these "bugs" in Czech industry, delivery of machines, arms and implements, promised Moscow in the commercial treaty of May 1952, is far behind schedule.

Former Commerce Minister Anton Gregor, who negotiated the treaty, was purged after the Slansky trial. A Czech delegation is now in Moscow trying to renegotiate the treaty, which put too heavy a burden on the country and may have brought it to the edge of economic disaster. At the same time Prague wants the Russians to supply more agricultural products to stem its own food shortage.

In this climate of distress, Communist government circles in Prague still indulge in luxurious living and engage in political intrigues. The late President Gottwald and his associates were unable to assert themselves against Moscow. They turned their frustrated instincts against the Slovaks.

Insiders point out that whenever a crisis occurs, the Czech Communist rulers use it as an excuse to tighten control by Prague over Bratislava. The native Slovak minister, Anton Gregor, was replaced by Peter Dvorak, a Czech, last December. The only major Slovak figure now left in the cabinet is Anton Siroky. But he was deprived of his post as foreign minister in the reorganization of February and is now merely one of the nine vice premiers.

Prague is currently preparing a new "monster purge trial" exclusively against the Slovaks, so Slovak masses have another reason for their discontent.

Allied intelligence offices are confident these conditions will, sooner or later, produce opponents inside the ruling class who will be sufficiently strong, smart and courageous to openly oppose the Moscow-controlled regime. Will the succession of Malenkov speed this move?

A high-ranking Russian official in Vienna who fled west recently after a long experience in Czech affairs told western intelligence agents:

"If we could do it all over again, we wouldn't touch Czechoslovakia. We would keep our fingers off it like a rotten apple."

Capital Capers

Many Affairs for Visiting Dignitaries

By Elise Morrow

WASHINGTON, March 16.

OFFICIAL Washington has to get one-day laundry service on stiff-bosomed shirts these days. So many dignitaries are passing through the capital scene, all of them requiring extensive entertaining, that no evening passes without at least one major social event, and often there are several.

ELISE MORROW

There have, of course, been numerous dinners and receptions honoring Foreign Minister Anthony Eden and Chancellor of the Exchequer Richard A. Butler of Great Britain. The arrival of Gen. James A. Van Fleet touched off another series of parties. But we have also had Mme. Chiang Kai-shek, the Foreign Minister of Norway, a genuine Arabian Prince, the Brazilian Minister of War (who attended so many parties he gave a big one himself to pay off his social debts), the Korean Foreign Minister, and Lord Ismay, secretary-general of the Permanent Council of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

FURTHERMORE, THE BELGIAN Foreign Minister, the Canadian Prime Minister, the French Premier and Chancellor Adenauer of West Germany are expected to be entertained here shortly, although one at a time.

Amid all the white-tied splendor, however, it remained for the dictator of a Caribbean island nation to throw the most lavish party Washington has seen in a long time. Generalissimo Rafael Trujillo, who is serving as Dominican Minister of Foreign Affairs and delegate to the United Nations since turning the presidency of his country over to his brother, was the host—and he must have picked up the biggest Washington party tab of the winter.

THE GENERALISSIMO, his Senora ablaze with diamonds at his side, received several hundred guests in the Chinese Room of the Mayflower Hotel, then passed them on to a ballroom equipped with three busy bars and three fountains flowing with champagne. Strolling musicians wandered through a scene so prodigally decorated with flowers that one guest, in white tie and tails, remarked that it reminded him of a big-time gangster's funeral in the '20s. More than 1000 red roses, ferns, palms, white and red tulips, smilax and red and white carnations evoked this nostalgia.

The buffet table was 50 feet long, glittering with gold service, and piled with pheasants in plumage, heaps of lobsters, salmon in aspic, roast Vermont turkeys, filets of beef, roast lamb, pate de foie gras, salads, chocolate mousse, and nesselrode ice cream with crushed strawberries.

MME. CHIANG CAME DOWN from New York for five o'clock tea with the Eisenhowers. That evening, she was guest of honor at a dinner in the Chinese Embassy, and the same thing happened again the following evening, with a different set of guests.

Lord Ismay arrived in time for a large reception at Anderson House, a Massachusetts avenue mansion used for official entertaining. His co-hosts were Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, Secretary of the Treasury George Humphrey, and Mutual Security Administrator Harold Stassen, with their wives. Lord Ismay is making a state visit, staying at Blair House.

THE COMPLEXITY of entertaining important visitors when they come in pairs was illustrated by the activities surrounding the Edens and the Butlers one recent afternoon and evening. Mrs. Eden and Mrs. Butler were having tea at the White House, with Mamie Eisenhower, while the Foreign Minister and the Chancellor of the Exchequer were honor guests at a cocktail party in the British Embassy.

Then the Edens had dinner with the Dullesses, while the Butlers had dinner with the Humphreys, the Administration just about splitting the Cabinet in half to fill out the guest list for these two dinners.

ONE OF THE EISENHOWER ADMINISTRATION wives was telling a friend at a party the other evening that life in Washington was not quite what she had expected, though, "I suppose it would be all right if I could get anywhere."

"Get anywhere?" her friend asked. "Why you must be invited everywhere."

"Oh, sure," the Administration wife replied, "but you see, in my husband's last job, he had an official car to take him everywhere so we never bought an automobile. Since his predecessor in Washington, the Truman Administration man, also had an official car with a chauffeur, we figured we would, too. So you can imagine our surprise when it turns out he doesn't have an official car or any kind of car, here. That's the trouble with these economy administrations—they really mean it."

EXITING from a screening of "Ivanhoe," a girl friend of John Straley's tried to estimate what a complete set of armor would cost one of the jousting knights of old. "At least three cents an ounce," estimated John. "You've got to remember it was first-class mail."

General view of the scene on Yucca Flat, on the desert near Las Vegas, Nev., with test equipment in place for the atomic explosion scheduled for tomorrow. Mannequins dressed in various types of clothing have been placed in the automobiles and in two houses, one in background, erected on site. The blast, from a new type of atomic device, will come from the steel tower in the background. Following the explosion, scientists of the Atomic Energy Commission will assess damage to vehicles dispersed over the blast area and to the houses which have been furnished to simulate living conditions in an average home.

Dog of the Week

A spry young fellow who is part Pekinese is current Dog of the Week at the Humane Society Shelter. Shelter officials report he wasn't nearly so spry when they first saw him. He had been brought in as a stray with an injured leg. The injury has responded to treatment, however, and the fluffy pup is now ready for adoption. Applications should be made to the shelter, 1210 Macklind avenue.

On Broadway

By Walter Winchell

A MOVIE mag's idea of news: Robert Taylor's home is servantless. (How Rugged!) . . . Marlon Brando will be Pal Joey (in the film version) with a dub singing the chunes for him. . . . Johnny Green's album of Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess" (the Ziegfeld's hit) is mighty glistenable. Especially the stringy-zingy-fiddle-dee-dee. . . . Roz Russell's strenuous fooling in "Wonderful Town" becomes more remarkable when you recall she was a Very Sick Girl several seasons ago. . . . When we tossed orchids at Bette Davis (and her breezy show) a few months ago, we told intimates, "If she sticks it out they might get back their money." We had a hunch Bette merely wanted to prove she could click (in a musical) which she did. . . . The strain of Carrying The Load finally knocked her down. . . . Esther Williams announced that she loves her husband. In Hollyweird that's "Big News." . . . Pearl Bailey's recorded singaling, "Hug Me a Hug," hugs the ears. . . . Does anybody look loveller in Technicolor than Arleen (Must Be Heaven) Whalen? Red tresses, emerald orbs and an Omigosh figger. . . . Talk about lucky guys. La Monroe has a male sekkatree.

ESTHER WILLIAMS . . . BIG NEWS IN HOLLYWOOD.

RAY MALONE'S teevy hoofing rates a citation. Mr. Taptoe's routines are always tip-top-tappy. . . . Gagnificent is the word for any James Durante teevy show. . . . The soon due film, "Girls of Pleasure Island," takes place on a tropical isle where there are 1500 U.S. Marines and 3 gals. (What terrible odds.) . . . Ann Sothern's teevy series, "Private Sec'y," had a so-so start. But recent episodes have been Jokay. . . . Cosmopolitan is enhanced by a prose sketch of lovely Vanessa Brown of "7 Year Itch." It notes she has a tall IQ. Her loveliness is more compelling than her smarty-pants rep.

Recognizing Jealousy

By Dr. Paul Popenoe

WOMEN who are burning with jealousy, jeopardiing their marriages by tantrums and driving their husbands to the verge of insanity almost invariably start any discussion of their obsession with "Of course, I'm not jealous—but. . . ." The queer thing about it is that although everyone else can see how the land lies, the victim fully believes what she says. Mrs. G. is one of those persons who is fooling herself.

"I'm not a jealous wife," she asserts, "but I'm a neglected wife, and I have just about reached the limit of tolerating it. My husband has time for all his cronies, or for any kind of a business deal, and he is never too busy to drive his stenographer home if it's raining; but he has no time for me. When I call his attention to this he says I'm nagging him. Why doesn't he stop doing the things that make me nag him?"

THE ABOVE IS an extract from a long letter that drips jealousy, and I have to say to you, Mrs. G., in reply to your question, that I doubt if your husband could possibly stop making you jealous . . . in your present state of mind. If he were to arrange to be within your sight every minute of the day, you might concede that he was temporarily guiltless; but you'd suspect he had some ulterior motive for being so.

Let's face it, Mrs. G. You are afflicted with marital jealousy, a form of sickness that makes not only the victim miserable but can kill every vestige of happiness for the mate. That is what you are doing to your husband and you're trying to conceal your disease under a cloak of nagging, ridicule and self-pity. And he is suffering because you feel inferior to him and are afraid you can't hold his love.

LET'S TAKE A LOOK at this ugly thing and expose it in the hope that you, Mrs. G., and all wives (and husbands) who are destroying themselves and their mates with jealousy can know just what it is like. Here is a self-rating scale that will tell you much about yourself. Read it, then send 5c in coin for a copy of my booklet, "How Is Your Jealousy Working?" from which it was taken. Here we go:

1. Ask yourself just what your feeling really is about your husband. Pin yourself down.

2. Then ask yourself why you feel that way about him. This is where you'll have to go clear down to the bottom of the problem. Don't stop half way. Do you feel that way because you don't believe in yourself? Because you don't see any particular reason why he should be interested in you or find you attractive? Because you really aren't on the job, as a wife?

3. When you have explored your own feelings and analyzed them as fully as possible—which will probably take several weeks—ask yourself just what you really want to do about them. Do you think they are making him love you more? Do you think that affection and fidelity can be exacted merely by making yourself objectionable? Or do you conclude that the surest way to make your husband love you, admire you, respect you and want to be with you more, is to treat him in such a way that he would rather be with you than do anything else?

By this time, I think you'll know what to do next, Mrs. G. If you are mature enough to deserve a husband, I think you'll want to go to work on yourself, instead of hounding and badgering him with the idea that you can make him treasure you because of your nuisance value. But your first move is to take the wraps off your childish jealousy and recognize it for what it really is.

Social Problems

By Emily Post

A READER tells me: "My sister married a widower two years ago. He has a married daughter. My sister died very suddenly, and before she was even buried, his daughter came in and took all her silver, and also a Persian lamb coat, most of which my sister had before she married this man. I certainly think that I, as her sister, am entitled to these things and not her stepdaughter. Will you please tell me if I am right, and what I can do about getting them back?

I agree that if these things were in her possession before she married and not given to her by him, or as wedding presents, that he at least should have asked her family if they would like to have any of them. However, I am not a lawyer and, therefore, cannot give a positive opinion. But under general circumstances, the belongings of husband, or wife, go to the widower, or widow, rather than to the family of either.

Overweight Child Needs Medical Aid

By Angelo Patri

WE weigh children, thinking of their health. If they are under standard weight, we add to their diet; milk and crackers, mid-morning; more milk, eggs and vegetables with the main meals, and perhaps a snack in the middle of the afternoon.

Standard weight is the average for children of a certain age and height. Of course, there can be no precise average where children are concerned as there will always be those whose weight falls below or rises above the standard for their class. We have to study the individual child and know what we are doing when we prescribe a diet for him. That is best left to the pediatrician who knows the child.

THE MOST COMMON error in this weight and diet relation is that of believing the heavier the child the healthier. Overweight is by no means a sign of perfect health. Indeed, it is a suspicious symptom and requires the attention of the physician. Something is wrong when a child is markedly overweight and the matter should receive prompt attention.

The feeding of any child should receive wise consideration, without preconceived ideas. Oatmeal is good for some children, but not for others; orange juice is fine for many, but, again, not for all. One child will refuse eggs and another beg for them. However, their need for eggs is something we should study, something about which we should seek expert advice.

IT HAS BEEN SAID by some that children instinctively select the food that is good for them. I have not always found that to be so. For example, most children have an insatiable appetite for candy, far more than is good for them. Most mothers are aware of the individual peculiarities of their children and succeed well with the feeding problems. It is the odd child whose weight differs from the standard who demands particular attention.

The thin child usually gets the needed attention. Sometimes he gets too much, for it may be his nature to be light weight. The overweight child is often neglected as concerns diet and is cared for only when he becomes fill.

Tasty Tricks

A good pressure cooker will perform splendidly for you, give you good and tasty foods and meals in record time. But remember: it can live up to your expectations only if you follow the manufacturer's directions closely and accurately.

Striking Evening Frocks

Black chiffon and white chiffon are used together in the creation of some striking evening dresses. One dress has full skirt and fitted girdle of the black chiffon while the sleeveless bodice and side drapery of the skirt are of white chiffon. Another interesting dress has alternating panels of the black and white on both bodice and skirt.

Let's Explore Your Mind

By Dr. Albert E. Wiggam

Answer to Question 1.

YES, even more, because gifted students are the chief hope for taking care of the feeble-minded. A survey reveals that we are spending many times more preparing teachers to instruct the feeble-minded than we are teachers for gifted students. Only six of our state departments of education are paying any attention to gifted children, whom Mrs. C. C. Miles, Yale University psychologist, wisely calls "our future leaders, discoverers and creators."

Answer to Question 2.

Yes. As reported in a management magazine, a study of 1000 accidents in one plant showed that the largest number occurred between 11 a.m. and 12 noon. More accidents happened to the no - breakfast faddists. Even among those who ate good breakfasts, accidents increased toward noon, but not as much as among the no-breakfasters.

Answer to Question 3.

Yes. Psychologist F. K. Berrian, Colgate University, had students "steal" money secreted in the laboratory. Half were instructed to "lie" out of it and half to tell the "truth." As reported by John Gibson, the eye-movements recorded by a camera caught 75 per cent of the "thieves." The pupils of the eyes of the "criminals" first dilated slowly then suddenly contracted. Don't let your wife see your eyes when you tell her you had to "sit up with a sick friend."

Secrets of Charm

DON'T TRY TO DISGUISE FLESHY ARMS—RECOUNTER THEM.

NO matter how expert a designer is, he cannot contrive drapery that will conceal fleshy arms. There is only one way to resolve this figure problem and that is through exercise.

A new routine not only tapers the upper arm as needed but recontours the entire arm to give it a lovely new line. Like all the exercise in this current series, this one utilizes a strap as an exercise partner, thus multiplying the value of your efforts materially.

ANY LEATHER STRAP about 60 inches long will do, or else you can just buckle two leather belts together and you are ready to begin. Take the strap in your hands and stand in your best posture with feet together. With each hand out near an end of the strap, raise your arms upward and outward at shoulder level. Straighten your elbows and pull the strap taut.

Now describe a large semi-circle with the left arm by reaching as far upward and over to the right as possible and then sweeping downward to your arm comes to rest diagonally across your abdomen. By reversing the movement, return to starting position. Pull the strap taut.

Got those two steps? Now, let's perform them both at once. Do this by alternating the crossing of your arms with your left arm first on top and then under the right. Try it a couple of times and you'll quickly get the hang of it.

MAKE EACH MOVEMENT as brisk as possible and work without any pause during a count of 10. At the outset, 10 times per day is enough, but increase at your own speed to 30, relaxing after each count of 10.

Be faithful. Be patient. Reducing and toning the arm is a slow procedure, but with the strap adding direction and force to your motions, a steady effort will produce definite results within a few weeks.

Printed Fabrics

Daytime printed fabrics include many shades of green in alliance with floral designs. Claire McCardell has made a dress in a striking red and yellow print on sculptured wrinkle-resistant cotton, styled with low neck and tiny strapped Grecian bodice. For more formal wear another designer features a gray lawn dress in rosebud pattern, adds a stole and a pink velveteen belt.

Many Uses For Corn in The Kitchen

By Edith M. Barber

CORN, a native American product, was the staple of the western hemisphere long before the New World was "discovered." It was not necessary for it to journey across the seas and back again before it was appreciated, as was the case with peanuts and potatoes.

The story of the development of corn products is as romantic as a travelogue. While other grains have replaced cornmeal to a large extent as the ingredient of bread, the original maize, or corn as we call it, furnishes us with a whole line of modern staples. The starch is extracted and used for many purposes, including thickening for puddings and sauces. The oil from the kernels is extracted and refined and has wide use as a shortening, for frying and for salad dressings.

The most exciting product of corn is the sweet sirup that we may buy in dark or light form. While it is not as sweet as sugar, for some dishes we find it as satisfactory. It is often combined with sugar and contributes a specific property that prevents crystallization. For this reason it is a must ingredient for most frostings and confections and is often used by itself for a glaze.

While figures are not available, in many households cornstarch, sirup and oil are used more frequently than cornmeal. That keeps a place for itself however, in the preparation of hot breads.

Butterscotch Sauce.

One cup dark corn sirup, one cup sugar, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one-half cup light cream, two tablespoons butter or margarine, one teaspoon vanilla.

Combine all ingredients except vanilla in saucepan. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture comes to a full rolling boil. Boil briskly five minutes, stirring occasionally. Remove from heat and add vanilla. Serve hot. Sauce may be stored in refrigerator. To reheat, place in pan of hot, not boiling, water until sauce has thinned to pouring consistency. Yield: About two cups.

Fudge Frosting.

Four squares unsweetened chocolate, one-half cup milk, two tablespoons light corn sirup, two tablespoons butter or margarine, two cups sugar, one-eighth teaspoon salt, one teaspoon vanilla.

Combine all ingredients except vanilla in saucepan. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly until mixture boils. Continue cooking, stirring occasionally to a very soft ball stage (232 degrees F.) or until a small amount of mixture forms a very soft ball when tested in very cold water. Remove from heat. Cool to lukewarm (110 degrees F.). Add vanilla and beat until frosting begins to lose shiny appearance. If frosting becomes too stiff while spreading, place over boiling water to soften slightly. Then stir well and continue spreading. Yield: Enough for top and sides of one nine-inch square cake.

How It Started

By Jean Newton

"Anon"—After a While?

"I'LL see you anon," a friend may say, meaning "when we get around to it," or "after a while." But this is not how the little word started.

Originally, "anon" signified "at once," or "without delay." Literally its two syllables break down into "in one moment"! Thus, in Matthew 13,20, we find: "The same is he that heareth the word, and anon with joy receiveth it." The meaning here is "at once with joy receiveth it." In the new revision of the Scriptures, the new Bible, "anon" is disclosed as a word whose interpretation now is not in accord with its origin, and therefore not in accord with the Holy Bible's first translation into English, almost 600 years ago.

The derivation of "anon" is through the Old English "anoon," which was "in one moment," by the following means. It is composed of the Anglo-Saxon "on," meaning "in," and "an," meaning "one." As far back as it can be traced it expressed, therefore, "in one moment."

By Elizabethan times, the sense of "anon" had broadened to "in a little while," or "soon," and thus we find in the work of the Old chronicler, John Stow, "As it shall better appear ANON."

Shakespeare used it more or less freely in contexts which might jutsify the latter interpretation or one closer to the original sense. He wrote, "Sometimes he trots, anon he rears upright," and then again, in an allusion to a pouncet box — a box with a perforated lid, usually holding perfumes—we find this:

Fix It Yourself

By Hubbard Cobb

YEARS ago professional painters discovered that it's easier to keep paint off a floor than to try and wipe it up once it's been spilled. This is something that many amateur painters have yet to learn.

When paint is spilled on a wood floor finished with shellac or varnish it's easy enough to wipe it up before it dries with a cloth dampened in turpentine. If you allow the paint to dry you are in for trouble because almost anything used to remove the hardened paint will damage the floor finish.

About the best trick we know for removing hardened paint is to scrape it off with a razor blade, being careful not to damage the finish under the paint.

Paint spilled on resilient floors presents something of a problem because solvents such as turpentine or benzine will damage the flooring.

If the floor has been waxed the chances are that the paint will wipe off easily enough if you catch it while it is still wet and before it has had a chance to soak into the flooring.

If the paint is dry, try a razor blade first and remove as much as possible. What remains can be cleaned up by scrubbing with a piece of fine steel wool and a little warm water. Once you have all the paint out of the way, touch up the area with wax.

My Neighbor Says:

Unpainted concrete floors can be cleaned by wetting the surface with clear water and then applying a solution of two ounces of washing soda to a gallon of warm water. Sprinkle a scouring powder over the surface and go to work with a stiff fiber brush. Rinse with clear water.

Rush and cane chair seats won't become soiled so easily if they are given a coat of linseed oil. Just apply a light coat and wipe off the excess with a clean soft cloth. Be sure the seats are clean to begin with before this treatment. They can be washed with warm water and a mild soap.

The deep-well cooker of your range is convenient for making coffee or cocoa for a crowd. It also can double for a large kettle, and be used for sterilizing the baby's bottles, jelly glasses and dishes from the sickroom.

Social Problems

By Emily Post

A READER tells me: "My sister married a widower two years ago. He has a married daughter. My sister died very suddenly, and before she was even buried, his daughter came in and took all her silver, and also a Persian lamb coat, most of which my sister had before she married this man. I certainly think that I, as her sister, am entitled to these things and not her stepdaughter. Will you please tell me if I am right, and what I can do about getting them back?

I agree that if these things were in her possession before she married and not given to her by him, or as wedding presents, that he at least should have asked her family if they would like to have any of them. However, I am not a lawyer and, therefore, cannot give a positive opinion. But under general circumstances, the belongings of husband, or wife, go to the widower, or widow, rather than to the family of either.

Martha Carr's OPINION

Dear Martha:

MAY I give some advice to "Reader" who said he was trying to overcome jealousy. He already has taken the most important step by admitting and recognizing his jealousy. He must not condemn himself but instead realize that his jealousy comes from feeling inferior, not from being mean. He must realize that he is as good as anyone else and that he can claim this just by holding his head up, and thinking of himself as capable of overcoming this trait. He is the only one who can do it. He should stop condemning his weakness and start affirming his strength to overcome. I know because I had this to live through and overcame it as my husband can testify. I want every one to love and notice my husband. Reader, just reach out and claim your power to overcome this feeling of inferiority. As a man thinketh, so is he.

THE OVERCOMER.

Thank you for your letter. You have made an excellent suggestion which will show this boy that jealousy can be overcome. He desires above all else to make his fiancee happy. By his jealousy, he is doing just the opposite—bringing misery to her and poisoning his own life with pettiness. The knowledge that others have grown out of this will encourage him to make the effort.

Dear Martha:

I HAVE SOME GIRL FRIENDS who are so brazen and loud. They act like a bunch of 2-year-olds. But in a way I kind of envy them and they find it so easy to talk to the boys and make friends and get dates. That is where I am just the opposite. No matter how hard I try I just can't get up enough nerve to talk to a boy. I especially like one boy very much but I don't know how to start a conversation with him.

J.L.

To be friendly and gay and of a happy disposition is one thing—but to be brazen and loud is something else again and certainly not a trait to be coveted. Girls who are too loud and silly embarrass their dates by making themselves conspicuous and no boy likes that. So don't try to imitate them, but develop your own manner of speaking. You don't have to sound like a foghorn to be friendly, or yell to be gay and light-hearted. To start a conversation, don't try to think of some ponderous statement or awkward greeting. Just fall back on the "Hi" or "How're things going?" just as you would address a girl friend. Then talk to him about his favorite subject—baseball, music, etc.—but be sure to brush up on it a little before you try to express an opinion.

IN ANSWER TO Mrs. A.: The bridegroom buys the corsages for the mothers. If it is delivered to your home, wear it on your coat, then pin it to your dress when you remove your coat. In the case of a second marriage, a bride frequently chooses a gown of pastel tone, but the light rainbow hues, inspired by the coronation of Queen Elizabeth, are now coming into vogue for more formal ceremonies.

A Hates Bath Age

By Frances Ilg, M.D., and Louise Ames, Ph.D.
Of the Gesell Institute of Child Development.

"YOU have to beat him over the head," said the gentle-looking mother of one of our ten-year-old research subjects. "If you beat him hard enough, he'll take a bath. About once every few months he takes one of his own accord and then everybody collapses."

Is this typical of the American ten-year-old attitude toward bathing, you may ask. Our answer would be that it is, at least so far as the boys and girls whom we have studied are concerned.

"She only bathes when we force her to," another mother told us. (So you see it isn't only boys who resist the bath at 10 years of age.) "You have to remind her to brush her teeth, and even when she washes her hands they're never clean."

THE TEN-YEAR-OLDS whom we have known personally and professionally confirm their mothers' statements. They admit that they not only do not like to bathe but that they do not bathe willingly.

One boy makes his stand very clear to us. He states, "Nobody can force me to have a bath unless I haven't had one for a week."

Another tells us, "I'm supposed to take a bath every other night, but sometimes she'll let me out of it if I have a cold. Every Friday night, if it comes on a Friday, she'll let me skip it and take it Saturday so as to be clean for Sunday school."

Once a week is more common in many families, and even when it is as seldom as that, mothers say, "He always needs to be reminded."

TEN-YEAR-OLDS—at least those of our acquaintance—do not bathe spontaneously. They have no desire to bathe and they do not mind being dirty. This combination of factors would lead to an almost completely bathless state in many homes, did not mother intervene.

Not only do they dislike the idea of bathing, but for many it is too much bother. "Mother always thinks of it at the wrong time," one boy comments. Whereas his mother tells us, "Sometimes he is so involved with other things—his radio programs, his dog, his collections—that I have to lead him to the bathroom."

So if your ten-year-old bathes seldom and reluctantly, and always needs to be reminded, if not forced, to take his bath, do not be discouraged. He is not alone in his attitude toward cleanliness. However, age will definitely bring improvement.

Tips for Teens

By Elinor Williams

YOU are one half of a date. So one half of the conversation, planning and agreeable fun-making is up to you, whether you're a boy or a girl.

You've known boys who sort of sit back with a "Now you entertain me, you lucky girl!" air. They leave all the chatter to you and your heart thumps, if you're shy, and you start timidly with "It's cold tonight, isn't it?" and the conversation dies a slow, painful death . . . your mind seems to go blank.

And you've known girls who just giggle or repeat the latest slang phrase every other minute. That's no help, either.

There's an end to everybody's patience, and that goes for the girl or boy who keeps as quiet as the proverbial mouse, never opening her or his mouth except to eat or mumble a little word like "Yes" or "No."

Girls are better at "small talk" than boys, as a rule, so it's sometimes up to you to begin the conversation and keep it going (though not at a breathless pace!). How?

With questions. It's a good way to get a boy to talk and be a good listener. Make your questions casual and personal . . . and show an honest interest in the answers.

Be honest in your chatter, too. If his favorite sport or hobby baffles or bores you, say so, adding that you'd probably be interested in it if you knew more about it . . . then he'll explain what he likes about it.

Charlie Chaplin's Tangled Romances

Lita Grey Divorce Suit Caused Hollywood Scandal; Paulette Goddard Got Quiet Mexican Divorce

CHARLIE CHAPLIN AND PAULETTE GODDARD AT THE WORLD PREMIERE IN NEW YORK IN 1940 OF "THE GREAT DICTATOR," IN WHICH SHE WAS HIS LEADING LADY. SHE MARRIED HIM IN CHINA IN 1936, DIVORCED HIM IN MEXICO IN 1942.

By Herb Stinson

A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

This is the second article in a series on Charlie Chaplin. The comedian, now in Europe with his fourth wife and their four children, faces a hearing by the Immigration Service on his morals and his alleged Communist sympathies if he attempts to re-enter the United States, his home for 40 years, although he is still a British citizen.

HOLLYWOOD, March 16.

ON Jan. 10, 1927, Lita Grey Chaplin pulled the pedestal out from under Charlie Chaplin, the world's Movie Idol No. 1. She did the job with a 42-page divorce complaint that provided a new high in Hollywood scandal. She charged, among other things, that he had been mentally cruel to her and on a couple of occasions had suggested she take her own life. She also accused him of being in love with another woman but never named her opposite number.

Chaplin was never able to climb back to the eminence he enjoyed before the suit of his second child wife. He made pictures that were big grossers but he was never able to deodorize his reputation completely.

Almost from the beginning of the marriage in November, 1924, Hollywood scented something strange about the union. The wedding, a dreary affair which was graced by the presence of lawyers for both principals, took place in the drab railroad town of Empalme, near Guaymas, Mexico. Reporters—and the romance-loving inhabitants of Guaymas—thought it very peculiar that the comedian went fishing the afternoon of his wedding—alone.

During their marriage, Lita gave birth to two children. Charlie Chaplin Jr. was born on June 28, 1925. A second son, Sydney, was born March 30, 1926.

Meanwhile, the marriage was going from bad to worse. Charlie and Lita were on different mental levels. She didn't understand his friends, he despised her friends.

Besides containing explosive charges, the complaint gave some hint of the fortune Charlie had coined out of the Little Tramp character with the aid of American ingenuity and industry. It listed his assets at approximately $16,000,000.

Chaplin, then busy with production of "The Circus," was en route to New York on business when the storm broke. His lawyers and Lita's had been bickering for weeks over a marriage settlement and when he left he had no reason to believe the negotiations wouldn't continue.

BUT, when his train rolled into Chicago, reporters were there with pencils poised. Charlie looked like a broken man. His face was gray and tired, his walk listless. He said only that he denied every charge made by Lita. He asked that judgment be suspended.

But it looked like the end of the road for the little man of the baggy pants and the funny walk. Forty-two pages of legal paper threatened his fortune, his future and his name.

Already several women's clubs and other groups across the nation were agitating to have Chaplin's picture banned. In at least two cities they had been withdrawn within hours after Lita's charges became news. Charlie went aboard the 20th Century Limited, a heavily burdened man. Somewhere between Chicago and New York the burden became so heavy that it had to be relieved by talking to someone. Two wire service reporters were admitted to his stateroom. He began to tell his side of it.

He denied being a bad husband, a bad father or a bad man. He went back to the beginnings of his romance with Lita.

"I married Lita Grey," he said, "because I loved her and, like many other fool men, I loved her more when she wronged me and I am afraid I still love her."

Haggling, more charges and countercharges stretched out over the next eight months.

Finally both sides came to an agreement. Lita obtained a divorce Aug. 22, 1927, on the single ground of mental cruelty; Charlie settled for a $600,0000 cash payment to Lita and, a $200,000 trust fund for the boys and yielded their custody to Lita.

But can you ever settle a morals problem with cash? Charlie must be wondering as the Government blows fire into the smouldering coals of his past.

PAULETTE GODDARD was the next woman in Charlie's life. For years it was a mystery whether they were married—or what. The place and time of their marriage, if any, remained a mystery even longer.

And it was a mystery why Paulette, Chaplin's only adult bride, didn't speak out at the proper time. Her silence may have cost her the acting plum of the '30s—the role of Scarlet O'Hara in "Gone With the Wind," when women's groups became disturbed about her ambiguous status in Chaplin's life.

Miss Goddard had been divorced from a wealthy business man when she met Chaplin in 1931. The actor signed her as leading lady for his picture, "Modern Times," and then in 1936 sailed off with her in a yacht for a tour of the Far East, chaperoned by her mother.

When they returned, rumors of their marriage began to circulate. They were neither affirmed nor denied. Aside from the rumors, it was a quiet time in Chaplin's life. Miss Goddard was mature, intelligent, able to meet Chaplin on his own intellectual level. Unlike all his other leading ladies, she went on to carve an acting career of her own.

But the marriage dissolved quietly, like a good many other Hollywood unions, with Miss Goddard dropping down to Mexico and getting a divorce in 1942. It came out then that they had been married in Canton, China, in 1936.

But before the divorce, 20-year-old Joan Barry, came into Chaplin's life. Charlie was 52 by then. If any warning gong sounded in his mind, if he had any painful memories of his romance with 16-year-old Lita Grey, he paid no attention.

Red-headed Joan, a Brooklyn girl, sailed into the Chaplin orbit in the spring of 1941, after trying vainly for two years to scale the Hollywood movie battlements.

A FEW weeks after they met, Chaplin had Joan under contract as his leading lady at $75 a week. A romance began which lasted until December, 1942, when Chaplin told her he was through with her. Joan took an overdose of sleeping pills, but a friend intervened and called the Beverly Hills police to the rescue. She recovered, and was promptly booked on a vagrancy charge, found guilty, but put on probation after she agreed to go back East.

A friend of Chaplin's supplied her with $100 and a ticket to New York, but several months later she was back in Hollywood creating what was called a "disturbance" at Charlie's home.

Enough smoke was rising from the Barry case to start Hollywood tongues wagging. A federal grand jury investigated and indicted Chaplin on a charge of violating the Mann Act. The charge involved a trip made by Joan to New York and return in October, 1942. Chaplin, the Government contended, had paid her fare both ways, transporting her from one state to another for immoral purposes.

Chaplin was acquitted. The shadow of prison was no longer over him, but he still had to wade through the muck of a paternity trial. Joan charged that he was the father of her baby girl, born Oct. 3, 1943.

Chaplin denied he was the baby's father. He asked for a blood test to determine the matter. The test was negative, but the trial still went forward. A jury composed of seven women and five men found in favor of Chaplin, but Joan won a retrial. At the second trial, an all-woman jury declared Chaplin the baby's father, and ordered him to pay $75 a week toward its support. It was the exact figure for which Charlie had hired Joan as his leading lady in June of 1941.

But the blow was softened for Chaplin by a new romance. He had met and fallen in love with a beautiful raven-haired 18-year-old. She was Oona O'Neill, daughter of the famed playwright, Eugene O'Neill, and from all outward signs, she was, and is, the real love of Chaplin's life.

Your Own Way in Kitchen

By Elizabeth Hillyer

PAINTING, paper hanging, linoleum laying, curtain sewing—there's so much that do-it-yourself enthusiasts can do in the kitchen.

Look into the kitchen cabinet situation and discover even more to be done by loving hands at home. Some new cabinets come in ready-to-put together sections, all set for hammer and screw driver completion by you.

These cabinets are unfinished so they can be painted or stained, but their handsome birch paneling prompts the choice of today's favorite clear finish to show the natural wood grain through.

They also come assembled and unfinished for those who prefer to tackle no more than the finishing, and assembled and finished in a coating of clear lacquer as well.

Wide variety of cabinet sizes and styles makes it easy to custom fit the kitchen, and counter tops of Formica or linoleum can be ordered for cabinet groupings of any length.

MRS. J. J.—"Isn't it incorrect to leave the cellophane on lamp shades?"

Good Idea

While not essential, it's a good idea to use double strength glass on metal windows rather than the single strength variety suitable for use on wood sashes.

Contract Bridge

By Ely Culbertson

FOR over 20 years—almost from the inception of contract bridge—the forcing two-bid has been a cornerstone of the game. It is indispensable. But, in its traditional form, it is not a perfect convention. For one thing, it is a shade too inflexible; for another, it lacks a safety valve.

I am happy to announce that a new formula—which I call the "limit two-bid," covers both of these features: it adds flexibility, and it supplies a safety valve. Let it be understood, however, that I offer this new formula for advanced bidding only.

Under one condition, a two-bid in a suit can be made without forcing the partnership to game. The condition is: if the response to the two-bid is the negative two no-trump, and if the opener then bids only three of his original suit—responder is permitted to pass.

South	West	North	East
2♥	Pass	2N.-T.	Pass
3♥	Pass

North is not obliged to bid again. He should do so with some values, but if he has a near-bust he should be glad to pass.

In all other respects the two-bid remains the same. In this sequence, for example:

South	West	North	East
2♥	Pass	2N.T.	Pass
3♠ or
3♦ or
3♣ is forcing.

The advantage of the limit two-bid is that now players can bid two hearts on such a holding as:

♥AKQJ75
♦A63
♣A42

This hand, with only eight sure winners—two short of a major-suit game—is not good enough for the usual two-bid. It does, however, conform to the principle of the limit two-bid, because if partner must respond with two no-trump, the normal three-heart rebid can be dropped. By opening with two hearts, the partnership may easily reach good game contracts which would otherwise be missed, and at the same time the limit feature of the obvious three-heart rebid protects the partnership from getting overboard if the responder is woefully weak.

St. Louisans Are Visitors In New York

By Frances Conant Richards

NEW YORK, March 16

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM BIXBY, the Arthur Stoughtons, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Fraser and the William Hanleys all shared St. Louis as a subject of mutual interest this past week at the Brazilian Court in Palm Beach, Fla. Bill and Betty Hanley (she was Betty Niles of St. Louis) have been in Florida about a month and plan to stay on until just after Easter. En route South Mrs. Hanley stopped off in Camden, S. C., to stay with her mother, Mrs. Frederick Whiting Church, and Mr. Church.

Mrs. Fraser, in the south for approximately two weeks, was joined there last weekend by Mr. Fraser. They flew north Wednesday, picking a good day for leaving Florida when rain was prevalent among the palm trees. A night in town, another night in Riverside, Conn., with their son-in-law and daughter, Tom and Sheila Bowman, then the Frasers were off to England by plane Saturday. They will be at the Savoy in London for almost six weeks.

Mrs. Thomas M. Pierce was in New York last weekend for a visit with her son, Dickson Walsh Pierce, who had come on from the west coast for a business trip. Dickson and his wife, Nanette, and their young daughters moved to California about two years ago. They live now in Burlingame where they say life is a good bit easier than in the cement confines of New York apartments.

A series of soirees known as Knickerbocker Evenings are as popular with theater-minded New Yorkers as are church suppers to farmers in a corn belt. New Yorkers love the privacy assured by living in a big city but they also are more than charmed to go to the theater and find friends seated nearby. Knickerbocker Evenings, a nonprofit arrangement, works much the same as the Playgoers in St. Louis. Invitations are sent out for tickets to about eight shows during the winter and subscribers all have seats in the first 12 rows, more or less together. As an added attraction, included in the small subscriber's fee, members of Knickerbocker Evenings follow up the theater with a night cap or two at a designated spot—perchance the Rendezvous room of the Plaza, or the Carnival room of the Sherry Netherland—where the cover charge for the evening is absorbed by the management. This Tuesday Mr. and Mrs. Francis La Farge (Loraine Grover) will be among the hundred or so members of the group trouping over to the Century Theater to hear Judith Anderson, Tyrone Power and Raymond Massey give their brilliant reading of "John Brown's Body."

MRS. JAMES BUTLER drove in from Westbury, L.I., Thursday afternoon for the tea and meeting given by Mrs. Anthony Del Balso at her apartment on Park where committee members met to work out plans for the Skyline dinner dance to be given April 23 at the St. Regis Roof for the benefit of Kips Bay Boys Club. Jessie Butler, the former Jessie Ewing, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Ewing (Maria von Phul Taylor) of Mt. Kisco, N.Y. and niece of Mrs. J. Boyle Price of St. Louis. Jessie Butler's husband, James Butler, is president of the Kips Bay Boys Club which, since 1915, has served underprivileged boys in a program of health, education and sports.

MISS GENE EWING SMITH . . . TO VACATION IN FLORIDA.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin McArthur and Mr. and Mrs. Glen McDaniel had an evening together Wednesday, March 4, to celebrate their joint wedding anniversaries. As Eddie McArthur, musical director of the Municipal Opera, said March 4 used to be inauguration day and an easy one to remember. The McDaniels and McArthurs met for dinner then went on to see Hazel Flagg, the musical that had the whole town fighting for seats until Rosalind Russell came along with "Wonderful Town."

Mrs. McDaniel is well known to St. Louis summer opera audiences as Dorothy Sandlin and sang there last summer in "Cat and the Fiddle." The McDaniels, who have a penthouse on upper Fifth avenue, have just returned to their midtown aerie after a vacation in Japan.

McArthur, who conducts the Harrisburg (Pa.) Symphony during the winter concert series, has only one more concert there this season. Winding up the series doesn't mean, however, that he will have a light schedule until Municipal Opera rehearsals begin. He is writing the music for "Rip Van Winkle," a musical to be premiered in St. Louis about mid-summer, with book and lyrics by Morton de Costa, stage director for the Muny Opera.

St. Louisans Guests At Palm Beach Hotel

AT the Breakers in Palm Beach, Fla., are Mrs. Lloyd P. Maritz, 7425 Somerset drive, Clayton, and her daughter, Margot Maritz, an eighth-grade student at Mary Institute. Mr. Maritz will join them later and return to St. Louis with them.

The Maritzes' son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd P. Maritz Jr., 29 Waverton drive, Ladue, recently became the parents of their fourth daughter. The baby has been named Pelagie Elizabeth for Mrs. Maritz Sr. and her other grandmother, Mrs. Elizabeth Graves.

Also at the Breakers are Mr. and Mrs. Willard B. Shelp Jr., 484 Lake avenue, after a visit to Jamaica and later to Delray, Fla., where they saw Donald Scott Sharpe, a former St. Louisan, who now divides his time between New York and Delray. The Shelps will spend a short time in New Orleans before returning home.

In Palm Beach to join her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter L. Rathmann, at the Breakers, is Mrs. Clarence H. Howard Jr., 6377 Wydown boulevard, Clayton. Mrs. Howard departed yesterday accompanied by her daughter, Miss Betty Howard, a John Burroughs student, and Linda Hess, who attends Community School. Miss Hess is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard H. Hess, 39 Brentmoor, Clayton.

Webster Groves Notes

MR. AND MRS. W. A. RAMMING JR., 633 Sherwood drive, and their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Krueger, 3514 Kingsland court, will depart for Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Thursday, March 26, for a three-week holiday.

Returning Friday from Taos, N.M., will be Mr. Ramming's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Richard J. Ramming, 703 Sherwood drive. The Richard Rammings, who spend part of each year at their home in Taos, will celebrate his birthday there tomorrow. AMONG students planning to spend their spring vacations in Florida are eight young women who, departing by train at different times, will spend the holiday together at Mrs. Carl Helander's boarding house and apartments in Delray Beach, Fla.

Miss Polly Rolwing, daughter of Mrs. Gladys Muckerman Rolwing, 33 Picardy lane, Ladue, and Miss Helen Wall, daughter of Mrs. Maloy Wall, 4914 Argyle place, both of whom attend business schools, will leave St. Louis for the vacation resort March 22. Six days later, on March 28, they will be joined in Delray by four students at Washington University, all with Pi Beta Phi sorority affiliations: Miss Gene Ewing Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Smith, 5227 Westminster place, Miss Molly Stark, daughter of former Gov. and Mrs. Lloyd C. Stark, Aberdeen Farms, Eolia, Mo., Miss Helen Farmer Harrison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Harrison Jr., Belleville, Ill., who lives at McMillan Hall on the campus, and Miss Louise White, daughter of Mrs. Charles J. Bainum, 6304 Westminster place.

Also leaving with the group who will depart on the latter date will be Miss Carol Marie Gissy, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Carl J. Gissy, 801 Cella road, Ladue, a student at Maryville College, and miss Mary Ann (Muffie) Manion, daughter of Mrs. Gladys L. Manion, 7519 Wellington way, Clayton. Miss Manion, who in the fall was attending the University of Colorado, Boulder, transferred to Washington University this past semester. All of the young women will return home Wednesday, April 8.

My Day

By Eleanor Roosevelt

SARASOTA, Fla.

ON Friday I spent a busy day in various activities to awaken interest in the Miami chapter of the American Association for the U.N. In Miami the main interest has been among the university professors and students.

Mrs. Roosevelt

The University of Miami has had a phenomenal growth in the course of the last few years, and I was interested to see the campus and to find that they had a great number of foreign students.

My first appointment in the morning was a short discussion period with these foreign students. They told me an amusing story of how they happened to get their first student from Thailand. He thought he was sending in his application to Miami College in Oxford, O., but he addressed it to Miami University, U.S.A. Quite naturally his application found its way to the University of Miami and in due time he was accepted.

When he arrived he was enchanted with the university, but much disappointed not to find any of his friends. During Christmas vacation he invited them all down to stay, and little by little they all transferred. It certainly would be more like Thailand in Florida than in Ohio.

I SPOKE to the entire student body in a crowded auditorium. Then I made a hurried tour of their student government headquarters and the offices where they get out the student magazine and newspapers. Both activities have been very successful, and the publications are a part of the course in jouralism. I lunched with some of the faculty and board of trustees, and then went back to my hostess' home for a couple of hours in the afternoon.

At five I attended a meeting of the officers of the chapter of the AAUN, when we went over in detail the new plan of organization and of work. I also consulated with them on finding a state chairman. No one seemed to come up with a candidate immediately, but I hope that one may be found before long.

I think they have gained one good worker in Miami because my hostess, who has always been a very active business woman, told me she had agreed to do any job they asked her to undertake. She has always been a dyname of energy and, if she gets interested, I am sure she will have more ideas and more ways of accomplishing them than anyone else they could find.

AFTER THE MEETING, which lasted well over an hour, we had dinner together and then went to the auditorium to speak. It was a good meeting, and I hope it will serve as a spark for future activity.

Saturday Miss Thompson and I took a holiday. We did a little shopping and then went to a delightful house where there was a wonderful salt water swimming pool. I had a swim and afterward lunched out of doors with a very delightful and interesting group of people. Later we went to visit a friend and see the changes that had been made in an old house which had been done over. Finally, after an early supper, we took the plane to Sarasota.

Doctor's Notebook

Value of an Autopsy

By Glen R. Shepherd, M. D.

IN a very real sense, whether or not medical knowledge continues to increase depends simply upon whether you answer yes or no to a single question. This question comes up soon after you have lost a loved one, perhaps quite unexpectedly.

The question that may arise is, of course, whether you will permit an autopsy—an examination after death—of your immediate relative. If you haven't given the matter previous thought, your answer may be negative because of your grief. Later, when you are more collected but when it is also too late, you may wish that you had answered yes. For without an autopsy, you will always wonder what was really wrong with your relative.

PERMITTING an autopsy can often relieve your own doubts, can help your doctor do more for his patients in the future, and will improve medical knowledge.

In the first place, such an examination usually finds out the exact cause of death. It may show why treatment didn't work as it was expected to. You can learn whether diseases with inherited tendencies were really present so that these can be suspected in an earlier and more curable stage in you and the other surviving blood relatives.

By discovering for sure the exact cause of death, more light is thrown on disease. Also, this makes possible accurate records and statistics of the causes of death.

For one practical application of this, such records help determine insurance premiums. For instance, as a result of the records in many cases, diabetics can now buy insurance which they couldn't until four years ago.

ANOTHER ADVANTAGE of an autopsy and one which comes up in coroner's cases, or a death in a mysterious manner, is to discover whether a crime was involved. The saving of innocent people from suspicion is as important as uncovering a capital crime.

Autopsies are done by doctors trained in pathology, pathologists. Such a man is the doctor's doctor. After he obtains specimens, they are carefully stained and scrutinized under the microscope.

The examination itself is like a surgical operation, except that it is done after death. There is no disfigurement apparent after the usual preparation by your mortician.

If autopsies are so useful, why do people object? Most often, it is because of their grief. They do not realize the value of the autopsy to themselves, to the doctor's future patients, and for the general improvement of medical knowledge.

Sometimes, relatives object because they don't know how another close relative might feel about it. Practically no one objects on religious grounds. You can confirm this by talking with your minister, priest, or rabbi.

Those who give the matter some thought will surely give their permission when it is up to them to make this decision. They realize that in a very real sense, such an examination is to their own enlightened self-interest. It also adds a little more to the sum total of medical knowledge.

Choose closely-woven fabrics for slip covers because this type of material will protect against dust, hold its shape well, and probably wear well.

Know what "HARE-Brained" Means?

Well, you see—Mr. Hare and Mr. Tortoise were neighbors...

One morning, Mr. Hare was dashing out to his garage, heading off to work, at the same time that Mr. Tortoise was passing by on his way to the bus stop.

Mr. Tortoise tipped his hat, and Mr. Hare waved back. He couldn't help smiling to himself as he opened the garage door. That Tortoise was a character, always plodding down to the bus stop each morning with his newspaper under his arm.

While Mr. Hare warmed up the motor, he amused himself by thinking about how out-dated Tortoise was, riding the bus when he could drive his car downtown so much easier and quicker.

Mr. Hare chuckled again as he turned the corner at the bus stop. There was Tortoise, just climbing on the express bus with his dime and his permit.

Mr. Hare gunned his car and sped on ahead of the bus, grinning—all was right with the world: battery charging OK, oil pressure normal. Gas—on empty? Why, he'd filled it just the other day! Oh well, a station was just up the way.

"It took fourteen gallons, sir," the attendant said. "That'll be $3.78—check the oil, too?" If Mr. Tortoise had looked up from his newspaper as he passed, he would have seen Mr. Hare's quart of oil going in.

Well, Mr. Hare finally got away from the station and sped down the street, determined to make up his lost time. He fumed at red lights and a few other motorists, and he finally roared past Mr. Tortoise's bus at Grand Avenue.

Downtown, there was no curb space left near Mr. Hare's office, so he had to drive over to a parking lot just a few blocks away. It was filling up fast, and there was a little wait until he could pull his car onto the lot, pay the attendant, and get his stub.

It was a windy walk from the parking lot, and walking isn't one of his pet sports. He paused only once, though: just to glance at the headlines on a stack of morning papers. Then he hurried around the corner to his door.

Mr. Tortoise tipped his hat, but Mr. Hare could only gasp. And, you know? Later on when Mr. Hare told this to me, he still didn't believe it had happened—just his eyes playing tricks on him.

If you ask me, that's "hare-brained."

Your neighbor, Pete

Moulded to the Figure

Some of the slim spring dresses are moulded to the figure so carefully that they do not need a belt. Others stress the vogue of the wide, fitted cummerbund in a contrasting shade. One unbelted model has a wrapped bodice that ties high at the center front. The dress is made of mesh, has short sleeves and a high, round neckline to be ornamented with a pin or necklace.

RIPLEY'S BELIEVE IT OR NOT

by Nicholas Monsarrat

First-Lt. Lockhart of the Compass Rose has been doing some figuring: the corvette has put in 490 days at sea, has steamed 98,000 miles, picked up 640 survivors, destroyed one U-boat. Now the gallant ship, on its thirty-first convoy of the war, has just been torpedoed in icy waters off Iceland.

CHAPTER THIRTY-SEVEN

THE open space between the boats was a dark shambles. Men blundered to and fro, cursing wildly, cannoning into each other, slipping on the unaccustomed slope of the deck; above their heads the steam from the safety valve was reaching a crescendo of noise, as if the ship, pouring out her vitals, was screaming her rage and defiance at the same time.

One of the boats was useless—it could not be launched at the angle Compass Rose had now reached; the other had jammed in is chocks, and no effort, however violent, could move it. Tonbridge, who was in charge, hammered and punched at it; the dozen men with him strove desperately to lift it clear; it stuck there as if pegged to the deck, it was immovable.

Tonbridge said, for the fourth or fifth time: "Come on, lads—heave!" He had to roar to make himself heard; but roaring was no use, and heaving was no use either. Gregg, who was by his shoulder, straining at the gunwale, gasped: "It's no bloody good, Ted . . . She's fast . . . It's the list . . ." and Tonbridge called out: "The rafts, then—clear the rafts!"

The men left the boat, which in their mortal need had failed them and wasted precious minutes, and made for the Carley floats; they blundered into each other once more, and ran full tilt into the funnel guys, and shouted fresh curses at the confusion.

Tonbridge started them lifting the raft that was on the high side of the ship, and bringing it across to the other rail; in the dark, with half a dozen fear-driven men heaving and wrenching at it, it was as if they were already fighting each other for the safety it promised. Then he stood back, looking up at the bridge where the next order—the last order of all—must come from. The bridge was crooked against the sky. He fingered his life-jacket, and tightened the straps. He said, not bothering to make his voice audible: "It's going to be cold, lads."

DOWN in the engine room, three minutes after the explosion, Watts and E.R.A. Broughton were alone, waiting for the order of release from the bridge. They knew it ought to come, they trusted that it would . . . Watts had been "on the plate" when the torpedo struck home; on his own initiative, he had stopped the engine, and then, as the angle of their list increased, he had opened the safety valve and let the pressure off the boilers.

He had followed what was happening from the noise outside, and it was easy enough to follow. The series of crashes from forward were the bulkheads going, the trampling overhead was the boats being cleared away; the wicked downhill angle of the ship was their doom.

Now they waited, side by side in the deserted engine-room; the old E.R.A. and the young apprentice. Watts noticed that Broughton was crossing himself, and remembered he was a Catholic. Good luck to him tonight . . . The bell from the bridge rang sharply, and he put his mouth to the voice-pipe.

"Chief," said the captain's far-away voice.

"Sir?"

"Leave it, and come up."

That was all — and it was enough. "Up you go, lad!" he said to Broughton. "We're finished here."

"Is she sinking?" asked Broughton uncertainly.

"Not with me aboard. . . . Jump to it!"

H plus four minutes. . . . Peace had already come to the fo'c's'le; the hammering had ceased, the wild voices were choked and stilled. The torpedo had struck at a bad moment—for many people, the worst and last moment of their lives. Thirty-seven men of the port watch, seamen and stokers, had been in the mess-decks at the time of the explosion: sitting about, or eating, or sleeping, or reading, or playing cards or dominoes; and doing all these things in snug warmth, behind the single closed water-tight door. None of them had got out alive: most had been killed instantly, but a few, lucky or unlucky, had raced or crawled for the door, to find it warped or buckled by the explosion, and hopelessly jammed. There was no other way out, except the gaping hole through which the water was now bursting in a broad and furious jet.

The shambles that followed were mercifully brief; but until the water quenched the last screams and uncurled the last clawing hands, it was as Ericson had heard it through the voice-pipe—a paroxysm of despair, terror, and convulsive violence, all in full and dreadful flood, an extreme corner of the human zoo for which there should be no witnesses.

AT the other end of the ship, one peaceful and determined man had gone to his post and set about the job assigned to him under Abandon Ship Stations. This was Wainwright, the leading torpedoman, who, perched high in the stern which had now begun to tower over the rest of the ship, was withdrawing the primers from the depth charges, so that they could not explode when the ship went down.

He went about the task methodically. Unscrew, pull, throw away. —unscrew, pull, throw away. He whistled as he worked, a tuneless version of "Roll Out the Barrel." Each primer took him between 10 and 15 seconds to dispose of: he had 30 depth-charges to see to: he reckoned that there would just about be time to finish. . . . Under his feet, the stern was steadily lifting, like one end of a gigantic see-saw; there was enough light in the gloom for him to follow the line of the ship, down the steep slope that now led straight into the sea. He could hear the steam blowing off, and the voices of the men shouting farther along the upper deck. "Noisy fools," he thought, dispassionately. Pity they hadn't got anything better to do.

Alone and purposeful, he worked on. There was an obscure enjoyment in throwing over the side the equipment that had plagued him for nearly three years. The bloody things all had numbers, and special boxes, and checklists, and history-sheets; now they were just splashes in the dark, and even these need not be counted.

Someone loomed up near by, climbing the slope with painful effort, and bumped into him. He recognized an officer's uniform, and then Ferraby.

He went on with the job, without waiting for a comment. Ferraby was staring about him as if he were lost in some terrible dream, but presently he crossed to the other depth-charge rail and began, awkwardly, to deal with the depth charges on that side. They worked steadily, back to back, braced against the slope of the deck. At first they were silent; then Wainwright started to whistle again, and Ferraby, as he dropped one of the primers, to sob. The ship gave a violent lurch under their feet, and the stern rose higher still, enthroning them above the sea.

Uncle Ray's Column

By Ramon Coffman

THE question of tides came to the minds of many persons last month when the swollen North Sea flooded the Dutch coast, and also did damage along parts of the British coast. More than 1300 persons in The Netherlands lost their lives. Such questions as these were asked:

"What causes tides to be higher at one time than another? Why should modern man be at the mercy of these actions of Nature?"

LET US NOTE that storms, as well as high tides, helped to bring about the disaster. As to modern man being "at the mercy" of such forces, we can reply that conditions are better now, in this respect, than in past ages. Warnings make it possible for thousands to save their lives by fleeing from the scene of danger. Others, who are fitted for the task of bolstering dams, and so on, can go where their work is needed.

Flying machines, as well as motorboats, help in the work of rescue. A helicopter may carry away a family from a house which stands in the midst of rising waters.

History gives us an idea of what modern progress means in terms of human life. Old records tell about terrible floods in Holland during centuries gone by. The volume of water may never have been more, or much more, than in the present year, but the loss of life was far larger.

FROM THE TIME of the Crusades to the time of Columbus, three gigantic floods took place in The Netherlands. Each of these, judging by old records, took a toll of from 75,000 to 110,000 lives.

The dikes were poor in those days, and transport was slow. Some persons were able to escape in boats, or by clinging to floating wreckage, but vast numbers died by drowning.

There are many more people in The Netherlands today than during the Middle Ages. If other conditions had been the same today as in the past, the flood during February might have cost the lives of a quarter of a million persons. As it was, modern methods kept the loss down to a small fraction of that number.

Leopard Prints

Those leopard prints which started out as fads are generally accepted for spring costumes. Adele Simpson is credited with giving fashion importance to the novelty with her jackets made of the silk leopard patterns over pale beige dresses.
